Return Of Viet Nam Veteran Gladdens Marin Family

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Home is the soldier from Viet Nam, just in time for Christmas.

Army Sp4 Richard C. Tremelling arrived home in Mill Valley yesterday from always hot, always tense Viet Nam. He plans to spend a "quiet Christmas" with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Tremelling, and twin brother, Robert, at their home at 350 Corte Madera Avenue.

Robert is on vacation from California State Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo, where he is a student.

During the holidays and on his 30-day leave, Richard plans to visit other buddies, also home from the military service. They include David Howard of Chicago, who is stationed at Hamilton Air Force Base; Dan Kelly of Mill Valley, who is in the Navy, and Paul Deutch of Sausalito, who is in the Army.

Tremelling's mother is very joyous about the homecoming. "It's the most blessed Christmas I ever hope to have," said she today. "Well, you can imagine . . . Christmas once again for us."

Tremelling said it's great to be home, "but it is kind of hard to adjust. . . .

"You can drive a car and go out on a date. You're used to being around all GIs. Your language isn't too good. Then, there's the cold air here."

Tremelling, who is 19, said he was assigned to training American troops in the Hue Phubai area. "That is 420 miles north of Saigon, 30 miles South of North Viet Nam and 15 miles west of Laos," he said. "And it's five miles from the Ho Chi Minh supply trail." (Ho is the North Vietnamese leader.)

Tremelling said he taught Americans how to use weapons including machine guns, and went out on patrol once in a while.

"The climate in Viet Nam varies from hot and wet to hot and dry," said the soldier, who smoked cigarettes one after another. "It never got cold. It's the rainy season now."

Tremelling was graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1964 and worked for awhile at Safeway store in Mill Valley. He volunteered for military duty. Both parents are teachers, Tremelling at San Quentin prison and Mrs. Tremelling at Alto School, Mill Valley.

"I lived like an animal," declared Tremelling. "We lived in tents about 70 per cent of the time. When we weren't in the field, we lived in French buildings left from when the French occupied the country.

"You never completely relax in the country because you don't know who's who. You don't know if a Vietnamese is a VC (Viet Cong) or an ARVN (Army Republic of Viet Nam). A guy could work with you in the daytime and kill you in the night time."

In Viet Nam, said the youth, he might be up 20 or 22 hours a day and then get two hours sleep. "You don't have weeks and days like in the states. It's a 24-hour a day job."

Tremelling went twice to Saigon for what he calls "R and R."

"Rest and recuperation," he explained and added, "Believe me, you need it."

"I would like to express my appreciation for all the people who sent us packages over there," he said. "The day before I left 800 packages arrived. One for every man in the compound. Most were from Ohio and Indiana."

Tremelling spoke against the demonstrators in the United States, of his 11 months in Viet Nam, he said: "I grew up some. I got a better outlook. You meet different kinds of people. It's good experience, something to remember all your life."

He's glad it's only a memory now. After his leave, he will go to Fort Ord to train troops coming into the Army.

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS — Just back from Viet Nam for a Merry Christmas in Mill Valley, Army Sp4 Richard C. Tremelling guesses what's inside the packages placed under the tree by his mother, Mrs. Robert N. Tremelling. Tremelling said service in Viet Nam was "good experience." His mother said, "He's changed."

SAIGON REJOICES AS TRUCE STARTS

Allied Commanders Warily Wait For End Of Viet Cong's Shorter Cease-Fire Plan

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — A Christmas Eve truce declared by both the allied armed forces and the insurgent Communist Viet Cong appeared tonight to have stilled the guns, the terror and the slaughter that has tortured South Viet Nam for years.

The American-South Vietnamese decision to stop all offensive action for 30 hours went into effect at 6 p.m. (2 a.m. PST) and the Viet Cong seemed to have been faithful to their announced promise of a 12-hour truce as of 7 p.m.

The cease-fire in the embattled country turned at least some of it back to the little people. Most noticeable was the reaction in Saigon, the capital. The streets were a mass of humanity.

People who have not been on these streets perhaps for months were out in force with their children.

The three million population of Saigon strode out in confidence as though all of them had heard directly about the truce. The thousands of Americans in Saigon were, on the other hand, confined to their billets until dawn Christmas day under a curfew imposed Dec. 18. The curfew will be lifted tomorrow.

The atmosphere was electric, but loaded with a sense of relief.

From the jungles and the outpost, reports filtering into Saigon indicated that the ceasefire was just that. From An Khe, where the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division is deployed, Associated Press Correspondent Bob Poos reported "all's quiet."

From Da Nang on the northern coast where the Marines are based in strength, the word was of holiday feasting—turkey or baked Virginia ham after shrimp cocktails and winding up with mince or pumpkin pie.

The Communist Viet Cong announced three times on their radio today that they would undertake no offensive action or acts of terrorism from Christmas Eve, one hour after the Allied cease-fire started, until 7 a.m. Saturday, 17 hours before the U.S.-South Vietnamese truce period ends.

The Viet Cong had offered their 12-hour truce in a broadcast Dec. 7. The Americans and the South Vietnamese countered with their longer cease-fire order earlier this week.

It remained to be seen if the truce worked. But around the world there were expressions of hope that it would be extended after Christmas and would pave the way to peace negotiations.

All American and Allied units were on the alert and had orders to react sharply in self defense. The American cease-fire

Hometowners Sing Carols For Johnsons

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, still ploughing through accumulated paper work, was ready to open Christmas gifts with his family tonight.

Traditionally, the Johnsons set aside Christmas Eve to open gifts exchanged within the family. None of the gifts was announced in advance.

The President, his wife and two daughters actually got off to a running start on the holiday, driving last night to his renovated boyhood home here, 15 miles east of the LBJ ranch, to hear Christmas carols sung by the combined choirs of the town's three churches—First Christian, Methodist and Baptist.

Except for the chief executive, the family did better than listen. Wife Lady Bird sang heartily throughout the occasion—as she sat beside her husband on a wicker porch swing at the 19th century dwelling—and daughters Lynda, 21, and Luci, 18, joined the choirs before the serenade was over.

Johnson, dressed very conservatively and looking a bit dour upon arrival, warmed at the sight of his neighbors—more than 50 strong—assembled to greet him with traditional Christmas tunes.

Before the after-dark affair was over, he hoisted in his arms the 11-month-old daughter of the choral director and, though she tweaked his nose—or perhaps because of that, made believe

Robber Walloped In Theft Of $641

A 27-year-old shoe store owner, robbed last night of $641, walloped one of two bandits with a tire iron after they attempted to cut him with a razor "just for the hell of it."

Frank Salvadore Lucchesi, owner and operator of Frank's Shoes at 120 Town and Country Village, Strawberry, said he believed he broke the man's shoulder with the blow. Both robbers fled without injuring him.

Lucchesi told sheriff's officers he closed the shop and was alone counting change about 9:20 p.m. yesterday when the pair rapped on the door.

Thinking they wanted to purchase shoes, he admitted them. One went to the store's rear to look at a rack of shoes, Lucchesi returned to his cash register. He looked up at a demand for money to find "a small, dark gun" pointed at him, he told deputies.

Lucchesi said he handed over $487 cash and checks totaling $154, but the gunman then said, "Let's cut him (victim) just for the hell of it."

The second man drew a razor and leaned over the counter, Lucchesi grabbed the iron, kept under the counter, and slammed it down onto the razor holder's left shoulder.

"They grabbed each other and went off," he said.

The robbers left in a blue convertible driven by a third person. Left behind on the counter in the confusion, he said, were about 15 additional checks.

Lucchesi, said both robbers appeared to be under the influence of narcotics. He described them as in their early 20s, of medium height, wearing sports coats and slacks.

Supervisors May Reopen Hiring Issue

Hiring of John Martin Douglas of San Rafael to the $15,600 per year post of director of promotion and development may be reconsidered by the county supervisors.

"I may ask that the whole matter be reviewed on Jan. 4," declared Supervisor Thomas T. Storer today. He said he was completely unaware when he voted on Tuesday that Douglas is a neighbor of Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker.

"I found it very distasteful to learn through the Independent-Journal that I had voted affirmatively to appoint an immediate neighbor of a fellow supervisor," said Storer. "Mr. Leydecker, in my opinion, had an absolute duty to disclose this relationship."

Storer said that among the four finalists for the position, Douglas was the only one who requested the $15,600 salary.

Church Buys Brazil Ranch Site Sought For State Park

The 2,200-acre Brazil Ranch in southern Marin has been sold to a Los Angeles-based church denomination which was apparently unaware of mounting plans —both on the county and state level—to turn it into a park.

Leonard Kaufman of Beverly Hills, attorney for the First Christian Church of America, said he will come to Marin next week to attend the closing of the sale, escrow for which is expected to be closed in a few days. Kaufman said he hopes meantime to learn more about plans for the acreage.

The church is buying the property from a group including John Fell Stevenson of San Francisco, son of the late ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai E. Stevenson.

Marin County supervisors two weeks ago asked Nature Conservancy, a conservation group, to sponsor a nationwide drive for funds to buy the property "such as the Brazil Ranch" to create a memorial park for the senior Stevenson.

Marin County got ready for a wet Christmas.

After staying away for two weeks, the rain came back unexpectedly in the early morning, leaving as much as .47 of an inch in some parts of the county by mid-morning.

The Weather Bureau predicted it would continue through Christmas Day.

The wet stuff may have dampened the spirits of some holiday celebrants, but it meant an end to the cold spell which had brought freezing night temperatures throughout the county most of this week.

Woodacre reported the most rain in the county up to 8 a.m., .25 of an inch. Low temperature there, meanwhile, was 36 degrees, compared with 20 yesterday.

Fire Kills Eight In New Jersey

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) —A "suspicious" Christmas Eve fire raced through a third-floor apartment early today, killing eight persons, six of them in one family.

The flash fire snuffed out three generations of one family. Twenty other persons were forced out into 35-degree temperatures.

Firemen were hampered by two other blazes which broke out in the immediate neighborhood shortly after the first fire was reported.

The first report came at 2:10 a.m. EST.

The Newark Fire Department Arson Squad headed by Capt. Joseph O'Brien began an immediate investigation.

"This is a suspicious fire," O'Brien said. "We're investigating the definite possibility of arson."

The dead were identified as Mrs. Gracie Basile, 50; her sons, Thomas, 19, Victor, 21, and Ralph, 23; his infant son, and a daughter of Mrs. Basile's, Margaret, 16. Also killed in the fire were Mrs. Marie Melinda, 23, an expectant mother, and her brother, Felix Fernandez, 21.

Firemen reported all of the bodies were found on the top floor of the three-floor frame building.

At least a score of residents of the frame apartment building escaped.

One Of Most Wanted Captured

BOSTON (UPI) — Bank robber James Edward Kennedy, one of the FBI's 10 most wanted, was captured at Worcester, Mass., last night after a wild car duel and close-range gunfight.

Kennedy

Kennedy, 28, and a companion, Paul V. Davis, 26, of Worcester, surrendered after Kennedy's arm was nicked in the battle with the FBI and Worcester police. Both men were brought to Boston for arraignment today.

Kennedy, who escaped from the Cuyahoga County Jail in Cleveland last year, was the second of the FBI's most wanted men to be captured Thursday. Allen Wade Haugsted, 34, a baker sought in the killings of his wife and mother-in-law, was arrested by the FBI in Houston, Tex.

Kennedy was serving a 20-year term in the Marion, Ill., Federal Penitentiary in November 1964 when he was taken to the Cuyahoga County Jail for trial on another charge. On Nov. 10, he and four other inmates sawed their way through the bars, then slid four stories to the ground on ropes made of bedsheets.

Better Christmas For Amputee

VAN NUYS (AP)—Ronnie Baker wasn't making any plans last Christmas. This year he is.

Last December doctors told Ronnie he'd die if they didn't amputate his cancerous left leg. Rather than face the operation, Ronnie, 16, ran away from home.

Ronnie

He got as far as Flagstaff, Ariz., changed his mind, came home, and, last New Year's Eve, underwent the operation.

It was a success. Ronnie, fitted with a prosthetic leg, can walk, climb stairs, drive a car, and hold a part-time job as a painter. He has gained 30 pounds since his operation.

Doctors feel sure they eradicated all the cancer when they amputated Ronnie's leg above the knee, although they say it'll be years before they're positive. Ronnie undergoes periodic checks at a clinic.

MOCKERS SHAMED

Coptic Writing Tells Of Jesus, Last Day

CHICAGO (AP)—Jesus Christ will bring His cross to the last judgment to reveal the shame of those who mocked Him and spit upon Him during his crucifixion, says an ancient Coptic prayer book discovered in Egypt.

The University of Chicago's Oriental Institute found the manuscript last month in a monk's cell of an abandoned Coptic monastery near the border of the Sudan, the university announced yesterday.

Written in the Coptic language, the book relates a dialogue between Christ and the apostle Peter on the Mount of Olives, four days before Christ's ascension to heaven.

Peter asks Christ to explain why He will bring the cross with Him on the day of Judgment.

"O my chosen one, Peter," Christ replies, "and you, my brethren (the apostles), you know the lies which were told against me on the cross, and the spitting at me. . .and the great contempt which was spoken against me. This is why I will bring the cross with Me, so that I may reveal their shame and shall put their sin upon their heads."

The university said the prayer book has two parts, and that in the second part Christ recites this hymn:

"Rise up, rise up, O holy cross,

"And lift Me O cross,

"I shall mount upon you, O cross,

"They shall hang me upon you as a witness to them.

"Receive Me to yourself, O cross.

"Amen.

"Do not weep, O cross

"But be joyful, O cross

"Amen.

"I have put on the crown of the kingdom. . ."

The waters of the Nile River, rising behind the new dam at Aswan, might soon have swept down on the old monastery and destroyed the thousand-year-old manuscript, reported George Scanlon of the Oriental Institute.

In making the announcement of the finding, the university said the prayer book apparently records an unpublished story from the oral history of Christianity. The Copts, early Christians, trace their roots to about 100 A.D.

West Half Of Nation Hit By Windy Snows And Rain

WEATHER
By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stormy, wet weather, with snow, rain and gusty winds, whipped across broad areas in the Western half of the nation today.

The pre-Christmas storm left heavy snow coverings in sections of the Rockies, in the northern Midwest and parts of Oklahoma. Colder air swept into snow-covered regions and temperatures dropped to below zero in parts of Montana, Idaho, Utah and Nevada.

The Weather Bureau reported a major winter storm which developed in the Oklahoma-Texas-northeastern New Mexico region spread northeastward into sections of Kansas and Nebraska. Heavy snow fell in Guymon, Okla., and strong winds caused much drifting. Visibility was reported near zero in parts of Cimarron County, Okla., Thursday night.

Snow or rain fell in most of the nation's midsection, the white covering in Northern areas and rain southward to the southern Plains and the Mississippi Valley.

Snow tapered off in Arizona where amounts on the ground measured 17 inches at Flagstaff. But snow continued in parts of New Mexico, Wyoming, Colorado, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Wisconsin and Iowa.

Rain-swollen rivers and melting snows from mountain areas sent floodwaters across sections of Arizona, forcing hundreds of persons from their homes. The swollen streams raced through a mining area of eastern Arizona, isolating the town of Kilvin.

Hazardous - driving warnings were in effect from New Mexico to Kansas and Nebraska because of glaze and snow-covered highways.

They're Yelling U.N.C.L.E. At United Nations

Popular Program Results In Calls Offering To Spy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—American television viewers are flooding the U.N. with inquiries about U.N.C.L.E. They think it's the espionage arm of the United Nations, and they want to enlist.

In recent months, the U.N.'s General Services Division has been deluged with letters and telephone calls from fans of the popular NBC program "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."

"It's the U.N. in the title that gets them," said Maurice Liu, director of the division. "And when they hear that bit of hokum that the show would not have been possible without the help of U.N.C.L.E., they are sure we are tied up with it."

MANY TEEN-AGERS

Napoleon Solo and Illya Kuriakin work for the U.N. Command for Law and Enforcement, but the U.N. stands for United Network, not United Nations.

"Most of the applications come from teen-agers," said Liu, "but there are some adults, too, and they are the hardest to convince that we are not running a spy ring.

"One guy was so intent on becoming a secret agent that we finally suggested that he get in touch with Interpol," the International Police organization. "I don't know what they told him."

The queries comes in from all over the country.

One youthful applicant from Silver City, N.C., asked if he could join the spy ranks before he was 21. He wanted to know the location of the U.N.C.L.E. branch nearest his hometown.

PHONE CALLS

"We get phone calls also," said Miss Alice V. R. Smith, chief of the public inquiries unit. "Most of them sound like youngsters, but occasionally a voice comes through that is unmistakably adult."

Liu and Miss Smith, working on the assumption that the applicants are sincere, send a courteous reply expressing regret that the United Nations is not acquainted with the activities of U.N.C.L.E. They usually add a discreet suggestion that the inquirer pursue the matter with NBC.

Several days ago the General Services Division got a Christmas card from a female admirer in St. Louis, Mo. It was addressed to the staff of U.N.C.L.E. and ended, "With love to Illya and Napoleon."

The U.N. staff has not decided whether to send holiday greetings in return.

"If they're saying bad things about us, then we must be doing the right thing."

CHRISTMAS IN VIET NAM

Star Shines On A Mountain Top; Coffins Silence Airport Throng

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Americans brought a little bit of home and a little bit of Christmas to war zones in Viet Nam today. But it was difficult. America's fighting men celebrated with a turkey leg in one hand and a rifle at the ready in the other. Instead of the snow and crisp cold of the United States, they had a tropical sun and dirt and dust. . . . and death. United Press International correspondents spread throughout the country to spend Christmas with the GI's. Here is their team report.)

U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The airport terminal at Da Nang was jammed. And it was noisy. In the crowd of Marines waiting to fly to Saigon, a couple of dozen transistor radios blared Christmas carols.

"Merry Christmas, lardhead," one beefy sergeant yelled.

"And a slap-happy one to you, too," his buddy yelled back. Both were full of cheer.

Just, then, five vans drove up to the terminal. Quickly, efficiently, almost deliberately, the men in the trucks got out, walked briskly around back and opened the doors.

"What's that?" one of the celebrating servicemen asked.

He pointed at the first of the pine boxes being taken from the vans and stacked on the airport runway in the blazing sun. The boxes were waiting for the plane, too.

The Americans in the terminal turned and looked at the boxes, 25 of them in all. One by one, the Marines clicked off the radios, and the Christmas music died in the building. The happy din of holiday travelers jabbering about celebrations to come lapsed into silence.

Elsewhere around the country, the grimness of the war was being shucked off for a few hours, or for a day. Some military men celebrated Christmas today because they will be on duty tomorrow in defensive the Viet Cong pulls a double-cross and violates its announced 12-hour cease fire from 7 p.m. Christmas Eve until 7 a.m. Christmas Day. The Americans and South Vietnamese have pledged not to fire except in self defense for 30 hours starting at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Hundreds of thousands of cards and letters were read by soldiers in the field, from families and friends and from people who just wrote to "My friend, a soldier in Viet Nam."

Like the one from George W. Mullins, a 6th grade student at St. Mary's Mission parochial school, Balboa, Canal Zone. It was sent to a sailor in the 7th fleet.

"I hope you have a chance to have a very happy Christmas and a happy new year and a very good Christmas dinner," George wrote.

"We here in the Canal Zone sure appreciate what you and the rest of the fellows are doing for ous (sic) over there.

"You should know Garry Jones, who is in the Navy over there too. Please tell him to send me a letter . . . I would be verry (sic) happy to hear from you and write you some more. Joke: What's round and high in the middle. It is Ohio. Please send the name of your ship. Good luck, George Mullins III."

Hundreds of thousands of letters like this were sent to the servicemen in Viet Nam.

The flood of mail has made things difficult for Sgt. Jacob H. Deavors, 55, of Pixley, California. He is superintendent of Detachment 19 of the Ninth Aero Post Office in Saigon.

"My guys have been working from early morning until late at night," he said. "People just hand us a sandwich. The mail is still stacked up, and we'll be sorting it and sending it out all night, I guess. We've handled literally thousands of letters and packages in the past few days."

Throughout the land, Marines, airmen, soldiers and in some cases sailors shared their Christmas with the Vietnamese. In almost every section of the country, American units have adopted nearby orphanages.

In Vung Tau, for instance, members of three U.S. Army air mobile companies, the 73rd, 61st and 54th Aviation Companies, made a merry-go-round out an Army helicopter shaft and gave it to the orphanage run by Sister Camille, 75, the mother superior of Bethenie Institute.

Then about 50 of the men went to the school with cookies and cakes and candy and gave the kids a party. They sang songs and danced.

"They're great," said one of the American sergeants. "You just want to pick them up and carry them home."

One of the more unusual yuletide displays in Viet Nam is on a mountaintop. To the west of the U.S. Army's First Air Calvary Division camp at An Khe is a high jungle covered hill called Hon Cong Mountain.

The cavalrymen cut the top off and set in a helipad for an observation post. It gave the men of the Eighth Engineer Battalion an idea. They constructed a huge 12-foot diameter star, studded it with lights and lowered it in place with a giant Chinook helicopter.

Last night the star blazed from the hilltop like a star on the top of a giant Christmas tree. Loudspeakers wafted Christmas carols throughout the sprawling tent city compound in the highlands where the 15,000 men of the division live.

Actual Christmas trees are impossible to find in Viet Nam.

Lt. Joseph Beeman of Philadelphia, Pa., wrote home several weeks ago and told his father, Archibald Beeman, about it.

So his father wrapped up a 12-foot high Canadian spruce and air-mailed it. The postage came to $174. But it was flown around the world and once in Viet Nam the Red Cross helped get it to the cavalry officer still alive and fresh. It has been set up in the Officers Club of the Second Battalion, 12th Cavalry.

Havana Using Women Police

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Traffic violators will not only have to contend with women traffic cops in Havana, but apparently with well prepared ones at that.

According to Havana radio last night, a group of 170 women received diplomas as traffic cops after six months of training.

The training, according to the broadcast monitored here, specialized in traffic problems, practice police work, criminology, socialist law, gymnastics, and army infantry tactics.

Fire Kills Eight In New Jersey

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) —A "suspicious" Christmas Eve fire raced through a third-floor apartment early today, killing eight persons, six of them in one family.

The flash fire snuffed out three generations of one family. Twenty other persons were forced out into 35-degree temperatures.

Firemen were hampered by two other blazes which broke out in the immediate neighborhood shortly after the first fire was reported.

The first report came at 2:10 a.m. EST.

The Newark Fire Department Arson Squad headed by Capt. Joseph O'Brien began an immediate investigation.

"This is a suspicious fire," O'Brien said. "We're investigating the definite possibility of arson."

The dead were identified as Mrs. Gracie Basile, 50; her sons, Thomas, 19, Victor, 21, and Ralph, 23; his infant son, and a daughter of Mrs. Basile's, Margaret, 16. Also killed in the fire were Mrs. Marie Melinda, 23, an expectant mother, and her brother, Felix Fernandez, 21.

Firemen reported all of the bodies were found on the top floor of the three-floor frame building.

At least a score of residents of the frame apartment building escaped.

MOCKERS SHAMED

Coptic Writing Tells Of Jesus, Last Day

CHICAGO (AP)—Jesus Christ will bring His cross to the last judgment to reveal the shame of those who mocked Him and spit upon Him during his crucifixion, says an ancient Coptic prayer book discovered in Egypt.

The University of Chicago's Oriental Institute found the manuscript last month in a monk's cell of an abandoned Coptic monastery near the border of the Sudan, the university announced yesterday.

Written in the Coptic language, the book relates a dialogue between Christ and the apostle Peter on the Mount of Olives, four days before Christ's ascension to heaven.

Peter asks Christ to explain why He will bring the cross with Him on the day of Judgment.

'O my chosen one, Peter," Christ replies, "and you, my brethren (the apostles), you know the lies which were told against me on the cross, and the spitting at me. . .and the great contempt which was spoken against me. This is why I will bring the cross with Me, so that I may reveal their shame and shall put their sin upon their heads."

The university said the prayer book has two parts, and that in the second part Christ recites this hymn:

"Rise up, rise up, O holy cross,

"And lift Me O cross,

"I shall mount upon you, O cross,

"They shall hang me upon you as a witness to them.

"Receive Me to yourself, O cross.

"Amen.

"Do not weep, O cross

"But be joyful, O cross

"Amen.

"I have put on the crown of the kingdom. . ."

The waters of the Nile River, rising behind the new dam at Aswan, might soon have swept down on the old monastery and destroyed the thousand-year-old manuscript, reported George Scanlon of the Oriental Institute.

In making the announcement of the finding, the university said the prayer book apparently records an unpublished story from the oral history of Christianity. The Copts, early Christians, trace their roots to about 100 A.D.

GRAPE PICKER PICKETS IN SAN RAFAEL

Marin Friends of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee picketed late yesterday in front of Paul's Liquors on Tamalpais Avenus in San Rafael—not against the store but against Schenley Distillers, owners of vineyards near Delano against which unionized grape pickers are striking. Paul's, local distributor for Schenley, removed Schenley wine brands from the shelves in deference to the protest. Carrying the signs are (from left) Archibald D. Gillis of Mill Valley, Mrs. Frances Lowry of Tiburon, and Mrs. Donald McCoy and husband of Tiburon.

CHRISTMAS IN VIET NAM

Star Shines On A Mountain Top; Coffins Silence Airport Throng

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Americans brought a little bit of home and a little bit of Christmas to war zones in Viet Nam today. But it was difficult. America's fighting men celebrated with a turkey leg in one hand and a rifle at the ready in the other. Instead of the snow and crisp cold of the United States, they had a tropical sun and dirt and dust. . . . and death. United Press International correspondents spread throughout the country to spend Christmas with the GI's. Here is their team report.)

U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The airport terminal at Da Nang was jammed. And it was noisy. In the crowd of Marines waiting to fly to Saigon, a couple of dozen transistor radios blared Christmas carols.

"Merry Christmas, lardhead," one beefy sergeant yelled.

"And a slap-happy one to you, too," his buddy yelled back. Both were full of cheer.

Just, then, five vans drove up to the terminal. Quickly, efficiently, almost deliberately, the men in the trucks got out, walked briskly around back and opened the doors.

"What's that?" one of the celebrating servicemen asked.

He pointed at the first of the pine boxes being taken from the vans and stacked on the airport runway in the blazing sun. The boxes were waiting for the plane, too.

The Americans in the terminal turned and looked at the boxes, 25 of them in all. One by one, the Marines clicked off the radios, and the Christmas music died in the building. The happy din of holiday travelers jabbering about celebrations to come lapsed into silence.

Elsewhere around the country, the grimness of the war was being shucked off for a few hours, or for a day. Some military men celebrated Christmas today because they will be on duty tomorrow in defensive the Viet Cong pulls a double-cross and violates its announced 12-hour cease fire from 7 p.m. Christmas Eve until 7 a.m. Christmas Day. The Americans and South Vietnamese have pledged not to fire except in self defense for 30 hours starting at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Hundreds of thousands of cards and letters were read by soldiers in the field, from families and friends and from people who just wrote to "My friend, a soldier in Viet Nam."

Like the one from George W. Mullins, a 6th grade student at St. Mary's Mission parochial school, Balboa, Canal Zone. It was sent to a sailor in the 7th fleet.

"I hope you have a chance to have a very happy Christmas and a happy new year and a very good Christmas dinner," George wrote.

"We here in the Canal Zone sure appreciate what you and the rest of the fellows are doing for ous (sic) over there.

"You should know Garry Jones, who is in the Navy over there too. Please tell him to send me a letter . . . I would be verry (sic) happy to hear from you and write you some more. Joke: What's round and high in the middle. It is Ohio. Please send the name of your ship. Good luck, George Mullins III."

Hundreds of thousands of letters like this were sent to the servicemen in Viet Nam.

The flood of mail has made things difficult for Sgt. Jacob H. Deavors, 55, of Pixley, California. He is superintendent of Detachment 19 of the Ninth Aero Post Office in Saigon.

"My guys have been working from early morning until late at night," he said. "People just hand us a sandwich. The mail is still stacked up, and we'll be sorting it and sending it out all night, I guess. We've handled literally thousands of letters and packages in the past few days."

Throughout the land, Marines, airmen, soldiers and in some cases sailors shared their Christmas with the Vietnamese. In almost every section of the country, American units have adopted nearby orphanages.

In Vung Tau, for instance, members of three U.S. Army air mobile companies, the 73rd, 61st and 54th Aviation Companies, made a merry-go-round out an Army helicopter shaft and gave it to the orphanage run by Sister Camille, 75, the mother superior of Bethenie Institute.

Then about 50 of the men went to the school with cookies and cakes and candy and gave the kids a party. They sang songs and danced.

"They're great," said one of the American sergeants. "You just want to pick them up and carry them home."

One of the more unusual yuletide displays in Viet Nam is on a mountaintop. To the west of the U.S. Army's First Air Calvary Division camp at An Khe is a high jungle covered hill called Hon Cong Mountain.

The cavalrymen cut the top off and set in a helipad for an observation post. It gave the men of the Eighth Engineer Battalion an idea. They constructed a huge 12-foot diameter star, studded it with lights and lowered it in place with a giant Chinook helicopter.

Last night the star blazed from the hilltop like a star on the top of a giant Christmas tree. Loudspeakers wafted Christmas carols throughout the sprawling tent city compound in the highlands where the 15,000 men of the division live.

Actual Christmas trees are impossible to find in Viet Nam.

Lt. Joseph Beeman of Philadelphia, Pa., wrote home several weeks ago and told his father, Archibald Beeman, about it.

So his father wrapped up a 12-foot high Canadian spruce and air-mailed it. The postage came to $174. But it was flown around the world and once in Viet Nam the Red Cross helped get it to the cavalry officer still alive and fresh. It has been set up in the Officers Club of the Second Battalion, 12th Cavalry.

Havana Using Women Police

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Traffic violators will not only have to contend with women traffic cops in Havana, but apparently with well prepared ones at that.

According to Havana radio last night, a group of 170 women received diplomas as traffic cops after six months of training.

The training, according to the broadcast monitored here, specialized in traffic problems, practice police work, criminology, socialist law, gymnastics, and army infantry tactics.

More than $1,000 vanished from the safe of the Terrible Herbst gasoline station at 400 Red Hill Avenue, San Anselmo, John H. Kerley of Bakersfield, manager of the Terrible Herbst chain of service stations, reported to San Anselmo police yesterday.

Kerley told police he was called to the station Wednesday by a gasoline truck driver who arrived and found the station locked. Kerley said he broke in through a back window and found the office safe open and empty.

Temporary manager of the station, Charles K. Thompson of 1364 Grand Avenue, Apt. 7, San Rafael, told police he locked his keys in the station the night before and did not open it Wednesday because he had no extra kay.

Police found no sign of forced entry except where Kerley said he let himself in. Readings of the station pumps indicated receipts of $1,062.08 should be in the safe, police said.

Prison Inmates Will Cheer Sick Children With Gifts

Stone walls cannot imprison the Christmas spirit.

A very sick little girl in Hayward and 27 children in San Francisco General Hospital will have evidence of that tomorrow morning.

Among their gifts will be toys and other hand-crafted products made wiithin the walls of San Quentin by the inmates.

Twenty-seven model cars, made by inmates who belong to a model car club within the prison, will be taken by a volunteer this evening to San Francisco General Hospital, to be distributed to children there.

An employee will haul a variety of prison-made toys and handcraft products to Hayward for the Christmas of 7-year-old Laurie Ramirez.

Both projects were the inmates' own ideas.

The project to provide Christmas gifts for Laurie was started three months ago by a dozen prisoners who belong to a religious discussion group. They were told the girl was incurably ill, and vowed to brighten her last Christmas.

Their own Christmas was brightened yesterday with word that Laurie's illness has been diagnosed and she can be cured.

That, according to Associate Warden James W. Park, spurred the prisoners to greater efforts for the Hayward girl.

"They were even more dedicated to the project when they learned that Laurie would have an opportunity to live and enjoy their gifts," he said.

The drab prison cells will be a little brighter tomorrow with the glow of the spirit of Christmas giving.

Grants Pass, Medford and Ashland took the injured to hospitals in surrounding communities. Private cars and taxis helped out.

A spokesman at the Rogue Valley Memorial Hospital reported that 18 to 20 injured had arrived from the crash. The Sacred Heart Hospital in Medford and the Josephine General at Grants Pass reported 11 more injured.

Among the injured at Sacred Heart was driver Joseph Bailey of Battleground, Wash. The extent of his injuries were not revealed, pending X-ray.

Police said the accident was the worst of a chain of some 40 mishaps that occurred on the "black ice," created when rain falls and partially freezes on the highway.

State Patrol Officer Charles Conway said that when he arrived shortly before 1 a.m. "injured were lying in the bus, outside the bus and on the highway. Ambulances were taking them away as fast as they could."

"The civil defense had set up a spotlight and the beam cut through the rain. This was really a nasty one—the worst traffic accident I ever saw. In fact, it looked more like a plane crash."

Bailey told state police he was traveling about 45 miles per hour when, without warning, the bus began to skid. He attempted to correct the skid, he said, but the steering did not respond, then the bus went off the highway and rolled over.

Here is the list of the dead on the bus:

Mrs. Lynton C. Spink, Longview, Wash.

Donald McGrath, Astoria, Ore.

Alfred C. Villagomez, Daly City, Calif.

Albert A. Lewis, Rolling Hills, Calif.

Sharon Lee Barton, St. Helens, Ore.

Albert P. James, San Francisco.

Jerry Dimbat, 17, 611 Meadow Lane, Concord, Calif

Five unidentified women.

The injured include the following Californians:

Orville John, 9695 El Camino Real, Atascadero, treated and released.

Robert Moore, 21, 3420 Duke St., Claremont, a Coastguardman, fair condition at Josephine General Hospital, Grants Pass.

Charles Marloe, Oroville, treated and released.

Robin Cox, 1735 Vinet St., Berkeley, satisfactory condition at Rogue Valley Hospital, Medford.

Two Residents Report Thefts

Two residents of an apartment house at 21 First Avenue, Corte Madera, complained to police yesterday that someone entered their rooms, taking $75 from one and a $14 traveling case from the other.

Both James C. Warren, who lost the money, and John M. Williams said the thefts occurred sometime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

was confined only to a prohibition against initiating any new offensive actions. Disengagements from conflict or defense against any obvious threat were clearly within the discretion of field commanders obliged to protect and preserve their men.

All branches of the Allied forces were keyed up, however, to observe what happens at the end of the Viet Cong moratorium while the American truce still was to be in effect for another 17 hours.

U.S. officials in Washington expected the truce to hold for the first 12 hours. They hoped the Communists would prolong it until Christmas midnight. But they believed the war would resume in full violence after that.

Thief Erases Merry Christmas

A burglar yesterday took the spirit out of Christmas for a San Rafael resident.

He entered the home of Sharon Ann Ramerino at 25A Warner Court, and removed all the Christmas presents from under the tree.

Taken, according to San Rafael police, were an $85 handknitted Italian sweater, four pairs of slacks worth $40, two decanters of wine, and gifts, now unknown, from friends left under the tree.

Police said the thief entered between 2:30 and 11:30 p.m., but added there was no sign a door or window had been forced open.

But the 5-year-old sister of the infant didn't like this idea and she chased after the President, tugging at his trouser leg.

"If that's the way you feel about it..." exclaimed Johnson with mock seriousness, then handed the baby back to the mother, the wife of the Rev. Carl Taylor, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Nearly one in every six inhabitants of Johnson City—population 611—was on hand for the occasion.

When the singers had completed their concert, the Johnsons heard the Rev. Mr. Taylor announce:

"Merry Christmas to the presidential family from all of us in Johnson City."

Mrs. Johnson rose from the porch swing and, clapping her hands, said: "Oh, we thank you. That was so lovely."

Within minutes, Mrs. Johnson announced that hot chocolate and cookies would be served to everyone. Luci began pouring the chocolate and the First Lady made her way through the group with cookie trays. Lynda passed a holiday - decorated wicker basket filled with candies.

Fire In Mail Box Is Believed Set

Fire, believed to have been deliberately set, broke out in a U.S. mail box at Santa Rosa and Bulkley avenues in Sausalito, burning a mail bag inside the box but not damaging three Christmas letters inside the bag.

Sausalito fire chief Charles E. Masten said the fire at 6:35 p.m. yesterday was possibly caused by a cigarette butt. The letters were the only contents of the bag, he said.

Body Found Dead In Parked Car

The body of Gerald Conrad Ellis, 45, a retired technical sergeant from the Air Force who recently moved to Marin from Indiana, was found in his car at 8:51 p.m. yesterday.

The engine was turned on and a hose from the exhaust had been stuck through the left rear window.

The car was parked near the San Rafael Police pistol range at Irene and Madera streets. It was discovered by Edmund Henry of 515 D Street, San Rafael. He called police, who in turn called the fire department for a resuscitator, but Ellis was dead.

In the car with Ellis, who lived at 1306 Leafwood Drive, Apt. 8, Novato, were a note to his wife and a shotgun and shells. The gun had not been recently fired, police said. Ellis' wife, Audrey, told police her husband often became depressed when he drank.

A native of Nebraska, Ellis is survived by his wife; five sons, Paul Ellis of Fort Knox, Ky., and John, Robert, Richard and Bradley Ellis of San Rafael; his mother, Mrs. Christine Ellis of Santa Clara, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Henningsen of Santa Clara.

Elizabeth Stuart, 30, of 6 Magdalena Court, Mill Valley, suffered bruised legs and a cut forehead when the car in which she was a passenger crashed into the rear of another on highway 101 at 2:45 a.m. today, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said her husband, Robert A. Stuart, 33, was southbound, just south of the Corte Madera interchange, when he moved from the middle lane to the slow lane and struck a car driven by Annabelle Bettencourt, 34, of Half Moon Bay, who was backing up. Mrs. Stuart was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Greenbrae Youngster Injured In Collision

Dixon Bradford Giles, 13, of 5 Corte Toluma, Greenbrae, suffered a bruised lip and nose at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday when the bicycle he was riding ran into a car on the entrance road of Greenbrae Lanes, 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said the boy was northbound in the wrong lane when he hit an oncoming car driven by Joseph O. Kenney, 47, of 311 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, and was thrown to the pavement. He was treated by the family physician.

Prison Inmates Will Cheer Sick Children With Gifts

Stone walls cannot imprison the Christmas spirit.

A very sick little girl in Hayward and 27 children in San Francisco General Hospital will have evidence of that tomorrow morning.

Among their gifts will be toys and other hand-crafted products made wiithin the walls of San Quentin by the inmates.

Twenty-seven model cars, made by inmates who belong to a model car club within the prison, will be taken by a volunteer this evening to San Francisco General Hospital, to be distributed to children there.

An employee will haul a variety of prison-made toys and handcraft products to Hayward for the Christmas of 7-year-old Laurie Ramirez.

Both projects were the inmates' own ideas.

The project to provide Christmas gifts for Laurie was started three months ago by a dozen prisoners who belong to a religious discussion group. They were told the girl was incurably ill, and vowed to brighten her last Christmas.

Their own Christmas was brightened yesterday with word that Laurie's illness has been diagnosed and she can be cured.

That, according to Associate Warden James W. Park, spurred the prisoners to greater efforts for the Hayward girl.

"They were even more dedicated to the project when they learned that Laurie would have an opportunity to live and enjoy their gifts," he said.

The drab prison cells will be a little brighter tomorrow with the glow of the spirit of Christmas giving.

Grants Pass, Medford and Ashland took the injured to hospitals in surrounding communities. Private cars and taxis helped out.

A spokesman at the Rogue Valley Memorial Hospital reported that 18 to 20 injured had arrived from the crash. The Sacred Heart Hospital in Medford and the Josephine General at Grants Pass reported 11 more injured.

Among the injured at Sacred Heart was driver Joseph Bailey of Battleground, Wash. The extent of his injuries were not revealed, pending X-ray.

Police said the accident was the worst of a chain of some 40 mishaps that occurred on the "black ice," created when rain falls and partially freezes on the highway.

State Patrol Officer Charles Conway said that when he arrived shortly before 1 a.m. "injured were lying in the bus, outside the bus and on the highway. Ambulances were taking them away as fast as they could."

"The civil defense had set up a spotlight and the beam cut through the rain. This was really a nasty one—the worst traffic accident I ever saw. In fact, it looked more like a plane crash."

Bailey told state police he was traveling about 45 miles per hour when, without warning, the bus began to skid. He attempted to correct the skid, he said, but the steering did not respond, then the bus went off the highway and rolled over.

Here is the list of the dead on the bus:

Mrs. Lynton C. Spink, Longview, Wash.

Donald McGrath, Astoria, Ore.

Alfred C. Villagomez, Daly City, Calif.

Albert A. Lewis, Rolling Hills, Calif.

Sharon Lee Barton, St. Helens, Ore.

Albert P. James, San Francisco.

Jerry Dimbat, 17, 611 Meadow Lane, Concord, Calif

Five unidentified women.

The injured include the following Californians:

Orville John, 9695 El Camino Real, Atascadero, treated and released.

Robert Moore, 21, 3420 Duke St., Claremont, a Coastguardman, fair condition at Josephine General Hospital, Grants Pass.

Charles Marloe, Oroville, treated and released.

Robin Cox, 1735 Vinet St., Berkeley, satisfactory condition at Rogue Valley Hospital, Medford.

Two Residents Report Thefts

Two residents of an apartment house at 21 First Avenue, Corte Madera, complained to police yesterday that someone entered their rooms, taking $75 from one and a $14 traveling case from the other.

Both James C. Warren, who lost the money, and John M. Williams said the thefts occurred sometime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

No Session

There was no meeting of the Marinwood Community Services District board last night as announced in yesterday's Independent-Journal. This month's meeting is to be held next Thursday.

was confined only to a prohibition against initiating any new offensive actions. Disengagements from conflict or defense against any obvious threat were clearly within the discretion of field commanders obliged to protect and preserve their men.

All branches of the Allied forces were keyed up, however, to observe what happens at the end of the Viet Cong moratorium while the American truce still was to be in effect for another 17 hours.

U.S. officials in Washington expected the truce to hold for the first 12 hours. They hoped the Communists would prolong it until Christmas midnight. But they believed the war would resume in full violence after that.

Thief Erases Merry Christmas

A burglar yesterday took the spirit out of Christmas for a San Rafael resident.

He entered the home of Sharon Ann Ramerino at 25A Warner Court, and removed all the Christmas presents from under the tree.

Taken, according to San Rafael police, were an $85 handknitted Italian sweater, four pairs of slacks worth $40, two decanters of wine, and gifts, now unknown, from friends left under the tree.

Police said the thief entered between 2:30 and 11:30 p.m., but added there was no sign a door or window had been forced open.

he was going to carry her away in his waiting sedan.

But the 5-year-old sister of the infant didn't like this idea and she chased after the President, tugging at his trouser leg.

"If that's the way you feel about it..." exclaimed Johnson with mock seriousness, then handed the baby back to the mother, the wife of the Rev. Carl Taylor, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Nearly one in every six inhabitants of Johnson City—population 611—was on hand for the occasion.

When the singers had completed their concert, the Johnsons heard the Rev. Mr. Taylor announce:

"Merry Christmas to the presidential family from all of us in Johnson City."

Mrs. Johnson rose from the porch swing and, clapping her hands, said: "Oh, we thank you. That was so lovely."

Within minutes, Mrs. Johnson announced that hot chocolate and cookies would be served to everyone. Luci began pouring the chocolate and the First Lady made her way through the group with cookie trays. Lynda passed a holiday - decorated wicker basket filled with candies.

Fire In Mail Box Is Believed Set

Fire, believed to have been deliberately set, broke out in a U.S. mail box at Santa Rosa and Bulkley avenues in Sausalito, burning a mail bag inside the box but not damaging three Christmas letters inside the bag.

Sausalito fire chief Charles E. Masten said the fire at 6:35 p.m. yesterday was possibly caused by a cigarette butt. The letters were the only contents of the bag, he said.

Body Found Dead In Parked Car

The body of Gerald Conrad Ellis, 45, a retired technical sergeant from the Air Force who recently moved to Marin from Indiana, was found in his car at 8:51 p.m. yesterday.

The engine was turned on and a hose from the exhaust had been stuck through the left rear window.

The car was parked near the San Rafael Police pistol range at Irene and Madera streets. It was discovered by Edmund Henry of 515 D Street, San Rafael. He called police, who in turn called the fire department for a resuscitator, but Ellis was dead.

In the car with Ellis, who lived at 1306 Leafwood Drive, Apt. 8, Novato, were a note to his wife and a shotgun and shells. The gun had not been recently fired, police said. Ellis' wife, Audrey, told police her husband often became depressed when he drank.

A native of Nebraska, Ellis is survived by his wife; five sons, Paul Ellis of Fort Knox, Ky., and John, Robert, Richard and Bradley Ellis of San Rafael; his mother, Mrs. Christine Ellis of Santa Clara, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Henningsen of Santa Clara.

Funeral arrangements and autopsy were pending today at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

Yule Decoration Prizes Awarded

George W. Sumers Jr. of 3 Capilano Drive, Novato, won first prize of a silver chafing dish and tray for the most creative home decorations in judging last night by the Women's Garden club of the Marin Country Club.

This was the second year in which he had won the first prize.

Prize of an electric warming tray for the most originality went to Joseph de Maestri of 50 Fairway Drive, Novato. Prize of a dozen golf balls, for the most extensive decorations, went to Herbert Prodger of 33 Eagle Drive, Novato.

The prizes will be awarded at a dinner dance on Jan. 8 of the Marin Golf and Country Club Homeowners Assn. at the Marin Country Club.

Rear-End Crash Causes Bruises

Elizabeth Stuart, 30, of 6 Magdalena Court, Mill Valley, suffered bruised legs and a cut forehead when the car in which she was a passenger crashed into the rear of another on highway 101 at 2:45 a.m. today, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said her husband, Robert A. Stuart, 33, was southbound, just south of the Corte Madera interchange, when he moved from the middle lane to the slow lane and struck a car driven by Annabelle Bettencourt, 34, of Half Moon Bay, who was backing up. Mrs. Stuart was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Greenbrae Youngster Injured In Collision

Dixon Bradford Giles, 13, of 5 Corte Toluma, Greenbrae, suffered a bruised lip and nose at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday when the bicycle he was riding ran into a car on the entrance road of Greenbrae Lanes, 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said the boy was northbound in the wrong lane when he hit an oncoming car driven by Joseph O. Kenney, 47, of 311 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, and was thrown to the pavement. He was treated by the family physician.

Christmas Tree Lights Are Stolen

About two dozen colored lights that decorated an outdoor Christmas tree in Kentfield were stolen by vandals last night.

Mrs. Grover J. Ahrens of 13 Laurel Grove Avenue said the theft occurred between 8:30 and 10:30 p.m.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Of King Cotton In San Rafael Story Making Rounds Of Sale

There's a persistent rumor making the rounds that King Cotton, San Rafael, will be taken over by James Bigelow et al of Sam's Anchor Cafe in Tiburon.

All signs point to this as having its basis in fact — at least lease negotiations are in progress as a result of the combined ministrations of C. D. (Cub) Redmond of Redmond Realty and Harry Abras of Timmer Realty. It's possible a meeting of the minds will bring about a reopening of the Francisco Boulevard drive-in by the second week of January.

In this event I'd say you can look for some of Sam's well known dishes to make their appearance at King Cotton — certainly Sam's big hamburger; possibly the eggs Benedict and whatever else chef Woody Frazier decides should go over well in San Rafael. He'll probably supervise the operation.

WE GAVE some holiday activities over Christmas and New Year's last week. More follows today and much of this I have been taking just as it comes in. There are bound to be some omissions, considering how many restaurants there are in the county—but I hope to get those next Friday.

THERE WILL BE plenty of dancing at the Ark in Sausalito New Year's Eve — both upstairs and downstairs. Champagne dinner that night $10 per person with all the usual favors. Gil Cardona will play on the lower deck. Upper deck will have recorded music or switch Gil's group into the stereo system. There's a good dance floor there and separate bar. Reservations advised.

ALIOTO'S ARBORDALE — Open both Christmas and New Year's Eve. Maggie Perkins at the piano.

ONDINE, Sausalito, closed yesterday and will not open again until Monday. Open New Year's Eve; closed New Year's Day and open the following Sunday.

THE SEVEN SEAS in Sausalito, serving lunches and dinners since last February, has expanded its menu lately—thanks to new chef Bill Crofut who grew up in the restaurant business. Paul and Della De Moss will be open here tomorrow for Christmas dinner — also New Year's Eve. Specializes in seafoods — but you can get a New York steak there, too.

EL BORRO, Tiburon—Closed tonight and tomorrow, but open both Sunday and Monday clear through New Year's Eve. Then it closes for an eight-day refurbishing period. New carpet and a few other things. Pedro Salas and his guitar may be there New Year's Eve.

KAPPIE'S in Tiburon is closed for vacation and renovating. Ernest and Rose Kaplan are taking a holiday in the southland and should be ready to reopen about Jan. 12.

I'VE ALREADY MENTIONED the gala New Year's Eve party planned at Tiburon Tommie's Mai Tai ($15 per person for everything, including dinner, libations, favors and dancing). Also open for Christmas dinner tomorrow. Make early reservations for New Year's.

GREGORY'S on Paradise Drive, Corte Madera — Closed tomorrow and Sunday and Monday, but open New Year's Eve with the regular menu. No change in prices.

LONDONER FISH AND CHIPS on Red Hill Avenue, San Anselmo has a service New Year's Eve for stay-at-home parties. Ted Wood will deliver minimum orders of eight or more servings up to 11 p.m. Fish and chips or other specialties. Call for details — the Londoner Fish and Chips on the Miralce Mile—not the restaurant in downtown San Anselmo.

Ted has received his wine and beer license and will now go ahead making arrangements for his pub here, taking over the premises next door. This should be open the 10th or 12th of January.

RUBINI'S in Fairfax is taking reservations for its annual New Year's Eve champagne party, but is closed after tonight until next Wednesday. That popular musical duo Lowell Hawk at the piano and Frank Stitt at the organ will provide the entertainment New Year's.

OAK TREE INN, San Geronimo (formerly De La Montaya's), recently taken over by Dee and Raymond Brunal, will be closed tomorrow—but open New Year's Eve. It's highly likely there will be music.

There's a new chef here — Carlo Givoni. That's an Italian name, but he was raised in France and learned that country's culinary secrets. Watch for new menu innovations.

BILL AND ADOLPH'S WEST END VILLA, San Rafael. Open Christmas and New Year's Eve. Not sure what New Year's entertainment there will be.

THE BLACK FOREST in downtown San Rafael is closing tomorrow and through all of next week, including New Year's. Meta and Bob Kringe are taking a holiday. Open again Monday, Jan. 3.

SHORTLY AFTER the first of the year the Civic Center Coffee Shop will probably start to serve dinners three nights a week — about Jan. 6 or 7. Exact plans are still undetermined, though you may have noticed the improvements here. There will be a new name for the place — Taverna Yasou. Idea is to serve Greek gourmet dinners Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Meanwhile it's still on a daytime schedule. Plans called for it to feature "Greek Fling" champagne cocktails today and next Friday until closing time.

MARIO BRENTA is turning the big banquet room at Dominic's, San Rafael, into a regular night club New Year's Eve.

Price of $17 per couple includes complimentary hors d'oeuvres from 8 to 9 p.m., de luxe dinner and a bottle of wine for every four people. Dancing from 9 to 1 to the music of the five-piece Marin County Rhythmaires. Make arrangements for tickets ahead of time.

LA PETITE AUBERGE, San Rafael, is closed tomorrow through Monday. Open New Year's Eve — but all booked up from 9 p.m. through the midnight hour. Early dinner period closes by 9 p.m. Closed New Year's Day.

LE CHALET BASQUE, Santa Venetia — open tomorrow and Sunday as usual. Closed Monday. Open New Year's Eve, New Year's Day and Sunday. Regular dinner menu.

SAN RAFAEL JOE'S is open tonight and definitely will be open New Year's Eve, with Jean Denning at the organ and other entertainment, but Hector and Nancy Rubini and Guido and Teresa Farina and staff will get four holidays this season. Closing tomorrow and Sunday and also Saturday and Sunday next weekend.

NERO'S ROOM, Ignacio, will have its regular New Year's Eve affair with Frank Kelly and group playing for dancing in the atrium and champagne dinner from 9 p.m. (Make reservations.) Regular menu before 8:30. Closed tomorrow but open Sunday and New Year's Day and the following Sunday.

CLOUD 5, Novato — closed tomorrow and Sunday, but open New Year's Eve when activities center in the Cloud Room upstairs. Dance music furnished by Ruth Overly at the organ and Don Flash on drums. Probably closed New Year's Day — the restaurant, anyway.

THE HILLTOP, Novato, is closed tonight and tomorrow. New Year's Eve there's a champagne dinner from 9 p.m. Regular menu served up to that time. Dancing from 9 p.m.

About Feb. 5, the Hilltop will close its food facilities, do some remodeling and make this strictly a music, dance and cocktail place on weekends with live music, utilizing the large dining area.

THE LODGE, Novato, is closed tomorrow except for the coffee shop (open about six hours). Big plans for New Year's Eve.

Tino Granucci's Orchestra will play in the upstairs banquet room where steak and champagne dinners will be served from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. with all the favors. Regular menu will be served downstairs and music will be furnished here by Gordon Tucker and a new organ should be installed by then — and Von Marchand at the piano. Von plays regularly Wednesday and Thursday nights and Sundays from 4 p.m. Gordon usually plays the rest of the week.

SPIROS' RED VEST, Novato —closed tomorrow and Sunday and possibly Saturday and Sunday of next week. Sometime between these closings you should drop by for a glimpse of the "upside-down Christmas tree" over the piano bar.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Of King Cotton In San Rafael Story Making Rounds Of Sale

There's a persistent rumor making the rounds that King Cotton, San Rafael, will be taken over by James Bigelow et al of Sam's Anchor Cafe in Tiburon.

All signs point to this as having its basis in fact — at least lease negotiations are in progress as a result of the combined ministrations of C. D. (Cub) Redmond of Redmond Realty and Harry Abras of Timmer Realty. It's possible a meeting of the minds will bring about a reopening of the Francisco Boulevard drive-in by the second week of January.

In this event I'd say you can look for some of Sam's well known dishes to make their appearance at King Cotton — certainly Sam's big hamburger; possibly the eggs Benedict and whatever else chef Woody Frazier decides should go over well in San Rafael. He'll probably supervise the operation.

WE GAVE some holiday activities over Christmas and New Year's last week. More follows today and much of this I have been taking just as it comes in. There are bound to be some omissions, considering how many restaurants there are in the county—but I hope to get those next Friday.

THERE WILL BE plenty of dancing at the Ark in Sausalito New Year's Eve — both upstairs and downstairs. Champagne dinner that night $10 per person with all the usual favors. Gil Cardona will play on the lower deck. Upper deck will have recorded music or switch Gil's group into the stereo system. There's a good dance floor there and separate bar. Reservations advised.

ALIOTO'S ARBORDALE — Open both Christmas and New Year's Eve. Maggie Perkins at the piano.

ONDINE, Sausalito, closed yesterday and will not open again until Monday. Open New Year's Eve; closed New Year's Day and open the following Sunday.

THE SEVEN SEAS in Sausalito, serving lunches and dinners since last February, has expanded its menu lately—thanks to new chef Bill Crofut who grew up in the restaurant business. Paul and Della De Moss will be open here tomorrow for Christmas dinner — also New Year's Eve. Specializes in seafoods — but you can get a New York steak there, too.

EL BORRO, Tiburon—Closed tonight and tomorrow, but open both Sunday and Monday clear through New Year's Eve. Then it closes for an eight-day refurbishing period. New carpet and a few other things. Pedro Salas and his guitar may be there New Year's Eve.

KAPPIE'S in Tiburon is closed for vacation and renovating. Ernest and Rose Kaplan are taking a holiday in the southland and should be ready to reopen about Jan. 12.

I'VE ALREADY MENTIONED the gala New Year's Eve party planned at Tiburon Tommie's Mai Tai ($15 per person for everything, including dinner, libations, favors and dancing). Also open for Christmas dinner tomorrow. Make early reservations for New Year's.

GREGORY'S on Paradise Drive, Corte Madera — Closed tomorrow and Sunday and Monday, but open New Year's Eve with the regular menu. No change in prices.

LONDONER FISH AND CHIPS on Red Hill Avenue, San Anselmo has a service New Year's Eve for stay-at-home parties. Ted Wood will deliver minimum orders of eight or more servings up to 11 p.m. Fish and chips or other specialties. Call for details — the Londoner Fish and Chips on the Miralce Mile—not the restaurant in downtown San Anselmo.

Ted has received his wine and beer license and will now go ahead making arrangements for his pub here, taking over the premises next door. This should be open the 10th or 12th of January.

RUBINI'S in Fairfax is taking reservations for its annual New Year's Eve champagne party, but is closed after tonight until next Wednesday. That popular musical duo Lowell Hawk at the piano and Frank Stitt at the organ will provide the entertainment New Year's.

OAK TREE INN, San Geronimo (formerly De La Montaya's), recently taken over by Dee and Raymond Brunal, will be closed tomorrow—but open New Year's Eve. It's highly likely there will be music.

There's a new chef here — Carlo Givoni. That's an Italian name, but he was raised in France and learned that country's culinary secrets. Watch for new menu innovations.

BILL AND ADOLPH'S WEST END VILLA, San Rafael. Open Christmas and New Year's Eve. Not sure what New Year's entertainment there will be.

THE BLACK FOREST in downtown San Rafael is closing tomorrow and through all of next week, including New Year's. Meta and Bob Kringe are taking a holiday. Open again Monday, Jan. 3.

SHORTLY AFTER the first of the year the Civic Center Coffee Shop will probably start to serve dinners three nights a week — about Jan. 6 or 7. Exact plans are still undetermined, though you may have noticed the improvements here. There will be a new name for the place — Taverna Yasou. Idea is to serve Greek gourmet dinners Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Meanwhile it's still on a daytime schedule. Plans called for it to feature "Greek Fling" champagne cocktails today and next Friday until closing time.

MARIO BRENTA is turning the big banquet room at Dominic's, San Rafael, into a regular night club New Year's Eve.

Price of $17 per couple includes complimentary hors d'oeuvres from 8 to 9 p.m., de luxe dinner and a bottle of wine for every four people. Dancing from 9 to 1 to the music of the five-piece Marin County Rhythmaires. Make arrangements for tickets ahead of time.

LA PETITE AUBERGE, San Rafael, is closed tomorrow through Monday. Open New Year's Eve — but all booked up from 9 p.m. through the midnight hour. Early dinner period closes by 9 p.m. Closed New Year's Day.

LE CHALET BASQUE, Santa Venetia — open tomorrow and Sunday as usual. Closed Monday. Open New Year's Eve, New Year's Day and Sunday. Regular dinner menu.

SAN RAFAEL JOE'S is open tonight and definitely will be open New Year's Eve, with Jean Denning at the organ and other entertainment, but Hector and Nancy Rubini and Guido and Teresa Farina and staff will get four holidays this season. Closing tomorrow and Sunday and also Saturday and Sunday next weekend.

NERO'S ROOM, Ignacio, will have its regular New Year's Eve affair with Frank Kelly and group playing for dancing in the atrium and champagne dinner from 9 p.m. (Make reservations.) Regular menu before 8:30. Closed tomorrow but open Sunday and New Year's Day and the following Sunday.

CLOUD 5, Novato — closed tomorrow and Sunday, but open New Year's Eve when activities center in the Cloud Room upstairs. Dance music furnished by Ruth Overly at the organ and Don Flash on drums. Probably closed New Year's Day — the restaurant, anyway.

THE HILLTOP, Novato, is closed tonight and tomorrow. New Year's Eve there's a champagne dinner from 9 p.m. Regular menu served up to that time. Dancing from 9 p.m.

About Feb. 5, the Hilltop will close its food facilities, do some remodeling and make this strictly a music, dance and cocktail place on weekends with live music, utilizing the large dining area.

THE LODGE, Novato, is closed tomorrow except for the coffee shop (open about six hours). Big plans for New Year's Eve.

Tino Granucci's Orchestra will play in the upstairs banquet room where steak and champagne dinners will be served from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. with all the favors. Regular menu will be served downstairs and music will be furnished here by Gordon Tucker and a new organ should be installed by then — and Von Marchand at the piano. Von plays regularly Wednesday and Thursday nights and Sundays from 4 p.m. Gordon usually plays the rest of the week.

SPIROS' RED VEST, Novato —closed tomorrow and Sunday and possibly Saturday and Sunday of next week. Sometime between these closings you should drop by for a glimpse of the "upside-down Christmas tree" over the piano bar.

Church Services Scheduled On Eve, Day Of Christmas

The Episcopal Church in Ignacio will open its doors to the public for the first time tonight at an 11 p.m. Christmas service.

The newly constructed church at 400 Ignacio Boulevard has a central core which can be used for services, for theatricals, music performances or other civic activities, its pastor, Rev. Charles B. B. Gompertz explained.

The church, constructed in what will become the Pacheco Plaza shopping center, also will house a nursery school.

The service tonight, which will include group carol singing, will be followed by a 10 a.m. service on Christmas Day.

Other Christmas services in Marin:

NORTH CENTRAL MARIN

Lucas Valley Community Church will have a candlelight service at 11:30 p.m. today, preceded by a coffee hour.

Faith Lutheran Church, Terra Linda, will have an 8 p.m. family candlelight service, especially for members who have young children. A second service will be held at 11 p.m.

Fairfax Community Church will have a candlelight service at 11 p.m. today.

Parable Has Meaning At Christmas

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Once upon a time, there was a man who looked upon Christmas as a lot of humbug.

He wasn't a Scrooge. He was a kind and decent person, generous to his family, upright in all his dealings with other men.

But he didn't believe all that stuff about incarnation which churches proclaim at Christmas. And he was too honest to pretend that he did.

"I am truly sorry to distress you," he told his wife, who was a faithful churchgoer. "But I simply cannot understand this claim that God became man. It doesn't make any sense to me."

On Christmas Eve, his wife and children went to church for the midnight service. He declined to accompany them.

"I'd feel like a hypocrite," he explained. "I'd rather stay at home. But I'll wait up for you."

Shortly after his family drove away in the car, snow began to fall. He went to the window and watched the flurries getting heavier and heavier.

"If we must have Christmas," he thought, "it's nice to have a white one."

A few minutes later, he was startled by a thudding sound. It was quickly followed by another, then another.

When he went to the front door to investigate, he found a flock of birds huddled miserably in the snow. They had been caught in the storm, and in a desperate search for shelter had tried to fly through his window.

"I can't let these poor creatures lie there and freeze," he thought. "But how can I help them?"

Then he remembered the barn where the childrens' pony was stabled. It would provide a warm shelter.

He put on his coat and galoshes and tramped through the deepening snow to the barn. He opened the door wide and turned on a light.

But the birds didn't come in.

"Food will bring them in," he thought. So he hurried back to the house for bread crumbs, which he sprinkled on the snow to make a trail into the barn.

To his dismay, the birds ignored the bread crumbs and continued to flop around helplessly in the snow.

He tried shooing them into the barn by walking around and waving his arms. They scattered in every direction—except into the warm, lighted barn.

"They find me a strange and terrifying creature," he said to himself, "and I can't seem to think of any way to let them know they can trust me.

"If only I could be a bird myself for a few minutes, perhaps I could lead them to safety . . ."

Just at that moment, the church bells began to ring.

He stood silently for a while, listening to the bells pealing the glad tidings of Christmas.

Then he sank to his knees in the snow.

"Now I do understand," he whispered. "Now I see why you had to do it."

SEVENTH CANDLE

The seventh candle, of the eight in the menorah, will be lighted tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gottesman, Greenbrae, as part of the celebration of Chanukah. The "festival of lights" commemorates the reconquest of Jerusalem in 168 B.C. and cleansing of the Temple which had been defiled by the Syrians. The Talmud tells of the Maccabees finding a flask of oil sufficient to light the holy lamps for only one day—but it miraculously lasted for eight days. Watching the candle lighting at sunset will be Michael Jon (left), Leslie Ann and Jimmy. Chanukah gifts for children are piled about the menorah and in front of Michael Jon is the four sided "dreidel," a traditional top. A sip of wine and taste of the cookies will close the ceremony.

Bagpipes, Tolling Bells, Prayers Denote Christmas In Bethlehem

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BETHLEHEM, Jordan (AP) — In this little hilltop town where Christianity began, Christmas comes with the brassy blare of military bands, the clattering hoofs of prancing Arab stallions and the solemn music of hymns and chants.

And beneath the stone floor of the oldest church in the world, an olive wood doll of the infant Jesus lies in the manger where Christ was born.

The cave, which tradition says was the stable of Mary and Joseph, still exists — under the massive Church of the Nativity — but Christmas Eve in the Bethlehem of today bears little resemblance to the quiet night when wondering shepherds heard "glad tidings of great joy."

The candle-lit stable is now sheathed with marble and hung with rich brocades, a policeman stands guard inside, and thousands of tourists and pilgrims crowd the town for the pageantry of Christmas in the Holy Land.

This year no tourists will be told, like Joseph and Mary, that "there is no room at the inn," for Jordan has added 15 new hotels to handle the crush. The tourist trade is Jordan's main industry, and 29,753 visitors converged on the Holy Land last year in the month of December.

The day starts with the joyous pealing of bells and the call of prayers from a mosque on Manger Square, for almost half of Bethlehem's 20,000 townspeople are Moslems. At midday begins the most colorful of the Christmas Eve ceremonies.

Led by five lancers mounted on horseback, the elderly, bearded Patriarch of Jerusalem steps from his car beneath Bethlehem's Christmas tree, a live, tilting umbrella pine decorated with Japanese lanterns, an electric star and a portrait of King Hussein I of Jordan. From its lower branches a loudspeaker wafts carols over the heads of the police and desert troops who hold back the crowds in the big square.

Donning an ermine cloak and crimson hat, the patriarch follows singing priests through the tiny door—built that way in the Middle Ages to prevent infidel horsemen from riding inside — of the basilica of the nativity.

A carnival atmosphere reigns in the square, with the popping of firecrackers, the music of a Jordanian army and bagpipe band, and brisk business in the souvenir shops, while solemn rites take place in the incense-laden twilight of the 1,600-year-old church.

In nearby Shepherds Field, where the angel announced the birth of Christ, worshippers gather in the chilly late afternoon to sing carols. The field, owned by the YMCA, is fenced now and no sheep are allowed.

While crowds shiver in the square, the patriarch returns for midnight Mass in the 84-year-old Church of St. Catherine, part of the nativity basilica.

So great are the crowds that tickets are needed for admission to the midnight Mass.

In the past, the three faiths that share the nativity church — Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Armenian — have chosen Christmas Eve to vent their jealousies, with priests brawling in the grotto of Christ's birth or throwing bottles at each other on the roof.

That is why, for decades, a Moslem policeman has been posted inside the stable, where a 14-pointed silver star marks taxis jostling past the donkeys the site of the manger. The visit of Pope Paul VI two years ago however, did much to heal the ill-will among the sects, and the presence of the policeman has become more symbolic than functional.

And when the ceremonies in the grotto end and the crowds have left, Bethlehem prepares to start the festivities all over again. For Chrismas comes three times a year in the holy town. The Orthodox and Armenian sects celebrate the birth of Jesus in January.

Congregation Gets Church

Members of the San Rafael congregation of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will worship in their own church Sunday after more than 10 years in rented quarters.

The church at 375 Calle Arboleda, Novato, has been purchased from the American Baptist congregation. The Latter Day Saints congregation has used the Labor Temple in San Rafael for services.

High Priest Sylvester R. Coleman, missionary supervisor for the San Francisco Bay Stake area, will be guest speaker at the service beginning at 9:45 a.m. The church also will house classes for children and youths and prayer services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays.

Elder George Warner, pastor of the congregation, soon will be replaced by Elder Velton Crownover. Warner, in the Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base, is to be transferred to France.

The seventh candle, of the eight in the menorah, will be lighted tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gottesman, Greenbrae, as part of the celebration of Chanukah. The "festival of lights" commemorates the reconquest of Jerusalem in 168 B.C. and cleansing of the Temple which had been defiled by the Syrians. The Talmud tells of the Maccabees finding a flask of oil sufficient to light the holy lamps for only one day—but it miraculously lasted for eight days. Watching the candle lighting at sunset will be Michael Jon (left), Leslie Ann and Jimmy. Chanukah gifts for children are piled about the menorah and in front of Michael Jon is the four sided "dreidel," a traditional top. A sip of wine and taste of the cookies will close the ceremony.

Bagpipes, Tolling Bells, Prayers Denote Christmas In Bethlehem

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BETHLEHEM, Jordan (AP) — In this little hilltop town where Christianity began, Christmas comes with the brassy blare of military bands, the clattering hoofs of prancing Arab stallions and the solemn music of hymns and chants.

And beneath the stone floor of the oldest church in the world, an olive wood doll of the infant Jesus lies in the manger where Christ was born.

The cave, which tradition says was the stable of Mary and Joseph, still exists — under the massive Church of the Nativity — but Christmas Eve in the Bethlehem of today bears little resemblance to the quiet night when wondering shepherds heard "glad tidings of great joy."

The candle-lit stable is now sheathed with marble and hung with rich brocades, a policeman stands guard inside, and thousands of tourists and pilgrims crowd the town for the pageantry of Christmas in the Holy Land.

This year no tourists will be told, like Joseph and Mary, that "there is no room at the inn," for Jordan has added 15 new hotels to handle the crush. The tourist trade is Jordan's main industry, and 29,753 visitors converged on the Holy Land last year in the month of December.

The day starts with the joyous pealing of bells and the call of prayers from a mosque on Manger Square, for almost half of Bethlehem's 20,000 townspeople are Moslems. At midday begins the most colorful of the Christmas Eve ceremonies.

Led by five lancers mounted on horseback, the elderly, bearded Patriarch of Jerusalem steps from his car beneath Bethlehem's Christmas tree, a live, tilting umbrella pine decorated with Japanese lanterns, an electric star and a portrait of King Hussein I of Jordan. From its lower branches a loudspeaker wafts carols over the heads of the police and desert troops who hold back the crowds in the big square.

Donning an ermine cloak and crimson hat, the patriarch follows singing priests through the tiny door—built that way in the Middle Ages to prevent infidel horsemen from riding inside — of the basilica of the nativity.

A carnival atmosphere reigns in the square, with the popping of firecrackers, the music of a Jordanian army and bagpipe band, and brisk business in the souvenir shops, while solemn rites take place in the incense-laden twilight of the 1,600-year-old church.

In nearby Shepherds Field, where the angel announced the birth of Christ, worshippers gather in the chilly late afternoon to sing carols. The field, owned by the YMCA, is fenced now and no sheep are allowed.

While crowds shiver in the square, the patriarch returns for midnight Mass in the 84-year-old Church of St. Catherine, part of the nativity basilica.

So great are the crowds that tickets are needed for admission to the midnight Mass.

In the past, the three faiths that share the nativity church — Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Armenian — have chosen Christmas Eve to vent their jealousies, with priests brawling in the grotto of Christ's birth or throwing bottles at each other on the roof.

That is why, for decades, a Moslem policeman has been posted inside the stable, where a 14-pointed silver star marks taxis jostling past the donkeys the site of the manger. The visit of Pope Paul VI two years ago however, did much to heal the ill-will among the sects, and the presence of the policeman has become more symbolic than functional.

And when the ceremonies in the grotto end and the crowds have left, Bethlehem prepares to start the festivities all over again. For Chrismas comes three times a year in the holy town. The Orthodox and Armenian sects celebrate the birth of Jesus in January.

Congregation Gets Church

Members of the San Rafael congregation of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will worship in their own church Sunday after more than 10 years in rented quarters.

The church at 375 Calle Arboleda, Novato, has been purchased from the American Baptist congregation. The Latter Day Saints congregation has used the Labor Temple in San Rafael for services.

High Priest Sylvester R. Coleman, missionary supervisor for the San Francisco Bay Stake area, will be guest speaker at the service beginning at 9:45 a.m. The church also will house classes for children and youths and prayer services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays.

Elder George Warner, pastor of the congregation, soon will be replaced by Elder Velton Crownover. Warner, in the Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base, is to be transferred to France.

Colored Yarn Scraps Make Ideal Decorative Touches

By EUNICE FARMER

Here is a good idea to play around with during the holidays. Use your leftover scraps of colored yarn and make knitted sleeves for a wool jumper dress. The sleeves will be knitted from a sweater pattern, using rectangles of colored yarn knitted down the center of a white sleeve to form diamond shapes. Set the sleeves into a jumper just as you would set in regular sleeves.

Complete the garment by knitting a 2-inch wide strip of bias to bind the neckline of the jumper. This will look like a very expensive dress and I know you will love it.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER: Mrs P. Roth, Evanston, Ill., wins a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following idea.

"Do not discard plaid wool blankets used on your children's beds. Instead, make ponchos, which are so very popular with the small fry since the "Sound of Music" made them famous.

"Cut the blanket into a square, cutting off the fringe or hem. Fold into a triangle and make a slit for the head. Insert a 7-inch Zipper in front. Bind the neck edges with wool braid. Use a skein of heavy yarn for fringe for all the outer edges. Fringe should be about 7 inches long and very close together for a heavy look.

"If you have any leftover yarn, make a yarn pompon and tie it to the zipper. Just think, it won't cost a cent; just a few hours' time and your children will love it."

(Since there is very little machine stitching on this garment, it would be a nice thing to make during the holidays when you are taking it a little easy.)

I guess I'm just one of many women who wonder just how long it will be before the skirts drop down in length again. I have just finished a winter coat but must admit that I did worry when completing the hem in case I would have to let it down and wouldn't have the material to do it with. I decided to make a skirt out of the same material, then if worse comes to worse, I will still have a walking suit.

Mrs. J. H.

Dear Mrs. J.H.:

There is always the possibility that the length of skirts will change and if they do, it will be a drastic one. Skirts always seem to inch up shorter and shorter, and then pow, they drop about 15 inches. So you see, even if you did leave a hem, it wouldn't be long enough. Your idea of the extra skirt is a great one. At least you would have some fabric left that matches and that could probably be used in some clever way. Your walking suit idea sounds great!

Colored Yarn Scraps Make Ideal Decorative Touches

By EUNICE FARMER

Here is a good idea to play around with during the holidays. Use your leftover scraps of colored yarn and make knitted sleeves for a wool jumper dress. The sleeves will be knitted from a sweater pattern, using rectangles of colored yarn knitted down the center of a white sleeve to form diamond shapes. Set the sleeves into a jumper just as you would set in regular sleeves.

Complete the garment by knitting a 2-inch wide strip of bias to bind the neckline of the jumper. This will look like a very expensive dress and I know you will love it.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER: Mrs P. Roth, Evanston, Ill., wins a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following idea.

"Do not discard plaid wool blankets used on your children's beds. Instead, make ponchos, which are so very popular with the small fry since the "Sound of Music" made them famous.

"Cut the blanket into a square, cutting off the fringe or hem. Fold into a triangle and make a slit for the head. Insert a 7-inch Zipper in front. Bind the neck edges with wool braid. Use a skein of heavy yarn for fringe for all the outer edges. Fringe should be about 7 inches long and very close together for a heavy look.

"If you have any leftover yarn, make a yarn pompon and tie it to the zipper. Just think, it won't cost a cent; just a few hours' time and your children will love it."

(Since there is very little machine stitching on this garment, it would be a nice thing to make during the holidays when you are taking it a little easy.)

I guess I'm just one of many women who wonder just how long it will be before the skirts drop down in length again. I have just finished a winter coat but must admit that I did worry when completing the hem in case I would have to let it down and wouldn't have the material to do it with. I decided to make a skirt out of the same material, then if worse comes to worse, I will still have a walking suit.

Mrs. J. H.

Dear Mrs. J.H.:

There is always the possibility that the length of skirts will change and if they do, it will be a drastic one. Skirts always seem to inch up shorter and shorter, and then pow, they drop about 15 inches. So you see, even if you did leave a hem, it wouldn't be long enough. Your idea of the extra skirt is a great one. At least you would have some fabric left that matches and that could probably be used in some clever way. Your walking suit idea sounds great!

Population Pressure Fanning Forest Fires

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A deputy state forester said there is an "almost perfect correlation" between population increase and the incidence of forest fires over the past 30 years and many of them could be prevented.

Howard E. Moore told a recent meeting of the watershed fire council in Elsinore that fires nowadays are stopped at an average of 45 acres each, where they used to average burning 150 acres.

The Division of Forestry, at the request of a legislative committee, has developed a five-year plan of fire prevention. It is based on the fact that 3,000 forest fires a year occur on state protected lands and this increases about 120 fires a year.

Moore said more than 92 per cent of these are man caused and studies indicate that one-half to two-thirds of the man-caused fires could be prevented —three or four lives, $6 or $7 million in improved property, $500,000 in emergency funds, and untold millions in resources each year.

The annual cost of this fire prevention program would be $6.5 million. It would involve 524 positions in the Division of Forestry and 355 positions for contracting agencies, amounting to more than one million man-hours of work a year in fire prevention - education and law administration.

Teen-Agers Cited For Thievery

Corte Madera police yesterday cited three Greenbrae boys, two aged 15 and another 14, on charges of shoplifting a bottle of perfume and a lady's purse from the Montgomery Ward and Co. store and two neckties from Smith's Men's Store in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

The boys were stopped as they left the Ward store by chief security officer Ronald Guerra, who said he saw one of them steal a bottle of perfume. He found the other merchandise on them.

'My Fair Lady' Happily Arrives From That Rainy Spain Plain

By LES DARD

There are big things in store for Marin area theatergoers this holiday season:

FAIRFAX THEATER

Well it's here, and there's no doubt it's as great as everyone has been saying.

"My Fair Lady' is outstanding in almost every category available to a motion picture.

For instance, the cast: Rex Harrison is a perfect Prof. Henry Higgins — the irascible speech expert who transforms Cockney flower girl Eliza (Audrey Hepburn) into an aristocrat, by teaching her to speak like one.

The inimitable Stanley Holloway is here too — as Eliza's freeloading father.

Though there was some dispute about her getting the role, Miss Hepburn gives the most stunning performance of her career.

All the charm and enthusiasm of the Lerner-Loewe musical is here — not to mention all the beloved melodies.

The photography is at once brillant and mellow, the music as scintillating as ever.

A wonderful show for all ages.

LARK THEATER

Marcello Mastroianni is at his dashing best in the brand new sex farce "Casanova '70," now showing.

Mastroianni is a NATO officer who discovers — after several disastrous atempts — that he cannot make love effectively unless danger, or more specifically anihilation, is imminent.

With the crazy theme music in the background, our hero embarks on what must be some of the nuttiest love affairs ever filmed.

It's all in fun, or rather satire, and never becomes tired or tiring.

Adult entertainment.

SEQUOIA THEATER

Taut, edge-of-the-seat drama is coupled with fine acting in "The Cincinnati Kid," now on screen.

At times very similar to "The Hustler," the film depicts the attempt of an ambitious professional gambler to defeat the reigning king.

Steve McQueen is the poker player of the title; the legendary undefeated champion is Edward G. Robinson. Their marathon contest is the show's gripping climax.

Sure to be one of the big hits of the year.

RAFAEL THEATER

Now on the screen is Walt Disney's latest — a combination of comedy, suspense and romance.

"That Darn Cat!" is well acted, directed and written — and should provide two hours of fun for kids and grownups alike.

It seems that the wandering Siamese of the title gets into an apartment where two bank-robbers are holding a bank teller as hostage. This lady, by devious means, sends the cat for help.

Hayley Mills, cat owner first class, interprets the situation and calls in bright young FBI agent Dean Jones.

TAMALPAIS THEATER

Now on screen is "Boeing Boeing," a romantic comedy in the wildest sense.

Tony Curtis and Jerry Lewis play rival newspapermen in Paris. To say they're on the prowl is to put it conservatively.

Dany Saval, Christine Schmidtmer and Suzanna Leigh are featured as airline hostesses, all three engaged to Curtis. He has a system where one beauty is in town while the other two are flying around the world dreaming of him. All is perfectly timed. But then the airlines switch to jets, and the film moves into high gear.

101 DRIVE-IN

Elvis Presley's flock of fans won't want to miss his latest film: "Harum Scarum,' opening Sunday.

This time Elvis is an American movie star, performing in the Near East. His prowess in judo gets him involved in local political rivalries.

He also manages to get involved with Mary Ann Mobley, beautiful daughter of a noble king.

As always, there's plenty of Elvis-style rock and roll songs.

NOVATO THEATER

The Oscar - winning "Mary Poppins" is coming in Sunday, starring Julie Andrews and Dick Van Dyke in a truly enchanting story.

A delight for the whole family.

TIBURON PLAYHOUSE

Jane Fonda and Lee Marvin star in in the funniest Western to come along in quite awhile, "Cat Ballou," opening Sunday.

Every Western cliche imaginable gets a thorough trouncing, and there's no respect for anyone or anything as Cat and the gang pull one irreverent shenanigan after another.

Special Call To Sacramento To Parallel Budget Study

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The 1966 special session of the Legislature could be called at the same date as the convening of the regular budget session, on Feb. 7, or it might be called a week or two earlier.

Frank Mesple', legislative secretary to Gov. Edmund G. Brown, said the decision probably would be made at a high level conference of legislative leaders and the governor in Palm Springs on Dec. 29-30.

The big thing to be decided, if possible, is if there is any area of agreement on a tax program for the session, Mesple' said. In addition, it's expected that there will be a rough idea of the total budget needs by the time of the Palm Springs meeting, to indicate how much new revenue might be needed.

The revenue gap for the 1966-67 budget—the amount of new taxes needed to finance the next fiscal year—has been estimated at anywhere between $200 and $300 million.

Mesple' said there is a possibility the special session might be called on Jan. 24 or Jan. 31, if it seemed worthwhile.

In any event, it's expected there will be no legislative recess this year. Under the constitution, the budget session meets on the first Monday in February in even - numbered years, spends several days to receive a budget and then recesses to permit financial committees to study the budget. No matter when the special session is called in 1966, it's expected the lawmakers will remain in Sacramento in the special session, during the budget session recess.

Driver Suffers Cuts In Two-Car Crash

John Gulbransen, 17, of 81 Via Navarro, Greenbrae, suffered a cut right hand and face scrapes when the car he was driving was hit broadside in the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard - Wolf Grade Road intersection at 8:30 p.m. yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said Bobby Joe Lile, 33, of 338 Bolinas Avenue, Fairfax, driving down Wolf Grade, crashed into Gulbransen's car. Gulbransen was treated at Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco. Lile was unhurt.

Scouts' Good Deed

CAMILLUS, N.Y. (AP) — A Boy Scout troop's good deed is leaving Scoutmaster William Benz knee-deep in Christmas wrapping paper. The scouts exchanged and opened gifts at a meeting, then agreed to send their presents to an orphanage in nearby Syracuse. They also left Benz to rewrap all of the gifts.

'My Fair Lady' Happily Arrives From That Rainy Spain Plain

By LES DARD

There are big things in store for Marin area theatergoers this holiday season:

FAIRFAX THEATER

Well it's here, and there's no doubt it's as great as everyone has been saying.

"My Fair Lady' is outstanding in almost every category available to a motion picture.

For instance, the cast: Rex Harrison is a perfect Prof. Henry Higgins — the irascible speech expert who transforms Cockney flower girl Eliza (Audrey Hepburn) into an aristocrat, by teaching her to speak like one.

The inimitable Stanley Holloway is here too — as Eliza's freeloading father.

Though there was some dispute about her getting the role, Miss Hepburn gives the most stunning performance of her career.

All the charm and enthusiasm of the Lerner-Loewe musical is here — not to mention all the beloved melodies.

The photography is at once brillant and mellow, the music as scintillating as ever.

A wonderful show for all ages.

LARK THEATER

Marcello Mastroianni is at his dashing best in the brand new sex farce "Casanova '70," now showing.

Mastroianni is a NATO officer who discovers — after several disastrous atempts — that he cannot make love effectively unless danger, or more specifically anihilation, is imminent.

With the crazy theme music in the background, our hero embarks on what must be some of the nuttiest love affairs ever filmed.

It's all in fun, or rather satire, and never becomes tired or tiring.

Adult entertainment.

SEQUOIA THEATER

Taut, edge-of-the-seat drama is coupled with fine acting in "The Cincinnati Kid," now on screen.

At times very similar to "The Hustler," the film depicts the attempt of an ambitious professional gambler to defeat the reigning king.

Steve McQueen is the poker player of the title; the legendary undefeated champion is Edward G. Robinson. Their marathon contest is the show's gripping climax.

Sure to be one of the big hits of the year.

RAFAEL THEATER

Now on the screen is Walt Disney's latest — a combination of comedy, suspense and romance.

"That Darn Cat!" is well acted, directed and written — and should provide two hours of fun for kids and grownups alike.

It seems that the wandering Siamese of the title gets into an apartment where two bank-robbers are holding a bank teller as hostage. This lady, by devious means, sends the cat for help.

Hayley Mills, cat owner first class, interprets the situation and calls in bright young FBI agent Dean Jones.

Great fun.

TAMALPAIS THEATER

Now on screen is "Boeing Boeing," a romantic comedy in the wildest sense.

Tony Curtis and Jerry Lewis play rival newspapermen in Paris. To say they're on the prowl is to put it conservatively.

Dany Saval, Christine Schmidtmer and Suzanna Leigh are featured as airline hostesses, all three engaged to Curtis. He has a system where one beauty is in town while the other two are flying around the world dreaming of him. All is perfectly timed. But then the airlines switch to jets, and the film moves into high gear.

101 DRIVE-IN

Elvis Presley's flock of fans won't want to miss his latest film: "Harum Scarum,' opening Sunday.

This time Elvis is an American movie star, performing in the Near East. His prowess in judo gets him involved in local political rivalries.

He also manages to get involved with Mary Ann Mobley, beautiful daughter of a noble king.

As always, there's plenty of Elvis-style rock and roll songs.

NOVATO THEATER

The Oscar - winning "Mary Poppins" is coming in Sunday, starring Julie Andrews and Dick Van Dyke in a truly enchanting story.

A delight for the whole family.

TIBURON PLAYHOUSE

Jane Fonda and Lee Marvin star in in the funniest Western to come along in quite awhile, "Cat Ballou," opening Sunday.

Every Western cliche imaginable gets a thorough trouncing, and there's no respect for anyone or anything as Cat and the gang pull one irreverent shenanigan after another.

Special Call To Sacramento To Parallel Budget Study

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The 1966 special session of the Legislature could be called at the same date as the convening of the regular budget session, on Feb. 7, or it might be called a week or two earlier.

Frank Mesple', legislative secretary to Gov. Edmund G. Brown, said the decision probably would be made at a high level conference of legislative leaders and the governor in Palm Springs on Dec. 29-30.

The big thing to be decided, if possible, is if there is any area of agreement on a tax program for the session, Mesple' said. In addition, it's expected that there will be a rough idea of the total budget needs by the time of the Palm Springs meeting, to indicate how much new revenue might be needed.

The revenue gap for the 1966-67 budget—the amount of new taxes needed to finance the next fiscal year—has been estimated at anywhere between $200 and $300 million.

Mesple' said there is a possibility the special session might be called on Jan. 24 or Jan. 31, if it seemed worthwhile.

In any event, it's expected there will be no legislative recess this year. Under the constitution, the budget session meets on the first Monday in February in even - numbered years, spends several days to receive a budget and then recesses to permit financial committees to study the budget. No matter when the special session is called in 1966, it's expected the lawmakers will remain in Sacramento in the special session, during the budget session recess.

Driver Suffers Cuts In Two-Car Crash

John Gulbransen, 17, of 81 Via Navarro, Greenbrae, suffered a cut right hand and face scrapes when the car he was driving was hit broadside in the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard - Wolf Grade Road intersection at 8:30 p.m. yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said Bobby Joe Lile, 33, of 338 Bolinas Avenue, Fairfax, driving down Wolf Grade, crashed into Gulbransen's car. Gulbransen was treated at Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco. Lile was unhurt.

Scouts' Good Deed

CAMILLUS, N.Y. (AP) — A Boy Scout troop's good deed is leaving Scoutmaster William Benz knee-deep in Christmas wrapping paper. The scouts exchanged and opened gifts at a meeting, then agreed to send their presents to an orphanage in nearby Syracuse. They also left Benz to rewrap all of the gifts.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Dec. 24, the 358th day of 1965 with seven to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter; the morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter; the evening stars are Venus, Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

American author and lecturer on human relations, Dale Carnegie, was born on this day in 1888.

On this day in history:

In 1814, a treaty of peace was signed between the United States and Great Britain at Ghent, Belgium, bringing an end to the war of 1812.

In 1871, Verdi's opera "Aida" premiered in Cairo, Egypt.

In 1943, President Franklin Roosevelt announced the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the commander-in-chief of allied forces in the planned invasion of Europe.

In 1951, the United Nations proclaimed the North African nation of Libya free and independent.

A thought for the day—The prophet Isaiah: "And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a branch shall grow out of his roots: And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If Errors Rang Bells, Earmuffs Would Be Necessary For Bridge

This would be a noisy world to live in if a bell rang every time we made a mistake.

Most of us would have to wear earmuffs permanently, especially at the bridge table.

For example, the bell would toll in the hand shown today.

Opening lead — ♣ 3

South won the first trick with the ace of clubs, drew two rounds of trumps and led a low diamond.

West won with the nine of diamonds and led the eight of hearts through dummy.

Declarer put up dummy's ten and won with the queen when East played the jack.

South continued with the ace of diamonds and a low diamond, losing again to West.

Back came another heart, and East took two heart tricks to defeat the contract.

Did you hear the bell ring?

Who made the mistake — and when?

EARLY MISTAKE

The bell rang for South when he played the ace of clubs at the first trick.

The correct play is to let East win the first trick.

East returns a diamond, and South puts up the ace and cashes the ace of clubs to discard a diamond from dummy.

Then South gives up a diamond.

ALTERNATIVE

West can lead just one heart through dummy.

South wins with the queen of hearts, ruffs a diamond in dummy and draws trumps with the ace and king.

His last diamond is good, so he discards a heart from dummy on it, thus losing only one club, one diamond and one heart instead of two diamonds and two hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

♥ K 10 2
♦ 7 6 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four spades.

Since you have 8 points in high cards, you know that the combined count is 24 to 26 points.

Your six-card suit and your singleton should make up for any slight deficiency in high cards.

Instruction to Land Buyers

First see the land which thou intend'st to buy
Within the seller's title clearly lye,

And that no woman to it doth lay claime
By dowry, joynture, or some other name,

That may incumber, know if bond or fee
The Tenure stand, and that for each feoffee

It be released, that th' sellers be soe old.
That he may lawful sell, thou lawful hold.

Have special care that it not mortgaged lye,
Nor be entailed upon posterity.

Then if it stand in statute bound or noe,
Be well advised what quitt rent out must goe,

What custome service hath been done of old
By those who formerly the same did hold.

And if a wedded woman put to sale
Deal not with her unless she bring her male,

For she doth under covert barren goe,
Although sometimes some traffique soe we know

Thy bargain made and all this be done,
Have special care to make thy charter run

To thee, thy heirs, executors' assigns,
For that beyond they life securely binds,

These things foreknow and done, you may prevent,
Those things rash buyers many times repent,

And yet when you have done all you can,
If youle be sure, deal with an honest man.

Instruction to Land Buyers

First see the land which thou intend'st to buy
Within the seller's title clearly lye,

And that no woman to it doth lay claime
By dowry, joynture, or some other name,

That may incumber, know if bond or fee
The Tenure stand, and that for each feoffee

It be released, that th' sellers be soe old.
That he may lawful sell, thou lawful hold.

Have special care that it not mortgaged lye,
Nor be entailed upon posterity.

Then if it stand in statute bound or noe,
Be well advised what quitt rent out must goe,

What custome service hath been done of old
By those who formerly the same did hold.

And if a wedded woman put to sale
Deal not with her unless she bring her male,

For she doth under covert barren goe,
Although sometimes some traffique soe we know

Thy bargain made and all this be done,
Have special care to make thy charter run

To thee, thy heirs, executors' assigns,
For that beyond they life securely binds,

These things foreknow and done, you may prevent,
Those things rash buyers many times repent,

And yet when you have done all you can,
If youle be sure, deal with an honest man.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

How The Mind Makes Decisions Depends On One's Mental Health

VAN DELLEN

Decisions, decisions, decisions sounds much better than conflicts, conflicts, conflicts even though both may get on our nerves when unresolved. According to Webster, a conflict is emotional tension resulting from incompatible inner needs. It takes place when instinct urges one course but experience tells us that the consequences of that action are undesirable.

INSTINCTS, largely hereditary and unalterable, represent most of our natural impulses and drives. Many emotional problems are based upon hidden conflicts that develop when we cannot cope with "what comes naturally and what is right or best for self, family, community, etc." The brains of most of us are cluttered with such feelings, but some persons find ways of handling the emotional tension that is generated by this turmoil.

Psychiatrists use the word sublimation when the hidden conflicts are repressed by transbidden urge to a socially valubidden urge to as ocially valuable activity. The aggressive man becomes active in community affairs often related to some of his conflicts. The childless husband becomes interested in boys' clubs or scouting. Those with marital problems become "joiners" and keep busy attending meetings.

OVERCOMPENSATION is another mechanism. The reformed alcoholic goes out of his way to discourage others from drinking; those who doubt their sexual ability become Don Juans. Displacement is a third method of repressing hidden tensions. The victim's natural impulses are directed against another object that resembles the object of the impulse. The best example is the child who sticks pins in her doll after a new baby arrives. The foreman who takes it out on his men after a spat with his wife is a more common reaction.

Projection, a fourth manifestation applies to those who shift their feelings of failure or guilt to other people or things. The mediocre worker blames his tools, and the young executive who is not promoted blames his immediate superior instead of his own lack of ability.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BEEF AND PRESSURE

H. J. writes: Is rare steak or roast beef bad for high blood pressure or a heart condition?

REPLY

Beef of any kind will not aggravate heart disease or high blood pressure unless these conditions are associated with certain types of kidney disease. Cooking alters the taste but not the basic chemical constituents. Years ago "red meat" was thought to be bad for persons with hypertension.

NOT QUALIFIED

M. P. writes: Can a person with a vast knowledge of psychology diagnose his own psychosis?

REPLY

No, because most psychotics are not in contact with reality and have little or no insight as to what is going on. Even psychiatrists who become psychotic cannot help themselves.

DIZZINESS AND EXERCISE

B. N. writes: Is exercise of any value in treating labyrinthitis?

REPLY

Labyrinthitis is a common cause of dizziness, ringing of the ears, and nausea. When such symptoms are present, the victim feels better when lying still. Exercise aggravates the symptoms.

STOMACH ACHE

Mrs. C. writes: Is there such a thing as a stomach that is too small?

REPLY

No. Some persons have lost up to 75 per cent of the stomach through surgery and continue to live normal lives.

SOUR STOMACH

C. C. A. writes: What could bring on sour stomach every night after supper?

REPLY

There are 101 causes of indigestion, varying from disturbances of the gall bladder to mother-in-law trouble. Why not have your problem thoroughly investigated, including X-ray studies?

PAINLESS ULCER

B. M. writes: Could a person have ulcer without pain?

REPLY

Yes. Furthermore, when stomach ulcers are treated, distress often disappears within a few days even though the lesion remains open for several weeks thereafter.

PANCREAS

E. T. writes: What else does the pancreas do besides make insulin?

REPLY

This organ secretes important digestive enzymes directly into the intestine.

BUCK FEVER

Mrs. O. writes: All my life (I'm now 60) I've had phobia about deer and moose. Pictures of these animals scare me and stuffed heads terrify me. Is there any way to overcome this fear?

REPLY

It is easier to avoid the animals except when the Elks or Moose hold a convention in your city.

LOW METABOLISM

T. T. writes: My metabolism is minus 30. Could this low reading cause me to have several colds a year?

REPLY

This is possible but unlikely because many have several colds a year even though the thyroid is normal and they are otherwise healthy. Colds are caused by viruses and not a low metabolism.

COLOR BLINDNESS

Mrs. E. writes: My son was turned down by the Navy for color blindness. Is there anything he can do to cure the condition before he applies to the Air Force?

REPLY

No. A disturbance of this kind usually is hereditary and, to my knowledge, there is no cure. Attempts to teach color appreciation has not been successful.

COCCYGODYNIA

H. J. writes: Can anything be done to ease tenderness at the extreme tip of the spine?

REPLY

If this is coccygodynia, or sore coccyx, relief is obtained by various measures such as hot baths and sitting on an inflated rubber ring. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this topic.

UNATTRACTIVE HANDS

R. E. writes: Some women have nice hands, but mine are red and ugly. I do the average housework.

REPLY

Women with nice hands protect them with gloves and apply vream or lubricating lotions. Some find silicone products helpful as protectives.

LESSENING DRYNESS

R. T. writes: How can humidity in the home be raised without expensive equipment?

REPLY

The easiest ways to increase humidity are to put pans of water on the radiators, keep the steam kettle going in the kitchen, or turn on the shower to full hot in the bathroom. If you have an electric hot plate, place a pan of water on it and keep it boiling. There are commercial humidifiers that are inexpensive.

DRIPPING SECRETION

Mrs. A. writes: Why are so many people bothered with post-nasal drip?

REPLY

Most of us live in dirty cities and are forced to inhale irritating dusts and chemicals. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this condition.

Today's Health Hint—Aerosol cans may explode when punctured.

Displacement is a third method of repressing hidden tensions. The victim's natural impulses are directed against another object that resembles the object of the impulse. The best example is the child who sticks pins in her doll after a new baby arrives. The foreman who takes it out on his men after a spat with his wife is a more common reaction.

Projection, a fourth manifestation applies to those who shift their feelings of failure or guilt to other people or things. The mediocre worker blames his tools, and the young executive who is not promoted blames his immediate superior instead of his own lack of ability.

SOUR STOMACH

C. C. A. writes: What could bring on sour stomach every night after supper?

REPLY

There are 101 causes of indigestion, varying from disturbances of the gall bladder to mother-in-law trouble. Why not have your problem thoroughly investigated, including X-ray studies?

PAINLESS ULCER

B. M. writes: Could a person have ulcer without pain?

REPLY

Yes. Furthermore, when stomach ulcers are treated, distress often disappears within a few days even though the lesion remains open for several weeks thereafter.

PANCREAS

E. T. writes: What else does the pancreas do besides make insulin?

REPLY

This organ secretes important digestive enzymes directly into the intestine.

BUCK FEVER

Mrs. O. writes: All my life (I'm now 60) I've had phobia about deer and moose. Pictures of these animals scare me and stuffed heads terrify me. Is there any way to overcome this fear?

REPLY

It is easier to avoid the animals except when the Elks or Moose hold a convention in your city.

LOW METABOLISM

T. T. writes: My metabolism is minus 30. Could this low reading cause me to have several colds a year?

REPLY

This is possible but unlikely because many have several colds a year even though the thyroid is normal and they are otherwise healthy. Colds are caused by viruses and not a low metabolism.

BEEF AND PRESSURE

H. J. writes: Is rare steak or roast beef bad for high blood pressure or a heart condition?

REPLY

Beef of any kind will not aggravate heart disease or high blood pressure unless these conditions are associated with certain types of kidney disease. Cooking alters the taste but not the basic chemical constituents. Years ago "red meat" was thought to be bad for persons with hypertension.

NOT QUALIFIED

M. P. writes: Can a person with a vast knowledge of psychology diagnose his own psychosis?

REPLY

No, because most psychotics are not in contact with reality and have little or no insight as to what is going on. Even psychiatrists who become psychotic cannot help themselves.

DIZZINESS AND EXERCISE

B. N. writes: Is exercise of any value in treating labyrinthitis?

REPLY

Labyrinthitis is a common cause of dizziness, ringing of the ears, and nausea. When such symptoms are present, the victim feels better when lying still. Exercise aggravates the symptoms.

STOMACH ACHE

Mrs. C. writes: Is there such a thing as a stomach that is too small?

REPLY

No. Some persons have lost up to 75 per cent of the stomach through surgery and continue to live normal lives.

COLOR BLINDNESS

Mrs. E. writes: My son was turned down by the Navy for color blindness. Is there anything he can do to cure the condition before he applies to the Air Force?

REPLY

No. A disturbance of this kind usually is hereditary and, to my knowledge, there is no cure. Attempts to teach color appreciation has not been successful.

COCCYGODYNIA

H. J. writes: Can anything be done to ease tenderness at the extreme tip of the spine?

REPLY

If this is coccygodynia, or sore coccyx, relief is obtained by various measures such as hot baths and sitting on an inflated rubber ring. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this topic.

UNATTRACTIVE HANDS

R. E. writes: Some women have nice hands, but mine are red and ugly. I do the average housework.

REPLY

Women with nice hands protect them with gloves and apply vream or lubricating lotions. Some find silicone products helpful as protectives.

LESSENING DRYNESS

R. T. writes: How can humidity in the home be raised without expensive equipment?

REPLY

The easiest ways to increase humidity are to put pans of water on the radiators, keep the steam kettle going in the kitchen, or turn on the shower to full hot in the bathroom. If you have an electric hot plate, place a pan of water on it and keep it boiling. There are commercial humidifiers that are inexpensive.

DRIPPING SECRETION

Mrs. A. writes: Why are so many people bothered with post-nasal drip?

REPLY

Most of us live in dirty cities and are forced to inhale irritating dusts and chemicals. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this condition.

Today's Health Hint—Aerosol cans may explode when punctured.

San Rafael Due Aquatic Park Help

A state recreation official will visit San Rafael in January to aid the city in applying for a grant to build an aquatic park.

San Rafael Recreation Director Joseph D. Rodota, said Russell W. Porter, coordinator of the state Division of Recreation's grant program, will come to the city Jan. 4 or 5 to confer with Rodota, City Mgr. Dan E. Anderson and acting City Planner Charles J. Linthicum.

He also will attend the Jan 5 meeting of the park and recreation commission, Rodota said.

Rodota said he talked briefly last week in Sacramento with Porter, who once held Rodota's job in San Rafael. The conversation did not get into details, but Rodota said he was "most encouraged" when Porter told him the city would not have to supply detailed plans to apply for a state grant.

Drunk Driving, Assault Charged

A highway patrolman followed up on a hit-run driver in Sleepy Hollow yesterday and arrested him on charges of beating his 75-year-old mother and drunken driving.

The patrol said a pickup truck driven by John E. Wooll, 40, of 1110 Butterfield Road, crashed into a porch of the home of Jack H. Meister at 1040 Butterfield Road at 4:55 p.m.

Patrolman J. L. Smith, called to investigate found the truck at Wool's home. Entering, he reported, he found Wooll hitting his mother, Mrs. Helen Wooll, with a towel.

Wooll was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for face cuts suffered in the crash and booked into county jail on charges of drunken driving and assault and battery.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Farm System Good For Entertainment

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Early one evening recently, with not much to do at the end of a brief vacation, I noticed that I had an invitation to an "old-fashioned Christmas party" at a place called Ledbetter's near the UCLA campus. Noticing further that the proprietor was listed as Randy Sparks, formerly the guiding light of television's New Christy Ministrels, I decided to look in.

It was chiefly a matter of curiosity. I knew that Sparks had not been with the New Christy Minstrels for some time, and that their decline in sharpness and quality had shown it, and I wondered what he was doing now. What he is doing now—and Ledbetter's is an important part of it—is the kind of thing that should interest network entertainment executives enough to pick up a phone in New York, or wherever they are, every few days, and call Sparks and say, "Hello, Randy, old kid, old kid —what have you got for us today?"

What Sparks has got—and what the networks should have developed in a much more major sense long ago—is a farm system, something like baseball's, but with his own special brand of entertainers, generally lumped as folksinging groups, but actually with a far wider-ranging talent. For each of his up-and-coming groups, there seems to be another right behind, on the way, but not quite as developed.

Ledbetter's is a sort of old-fashioned club in style, but to Sparks it is also a kind of rehearsal hall for his groups, where they can play before the public and make mistakes without doing this in front of millions on television while they are still developing. This fills an important need, for entertainers nowadays wail that there are few places to learn, and they are right.

Thus, the night that I was at Ledbetter's, I caught a very polished group called "The Back Porch Majority," which I had seen on NBC-TV's "Tonight" show and thought was a exactly the same about after seeing the act in person. This at least as good, and was moving up in the farm system.

In short, Sparks has found a bright, intelligent, logical way to run a business that is notoriously at loose ends, and although it is on a relatively small scale, video could well take notice. His groups are clean and extraordinarily vivacious, and brushing up occasionally at Ledbetter's gives them the edge. He is one smart showman.

Hearing Slated In Theft Case

Preliminary hearing for Richard Lee Wagner, 19, charged with the Dec. 19 burglary of Lagunitas Grocery Store, has been set for 9:30 p.m. on Jan. 4 in Marin Municipal Court.

Another suspect, Sheila Jo Leppik, 18, is scheduled to enter plea on the same charge at 1:30 p.m. Monday. No complaint was issued against a third person arrested, Charles James Stephens, 20, of Railroad Avenue, Woodacre.

Stephens and Wagner were arrested by sheriff's officers for questioning in a Dec. 4 burglary of the Forest Knolls weekend home of Peter R. Hansen of San Francisco. However, Wagner and Miss Leppik, both of Forest Knolls, were charged with the grocery store breakin.

They are free on their own recognizance.

School Bid Higher Than Estimate

Three bids for an addition to the gymnasium at San Rafael's Davidson School were opened by school officials yesterday, and the apparent low bid was more than $17,000 above the architect's estimate made in May.

Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte said the low bid of $146,437 was submitted by Herrero Brothers, Inc., of San Francisco. Other bids were by Ira Coburn of San Francisco, $149,174, and Ideal Construction Co. of Novato, $159,890.

Only $120,000 was set aside in this year's budget for the work, Condrotte said.

Condrotte declined to predict whether he would recommend awarding of contract or urge the San Rafael Board of Education to throw out the bids at its Jan. 11 meeting. He said he would review the bids to see if any part of the work can be left out to cut the cost.

Detective Again Hit By Burglars

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — For the second time in less than a week, thieves broke into the home of Cecil Stowers.

Burglars took gold cuff links, a radio, an electric guitar and a hedge trimmer yesterday. The loss was estimated at $138.

Earlier this week, items valued at $1,300 were reported stolen. Both times the thieves broke the glass on a basement door to gain entry.

Stowers is a detective on the Kansas City, Kan., police force.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

Young Widow Has A Trying Time

By FRANK FARRARA

(Last of a series)

When a girl quits high school to get married at the age of 16 and then finds herself a widow with three children at the age of 23, she has a job just getting a job.

After the death of her husband in an automobile crash Oct. 6, 1963, Mrs. Dale Eugene Camden of 242 Kent Avenue, Kentfield, learned to her dismay that she was "unemployable."

She decided she would return to school, and started at the College of Marin after passing high school equivalency testing.

"I am going to get some kind of work," she vowed. "My object is to be employable."

With three young children to support, she found there were hardly any jobs she was qualified to take.

Mrs. Camden said she is taking some office courses, such as typing, business machines and shorthand, and some data processing courses.

"Actually, I want to go into law enforcement, but I'm only 5 foot 2½."

She hopes that she can combine her data processing work with a career in law enforcement.

The three children, Lora-Ellen, 5, Dale Eugene Jr., 4, and John Herbert, 3, have been told their father is dead, she said.

"They've accepted the fact," she said. "You can't undo it. You have to accept it and enjoy what you had. Sometimes we get out the pictures and they look at Daddy."

After her husband's death, Mrs. Camden and her children moved in with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lax.

"My father is very close to Lora, and she looks up to him," she said.

"We pay them room and board. I get social security which comes to about $297 a month." The social security payments cover her and the children, she explained.

Speaking of her early school days, she said: "I wanted to be a botanist, but my hay fever was too bad. I probably would have gone into natural sciences."

Mrs. Camden said she began to become interested in law enforcement work while attending judo classes. "I find judo a great tension reliever," she said. "I hope to have my brown belt by my 24th birthday."

Thinking back to the accident that killed her husband, she said, "He was tired, up all day Friday and driving on Saturday."

Camden was killed when his car slammed into an oak tree on Wolfe Grade just above Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. The California Highway Patrol estimated that he had been traveling about 25 miles an hour.

"He was near home, and he probably relaxed," Mrs. Camden said.

Boy Scouts Will Plant Trees This Yule Season

The Christmas season finds Marin County Boy Scouts pulling a switch on the usual holiday tree routine. Instead of cutting them down, they'll be planting them.

It's thes tart of a conservation and beautification program called "Operation Scout Tree," according to Paul Y. Dunn, executive of the Marin Scout Council.

On Wednesday, on a Fort Baker hillside in the Marin Headlands, visible from Vista Point, Boy Scouts will set out 1,800 one-year-old trees that in time will become a scenic forest grove.

The planting will be on a five-acre hillside owned by the Sixth Army, which is cooperating in the planting project along with other public and private agencies in the Bay Area. Site preparation work will be done by the Scouts Monday.

After the trees are planted, the Boy Scouts will follow a two-year program of watering and maintenance.

Most of the trees will be pines, with a scattering of gum species and a special selection of coast redwoods.

San Rafael Due Aquatic Park Help

A state recreation official will visit San Rafael in January to aid the city in applying for a grant to build an aquatic park.

San Rafael Recreation Director Joseph D. Rodota, said Russell W. Porter, coordinator of the state Division of Recreation's grant program, will come to the city Jan. 4 or 5 to confer with Rodota, City Mgr. Dan E. Anderson and acting City Planner Charles J. Linthicum.

He also will attend the Jan 5 meeting of the park and recreation commission, Rodota said.

Rodota said he talked briefly last week in Sacramento with Porter, who once held Rodota's job in San Rafael. The conversation did not get into details, but Rodota said he was "most encouraged" when Porter told him the city would not have to supply detailed plans to apply for a state grant.

Drunk Driving, Assault Charged

A highway patrolman followed up on a hit-run driver in Sleepy Hollow yesterday and arrested him on charges of beating his 75-year-old mother and drunken driving.

The patrol said a pickup truck driven by John E. Wooll, 40, of 1110 Butterfield Road, crashed into a porch of the home of Jack H. Meister at 1040 Butterfield Road at 4:55 p.m.

Patrolman J. L. Smith, called to investigate found the truck at Wool's home. Entering, he reported, he found Wooll hitting his mother, Mrs. Helen Wooll, with a towel.

Wooll was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for face cuts suffered in the crash and booked into county jail on charges of drunken driving and assault and battery.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Farm System Good For Entertainment

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Early one evening recently, with not much to do at the end of a brief vacation, I noticed that I had an invitation to an "old-fashioned Christmas party" at a place called Ledbetter's near the UCLA campus. Noticing further that the proprietor was listed as Randy Sparks, formerly the guiding light of television's New Christy Minstrels, I decided to look in.

It was chiefly a matter of curiosity. I knew that Sparks had not been with the New Christy Minstrels for some time, and that their decline in sharpness and quality had shown it, and I wondered what he was doing now. What he is doing now—and Ledbetter's is an important part of it—is the kind of thing that should interest network entertainment executives enough to pick up a phone in New York, or wherever they are, every few days, and call Sparks and say, "Hello, Randy, old kid, old kid —what have you got for us today?"

What Sparks has got—and what the networks should have developed in a much more major sense long ago—is a farm system, something like baseball's, but with his own special brand of entertainers, generally lumped as folksinging groups, but actually with a far wider-ranging talent. For each of his up-and-coming groups, there seems to be another right behind, on the way, but not quite as developed.

Ledbetter's is a sort of old-fashioned club in style, but to Sparks it is also a kind of rehearsal hall for his groups, where they can play before the public and make mistakes without doing this in front of millions on television while they are still developing. This fills an important need, for entertainers nowadays wail that there are few places to learn, and they are right.

Thus, the night that I was at Ledbetter's, I caught a very polished group called "The Back Porch Majority," which I had seen on NBC-TV's "Tonight" show and thought was a exactly the same about after seeing the act in person. This at least as good, and was moving up in the farm system.

In short, Sparks has found a bright, intelligent, logical way to run a business that is notoriously at loose ends, and although it is on a relatively small scale, video could well take notice. His groups are clean and extraordinarily vivacious, and brushing up occasionally at Ledbetter's gives them the edge. He is one smart showman.

Hearing Slated In Theft Case

Preliminary hearing for Richard Lee Wagner, 19, charged with the Dec. 19 burglary of Lagunitas Grocery Store, has been set for 9:30 p.m. on Jan. 4 in Marin Municipal Court.

Another suspect, Sheila Jo Leppik, 18, is scheduled to enter plea on the same charge at 1:30 p.m. Monday. No complaint was issued against a third person arrested, Charles James Stephens, 20, of Railroad Avenue, Woodacre.

Stephens and Wagner were arrested by sheriff's officers for questioning in a Dec. 4 burglary of the Forest Knolls weekend home of Peter R. Hansen of San Francisco. However, Wagner and Miss Leppik, both of Forest Knolls, were charged with the grocery store breakin.

They are free on their own recognizance.

School Bid Higher Than Estimate

Three bids for an addition to the gymnasium at San Rafael's Davidson School were opened by school officials yesterday, and the apparent low bid was more than $17,000 above the architect's estimate made in May.

Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte said the low bid of $146,437 was submitted by Herrero Brothers, Inc., of San Francisco. Other bids were by Ira Coburn of San Francisco, $149,174, and Ideal Construction Co. of Novato, $159,890.

Only $120,000 was set aside in this year's budget for the work, Condrotte said.

Condrotte declined to predict whether he would recommend awarding of contract or urge the San Rafael Board of Education to throw out the bids at its Jan. 11 meeting. He said he would review the bids to see if any part of the work can be left out to cut the cost.

Detective Again Hit By Burglars

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — For the second time in less than a week, thieves broke into the home of Cecil Stowers.

Burglars took gold cuff links, a radio, an electric guitar and a hedge trimmer yesterday. The loss was estimated at $138.

Earlier this week, items valued at $1,300 were reported stolen. Both times the thieves broke the glass on a basement door to gain entry.

Stowers is a detective on the Kansas City, Kan., police force.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

Young Widow Has A Trying Time

By FRANK FARRARA

(Last of a series)

When a girl quits high school to get married at the age of 16 and then finds herself a widow with three children at the age of 23, she has a job just getting a job.

After the death of her husband in an automobile crash Oct. 6, 1963, Mrs. Dale Eugene Camden of 242 Kent Avenue, Kentfield, learned to her dismay that she was "unemployable."

She decided she would return to school, and started at the College of Marin after passing high school equivalency testing.

"I am going to get some kind of work," she vowed. "My object is to be employable."

With three young children to support, she found there were hardly any jobs she was qualified to take.

Mrs. Camden said she is taking some office courses, such as typing, business machines and shorthand, and some data processing courses.

"Actually, I want to go into law enforcement, but I'm only 5 foot 2½."

She hopes that she can combine her data processing work with a career in law enforcement.

The three children, Lora-Ellen, 5, Dale Eugene Jr., 4, and John Herbert, 3, have been told their father is dead, she said.

"They've accepted the fact," she said. "You can't undo it. You have to accept it and enjoy what you had. Sometimes we get out the pictures and they look at Daddy."

After her husband's death, Mrs. Camden and her children moved in with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lax.

"My father is very close to Lora, and she looks up to him," she said.

"We pay them room and board. I get social security which comes to about $297 a month." The social security payments cover her and the children, she explained.

Speaking of her early school days, she said: "I wanted to be a botanist, but my hay fever was too bad. I probably would have gone into natural sciences."

Mrs. Camden said she began to become interested in law enforcement work while attending judo classes. "I find judo a great tension reliever," she said. "I hope to have my brown belt by my 24th birthday."

Thinking back to the accident that killed her husband, she said, "He was tired, up all day Friday and driving on Saturday."

Camden was killed when his car slammed into an oak tree on Wolfe Grade just above Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. The California Highway Patrol estimated that he had been traveling about 25 miles an hour.

"He was near home, and he probably relaxed," Mrs. Camden said.

Boy Scouts Will Plant Trees This Yule Season

The Christmas season finds Marin County Boy Scouts pulling a switch on the usual holiday tree routine. Instead of cutting them down, they'll be planting them.

It's thes tart of a conservation and beautification program called "Operation Scout Tree," according to Paul Y. Dunn, executive of the Marin Scout Council.

On Wednesday, on a Fort Baker hillside in the Marin Headlands, visible from Vista Point, Boy Scouts will set out 1,800 one-year-old trees that in time will become a scenic forest grove.

The planting will be on a five-acre hillside owned by the Sixth Army, which is cooperating in the planting project along with other public and private agencies in the Bay Area. Site preparation work will be done by the Scouts Monday.

After the trees are planted, the Boy Scouts will follow a two-year program of watering and maintenance.

Most of the trees will be pines, with a scattering of gum species and a special selection of coast redwoods.

Beauty Hath Rank

Judi Woodmansee, "Miss Marin County 1965," has been named to the board of directors of the California Beauties Assn. The association was formed to unite past and current delegates to the annual California Beauty Pageant.

Brodie Is Surprised With Comeback Of Year Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Credit the whole team, not just me," declared San Francisco quarterback John Brodie, the man voted Comeback Player of the Year in the National Football League.

The 30-year-old forward passing ace added he was "pleased but surprised" at the honor accorded by The Associated Press.

Actually, Brodie's comeback started last year. After the 1962 season, he suffered a broken arm in an automobile accident and missed 11 games in 1963 when the arm was rebroken early in the season.

Although the 49ers finished last in the Western Division in 1964, Brodie hit 193 passes in 391 throws for 2,498 yards and 14 touchdowns. Both the number of throws and number of completions were team records.

This past season he completed 242, a league record, of 391 for 3,112 yards and 30 touchdowns.

"I had great protection," the 10-year pro veteran said. "Just look at the record. At one stretch I was thrown for a loss just once in four games."

The 49ers posted a 7-6-1 record, finishing fourth. When the Green Bay Packers and Baltimore Colts clash on Sunday for the division title, the game might be a tribute to the 49er quarterback.

Last Sunday he completed 26 of 34 throws for a tremendous 76.5 percentage and three touchdowns as the 49ers battled Green Bay to a 24-24 tie and deadlocked the Packers and Colts in the regular season standings.

In that one, the Green Bay defenders tossed him just once for a loss of two yards.

Although he had George Mira in the wings awaiting a chance, Coach Jack Christiansen said at the season's start that Brodie was his quarterback, and the former Stanford star gave him some tremendous performances.

On Oct. 28 he fired five touchdown passes to beat Minnesota 45-24 and he must have gained personal satisfaction a few weeks later.

At Kezar Stadium, where fans have ridden him without mercy on several occasions, they booed him early in the fourth quarter when the Los Angeles Rams led 27-13.

Brodie promptly marshalled his forces, hit two touchdown passes and then brought the club into position for the winning field goal.

It could be his "Comeback" honor actually could be recognition of a player who has come into his own as a star.

Tommy McDonald, flanker for Los Angeles, was second to Brodie in the balloting by 42 newsmen in the NFL cities. Brodie had 12 votes and McDonald seven. John David Crow of San Francisco and Rudy Bukich of Chicago each had four.

Amos Marsh of Detroit had three votes. Green Bay's Jerry Kramer and Philadelphia's Pete Retzlaff each had two and the Bears as a team received one. Seven panel members did not vote in this category.

L.A. Scrooge Play: Svare Out Of Job On Christmas Eve

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Christmas in reverse came early for young Harland Svare and today the Los Angeles Rams were looking for their eighth head coach since 1947.

President Daniel F. Reeves, expressing personal regret, said Svare's contract would not be renewed for 1966 with the western cellar dweller in the National Football League.

The announcement, not entirely unexpected, was made yesterday, and promptly triggered the usual speculations on a successor to Svare.

There have been recurring rumors that John McKay of the University of Southern California is under consideration. Whether McKay is considering the matter is not known.

McKay, be it known, was never a man to duck a challenge.

Adding much spice to the talk was this:

Halfback Mike Garrett, a McKay product, All-America and Heisman Trophy winner, is the No. One draft choice of the Rams. Garrett has not signed with the Rams nor the Kansas City Chiefs Football League, who hold draft rights in the American Football League.

A so-called package deal involving McKay and Garrett, whom McKay calls the greatest football player he ever saw, is not an unreasonable conjecture.

Other names kicked around, all well known in pro circles, include George Wilson, late of the Detroit Lions; George Allen, an assistant with the Chicago Bears, formerly a Ram aide, and Buddy Parker, most recently with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Svare, handsome 35-year-old bachelor, issued a statement through Jack Teele, the Rams publicity director and a close personal friend.

In effect, Svare noted the philosophy of the pros, football or baseball: It isn't how you coach, but if you win.

In the Rams' case, it has been lose and lose and lose for more than a decade.

A prepared statement from Reeves read:

"It has been decided not to renew Harland Svare's contract for the 1966 season.

"We have several persons in mind as a possible replacement but no definite decision has been reached. It would be premature to disclose the names of these persons.

"The decision to replace Harland was a most difficult one.

"While there were many mitigating circumstances causing the Rams' losing record, it is felt that a fresh approach is necessary."

For the record, it may be noted that there was a warm personal relation between Svare and Reeves, the majority stockholder of the club.

Svare dictated a statement, relayed by Teele, which said:

"I'm very disappointed that we couldn't have won more football games. I have no regrets about the experience. I thoroughly enjoyed it.

"I thought we made some progress, but it's the nature of professional football that you must win.

"I have the highest respect for Dan Reeves and the Rams' organization, and I want to wish the team success.

"I don't think it will be too much longer before the Rams become a winner."

Chargers Vs. Bills For AFL Championship

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback John Hadl of the San Diego Chargers has a special reason to try to impress Buffalo quarterback Jack Kemp when the two meet in the American Football League championship game Sunday.

Kemp, the league's No. 4 passer, made the all pro team and was voted the league's most valuable player by an AP panel.

Hadl was merely the league's No. 1 passer.

He completed 174 passes out of 347 attempts for a .501 percentage, 2,798 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Kemp, on the other hand, completed 179 out of 391 for a .458 percentage, 2,368 yards and 10 touchdowns.

While Hadl was nailing down the passing title, the Chargers racked up an unprecedented sweep of all important team statistical categories.

The Chargers were one touchdown favorites to win the championship from the Bills as San Diego coach Sid Gillman announced that rookie Gene Foster will replace Keith Lincoln as starting fullback.

Lincoln hurt his knee Dec. 12 and has been slowed since then.

"I'll play," Lincoln said yesterday, "but I don't know how much."

Gillman also declined to predict how much he'll use Lincoln.

The Chargers consider themselves lucky to have the 220-pound Foster ready to step in as a trained replacement for the injured Lincoln.

Buffalo coach Lou Saban indicated that he will give rookie Bob Smith plenty of work at the halfback slot.

Smith appears to have taken over from veteran Bill Joe at the position, although Saban said that Joe "will get as much work as anybody."

San Diego beat Buffalo 34-2 in their first encounter of the season. The second game ended in a 20-20 tie.

FOR WESTERN TITLE

Packers Vs Colts

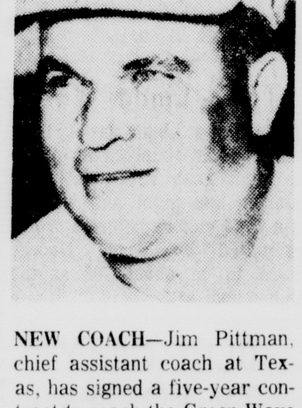
GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Beating the Baltimore Colts twice in one season was tough enough but beating them a third time will be the most difficult feat of all, says Coach Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers.

The Colts and Packers meet in a playoff here Sunday to determine the National Football League's Western Conference champion. It will be televised on CBS, Channel 5, 11 a.m. PST.

"It's pretty hard to beat a team three times in a season. I don't care who they are," Lombardi said.

The last time the two teams met, the Packers humiliated Baltimore, 42-27.

Lombardi was confident the Packers would be up for the game but noted that the proud Colts will have the added incentive of revenge.



NEW COACH—Jim Pittman, chief assistant coach at Texas, has signed a five-year contract to coach the Green Wave of Tulane University. Terms of the contract were unrevealed. (AP Wirephoto)

Lombardi also indicated he would welcome it if the Packers faced the same kind of blitzing tactics the Colts used last Saturday in beating Los Angeles, 20-17.

"Twenty-five times," said Lombardi who apparently counted the time the Colts sent linebackers or defensive backs crashing through the Ram line. "That's more than half the time blizting."

Lombardi said the popular belief that the blitz bothers the passer is unfounded. He said it could affect the running game. In fact, Lombardi said, the blitz gives the passer an advantage by removing a defender from the secondary.

Ray Nitschke remained the Packer's only doubtful starter Thursday although he took part in drills for the first time this week. Nitschke was still limping from a pulled hamstring and Lombardi said he would not start Sunday unless his limp disappears.

USF Whips St. Louis; Injuns Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Erwin Mueller, University of San Francisco's starting center, played against St. Louis University's Billikens last night despite an injured ankle but it hardly seemed necessary.

Mueller threw in 16 points as the Dons beat the Billikens 87-69 and all the other four USF starters also hit in double figures.

St. Louis got within two points late in the game but then the Dons rallied for 10 quick points and the contest.

Joe Ellis got 22 points for USF and Rich Parks 20 for St. Louis.

In other last games before the Christmas holidays, Stanford thumped Louisiana State, 91-69, Santa Clara edged California, 75-73, and Tulsa thumped St. Mary's, 82-60.

Stanford used a three - inch height advantage in the front line to overpower Louisiana State.

The visiting Tigers nearly wiped out a 44-35 Stanford lead, creeping to within one point, 46-45, two minutes into the second half.

But the Indians in three minutes shot ahead 61-51, and coasted from there.

Stanford's Art Harris and Jack Gilbert led their team with 17 points each.

Harry Heroman of LSU topped all scorers with 18.

Eric Paulson scored 22 points in pacing Santa Clara's victory over California.

North Meets South In Shrine Grid Game

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of all-star games, showcases for some of the nation's top individual collegiate football talent, serve as appetizers on Christmas Day, for next week's major bowl games.

Six All Americas will be in action, three on each side, when the North plays the South in Miami. The other is the Blue-Gray, matching seniors from above and below the Mason-Dixon line, in Montgomery, Ala. Both games are tomorrow afternoon.

Each is scheduled for national television. ABC will handle the North-South, with kickoff set for 1:30 p.m., PST. CBS has the Blue-Gray game, with kickoff at 1 p.m., PST.

Those should serve to whet the nation's television appetite for the following week's main course, including the Rose, Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Gator Bowls.

The North-South Shrine Game always has been a wide open, free scoring affair built on gambling, explosive offenses. And the 18th annual game in Miami Christmas Day shapes up as another in the series.

Playing a key role in such a forecast is the presence on the South's team of Bill Anderson and Howard Twilley, the combination that broke all the passing and receiving records at Tulsa this past season.

The South is coached by Tulsa's Glenn Dobbs, who also will have running back Rodger Bird of Kentucky and wingback George Pearce of William and Mary in the offensive line-up.

He also has two fierce linebackers, Tommy Nobis of Texas and Ed Weisacosky of Miami. Nobis, Weisacosky and Twilley were All America choices.

North Coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame counters with two All Americas from his own team, guard Dick Arrington and defensive halfback Nick Rassas, and Prudue tackle Karl Singer.

He will open with either Ken Lucas of Pittsburgh or Don Unverferth of Ohio State at quarterback. Sam Price of Illinois will be at half, Dave McNaughton of Penn State at full and Jim Todd of Ball State at wingback.

The South leads in the series 10-6, with two ties. The North won last year's game 37-30 on a touchdown pass by Notre Dame's Jack Snow in the last five seconds.

Kids Cage Tourney Winds Up

Champions were crowned yesterday in the Youth Basketball Tournament at San Rafael High School, after a total exceeding 500 boys had participated in the four-day program co-sponsored by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department and the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Laurel Dell Celtics won the fourth grade title by downing the San Pedro Bombers 6-2, as Steve D'Ambra scored four points. Craig Saunders tallied the Bombers' two, as they couldn's penetrate the Celtics' famed defense.

Mark Aman's 13 points sparked the Gallinas Lakers to a 21-6 win over the Laurel Dell Gophers and the fifth grade title, while the Glenwood Dons won the sixth grade crown with a 13-6 triumph over the San Pedro Marlins. Dirk Gonslosser led the winners with eight, while Chick Watt scored four for the Marlins.

Craig Hecht scored eight to lead the Davidson Panthers to a 21-15 win over the Santa Venetia Titans for the seventh grade championship, and the eighth grade crown went to San Jose Junior High, 40-26 winner over the Davidson Golds. David Perron led San Jose with 14.

San Rafael Nine Takes Time Off

The Litchfield Palmsmen of San Rafael, leading the San Francisco Triple-A winter semi-pro baseball league with a 6-0 mark, have the next two weekends off and they might well take time to contemplate the blessing that is good pitching.

Their pitching staff of Ron Cole, Bob DeRosa and Chuck Murray has allowed just four runs and 13 hits in the six games, four of which were shutouts. With pitching like that manager Joe Anselmo's club may consider giving up half their times at bat in the interest of speeding up the games.

This idea won't draw huzzahs from Jess Jacinto, who is stroking the ball at a .461 clip. Bob Frati is hitting .397 and Ron Blum and Don Lauters are at .380. The team average is a whopping .327.

East-West Stars Begin Drills For Dec. 31 Game

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett is mixing practice and financial negotiations while he awaits the Shrine football game here Dec. 31.

The Southern California halfback joined the rest of the West squad in its first workout yesterday at Stanford, while the East was starting practice at Santa Clara.

Later he and his attorney discussed negotiations with teams in both professional leagues. He was drafted in the second round by the Los Angeles Rams and 20th by the Kansas City Chiefs. He won't sign a contract until USC completes its baseball season, when the Pittsburgh Pirates are expected to make a strong pitch to get him to make a career of that sport.

Meanwhile, a pair of quarterbacks showed their West teammates yesterday that Garrett wasn't the only offensive punch in camp.

Paul Stein of Air Force and Tod Hullin of Washington completed 15 of 17 passes in a practice session, with end Gary Garrison of San Diego State and flanker Ben Hawkins of Arizona making outstanding catches.

East coach Ben Schwartzwalder put his team through two no-contact workouts, with the emphasis on offense.

Bills' Lou Saban Is Named AFL Coach Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills was named Coach of the Year in the American Football League Thursday in a poll of the league's players.

The award marked the second straight year Saban had been honored by the league's players.

The players also picked San Diego's Paul Lowe as Player of the Year and New York's Joe Namath as Rookie of the Year.

Lowe, who set a league rushing record of 1,121 yards, drew 104 votes to 68 for teammate Lance Alworth.

Namath polled 114 votes to 27 for fullback Gene Foster of San Diego.

The poll was conducted by The Sporting News.

Brodie Is Surprised With Comeback Of Year Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Credit the whole team, not just me," declared San Francisco quarterback John Brodie, the man voted Comeback Player of the Year in the National Football League.

The 30-year-old forward passing ace added he was "pleased but surprised" at the honor accorded by The Associated Press.

Actually, Brodie's comeback started last year. After the 1962 season, he suffered a broken arm in an automobile accident and missed 11 games in 1963 when the arm was rebroken early in the season.

Although the 49ers finished last in the Western Division in 1964, Brodie hit 193 passes in 391 throws for 2,498 yards and 14 touchdowns. Both the number of throws and number of completions were team records.

"I had great protection," the 10-year pro veteran said. "Just look at the record. At one stretch I was thrown for a loss just once in four games."

The 49ers posted a 7-6-1 record, finishing fourth. When the Green Bay Packers and Baltimore Colts clash on Sunday for the division title, the game might be a tribute to the 49er quarterback.

Last Sunday he completed 26 of 34 throws for a tremendous 76.5 percentage and three touchdowns as the 49ers battled Green Bay to a 24-24 tie and deadlocked the Packers and Colts in the regular season standings.

In that one, the Green Bay defenders tossed him just once for a loss of two yards.

Although he had George Mira in the wings awaiting a chance, Coach Jack Christiansen said at the season's start that Brodie was his quarterback, and the former Stanford star gave him some tremendous performances.

It could be his "Comeback" honor actually could be recognition of a player who has come into his own as a star.

Tommy McDonald, flanker for Los Angeles, was second to Brodie in the balloting by 42 newsmen in the NFL cities. Brodie had 12 votes and McDonald seven. John David Crow of San Francisco and Rudy Bukich of Chicago each had four.

Amos Marsh of Detroit had three votes. Green Bay's Jerry Kramer and Philadelphia's Pete Retzlaff each had two and the Bears as a team received one. Seven panel members did not vote in this category.

FOR WESTERN TITLE

Packers Vs Colts

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Beating the Baltimore Colts twice in one season was tough enough but beating them a third time will be the most difficult feat of all, says Coach Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers.

The Colts and Packers meet in a playoff here Sunday to determine the National Football League's Western Conference champion. It will be televised on CBS, Channel 5, 11 a.m. PST.

"It's pretty hard to beat a team three times in a season. I don't care who they are," Lombardi said.

The last time the two teams met, the Packers humiliated Baltimore, 42-27.

Lombardi was confident the Packers would be up for the game but noted that the proud Colts will have the added incentive of revenge.

NEW COACH—Jim Pittman, chief assistant coach at Texas, has signed a five-year contract to coach the Green Wave of Tulane University. Terms of the contract were unrevealed. (AP Wirephoto)

Lombardi also indicated he would welcome it if the Packers faced the same kind of blitzing tactics the Colts used last Saturday in beating Los Angeles, 20-17.

"Twenty-five times," said Lombardi who apparently counted the time the Colts sent linebackers or defensive backs crashing through the Ram line. "That's more than half the time blizting."

Lombardi said the popular belief that the blitz bothers the passer is unfounded. He said it could affect the running game. In fact, Lombardi said, the blitz gives the passer an advantage by removing a defender from the secondary.

Ray Nitschke remained the Packer's only doubtful starter Thursday although he took part in drills for the first time this week. Nitschke was still limping from a pulled hamstring and Lombardi said he would not start Sunday unless his limp disappears.

USF Whips St. Louis; Injuns Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Erwin Mueller, University of San Francisco's starting center, played against St. Louis University's Billikens last night despite an injured ankle but it hardly seemed necessary.

Mueller threw in 16 points as the Dons beat the Billikens 87-69 and all the other four USF starters also hit in double figures.

St. Louis got within two points late in the game but then the Dons rallied for 10 quick points and the contest.

Joe Ellis got 22 points for USF and Rich Parks 20 for St. Louis.

In other last games before the Christmas holidays, Stanford thumped Louisiana State, 91-69, Santa Clara edged California, 75-73, and Tulsa thumped St. Mary's, 82-60.

Stanford used a three - inch height advantage in the front line to overpower Louisiana State.

The visiting Tigers nearly wiped out a 44-35 Stanford lead, creeping to within one point, 46-45, two minutes into the second half.

But the Indians in three minutes shot ahead 61-51, and coasted from there.

Stanford's Art Harris and Jack Gilbert led their team with 17 points each.

Harry Heroman of LSU topped all scorers with 18.

Eric Paulson scored 22 points in pacing Santa Clara's victory over California.

North Meets South In Shrine Grid Game

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of all-star games, showcases for some of the nation's top individual collegiate football talent, serve as appetizers on Christmas Day, for next week's major bowl games.

Six All Americas will be in action, three on each side, when the North plays the South in Miami. The other is the Blue-Gray, matching seniors from above and below the Mason-Dixon line, in Montgomery, Ala. Both games are tomorrow afternoon.

Each is scheduled for national television. ABC will handle the North-South, with kickoff set for 1:30 p.m., PST. CBS has the Blue-Gray game, with kickoff at 1 p.m., PST.

Those should serve to whet the nation's television appetite for the following week's main course, including the Rose, Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Gator Bowls.

The North-South Shrine Game always has been a wide open, free scoring affair built on gambling, explosive offenses. And the 18th annual game in Miami Christmas Day shapes up as another in the series.

Playing a key role in such a forecast is the presence on the South's team of Bill Anderson and Howard Twilley, the combination that broke all the passing and receiving records at Tulsa this past season.

The South is coached by Tulsa's Glenn Dobbs, who also will have running back Rodger Bird of Kentucky and wingback George Pearce of William and Mary in the offensive line-up.

He also has two fierce linebackers, Tommy Nobis of Texas and Ed Weisacosky of Miami. Nobis, Weisacosky and Twilley were All America choices.

North Coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame counters with two All Americas from his own team, guard Dick Arrington and defensive halfback Nick Rassas, and Prudue tackle Karl Singer.

He will open with either Ken Lucas of Pittsburgh or Don Unverferth of Ohio State at quarterback. Sam Price of Illinois will be at half, Dave McNaughton of Penn State at full and Jim Todd of Ball State at wingback.

The South leads in the series 10-6, with two ties. The North won last year's game 37-30 on a touchdown pass by Notre Dame's Jack Snow in the last five seconds.

Kids Cage Tourney Winds Up

Champions were crowned yesterday in the Youth Basketball Tournament at San Rafael High School, after a total exceeding 500 boys had participated in the four-day program co-sponsored by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department and the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Laurel Dell Celtics won the fourth grade title by downing the San Pedro Bombers 6-2, as Steve D'Ambra scored four points. Craig Saunders tallied the Bombers' two, as they couldn's penetrate the Celtics' famed defense.

Mark Aman's 13 points sparked the Gallinas Lakers to a 21-6 win over the Laurel Dell Gophers and the fifth grade title, while the Glenwood Dons won the sixth grade crown with a 13-6 triumph over the San Pedro Marlins. Dirk Gonslosser led the winners with eight, while Chick Watt scored four for the Marlins.

Craig Hecht scored eight to lead the Davidson Panthers to a 21-15 win over the Santa Venetia Titans for the seventh grade championship, and the eighth grade crown went to San Jose Junior High, 40-26 winner over the Davidson Golds. David Perron led San Jose with 14.

San Rafael Nine Takes Time Off

The Litchfield Palmsmen of San Rafael, leading the San Francisco Triple-A winter semi-pro baseball league with a 6-0 mark, have the next two weekends off and they might well take time to contemplate the blessing that is good pitching.

Their pitching staff of Ron Cole, Bob DeRosa and Chuck Murray has allowed just four runs and 13 hits in the six games, four of which were shutouts. With pitching like that manager Joe Anselmo's club may consider giving up half their times at bat in the interest of speeding up the games.

This idea won't draw huzzahs from Jess Jacinto, who is stroking the ball at a .461 clip. Bob Frati is hitting .397 and Ron Blum and Don Lauters are at .380. The team average is a whopping .327.

East-West Stars Begin Drills For Dec. 31 Game

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett is mixing practice and financial negotiations while he awaits the Shrine football game here Dec. 31.

The Southern California halfback joined the rest of the West squad in its first workout yesterday at Stanford, while the East was starting practice at Santa Clara.

Later he and his attorney discussed negotiations with teams in both professional leagues. He was drafted in the second round by the Los Angeles Rams and 20th by the Kansas City Chiefs. He won't sign a contract until USC completes its baseball season, when the Pittsburgh Pirates are expected to make a strong pitch to get him to make a career of that sport.

Meanwhile, a pair of quarterbacks showed their West teammates yesterday that Garrett wasn't the only offensive punch in camp.

Paul Stein of Air Force and Tod Hullin of Washington completed 15 of 17 passes in a practice session, with end Gary Garrison of San Diego State and flanker Ben Hawkins of Arizona making outstanding catches.

East coach Ben Schwartzwalder put his team through two no-contact workouts, with the emphasis on offense.

Bills' Lou Saban Is Named AFL Coach Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills was named Coach of the Year in the American Football League Thursday in a poll of the league's players.

The award marked the second straight year Saban had been honored by the league's players.

The players also picked San Diego's Paul Lowe as Player of the Year and New York's Joe Namath as Rookie of the Year.

Lowe, who set a league rushing record of 1,121 yards, drew 104 votes to 68 for teammate Lance Alworth.

Namath polled 114 votes to 27 for fullback Gene Foster of San Diego.

The poll was conducted by The Sporting News.

It's Survival Of Fittest

SIDELINES

By ED RANDOL

Survival of the fittest. That's what this Sunday's playoff game between the Green Bay Packers and the Baltimore Colts amounts to. And with the Western Conference NFL title at stake, it would seem that the cards are stacked in favor of the Packers.

The key to any pro attack is the quarterback, and the Colts go into this one stripped bare. When regular Johnny Unitas was sidelined by injury the Colt's number two man, Gary Cuozzo, stepped in to fill the breach admirably. Unitas is considered tops of all the pro teams, and Cuozzo is rated the best backup man in the game.

When Cuozzo went out with a shoulder separation, Coach Don Shula had to dig into the record book to find a couple of men who had done some quarterbacking in college and came up with Tom Matte and Bobby Boyd. Both are great competitors but not as quarterbacks. Boyd, in fact, hasn't even operated with the offense as a Colt.

Matte's come-through performance against the Los Angeles Rams put the Colts into the division tie that necessitates the extra game. If the game goes according to form the Colts may wish that they had lost down in smogland, but hope springs eternal.

You can't win without scoring, and scoring is mighty tough when your quarterback is inept at passing. It figures that the Packers will move their league-leading pass defense up tight to shut off the running game, figuring any passes Matte may throw can't hurt too much.

So, if you were in Shula's shoes, what would you do? The answer is pretty obvious: Start with sweeps and then try to catch the drawn-up defense napping by having any or ALL the backs lob the ball into the Packer secondary on an option basis. Any pro can throw a fair enough pass even if he be no Unitas.

Such heroic measures may or may not work, but you can be sure the Colts will go down fighting. Very few experts gave them a chance against the Rams and they managed that one. Chances are good that the Packers will be pretty confident going into this game, perhaps too confident.

Weather reports out of Wisconsin indicate cold, freezing weather. Icy fingers don't hold passes too well, so this may turn into an old-fashioned, ground-fighting, low-scoring affair.

Now that I've talked myself into believing the Colts have a chance, I'll go on record with my idea of the final score. That would be Green Bay 38 to 10. I want to see the Packers against the Cleveland Browns on January 2.

Merry Christmas!

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Scribe Has Tip For Anglers On These Cold And Icy Mornings

STEVENS

So you are hoping to try out that new reel, rod, or other fishing accessories Santa is going to leave for you. If you are warmblooded and are willing to brave the arctic blasts on one of the steelhead rivers, you may (note I say you MAY) do yourself some good on the lower Russian, the area near the mouth of the Gualala, Garcia, Noya, Ten Mile and the Navarro, or in the main Eel as well as the South Fork of the Eel. At this writing the above streams are nearly in a GO condition, but the plain truth is that to date the results have been very very slim pickings.

AS STATED in other columns, before you make the trek to any stream you should phone a local (and dependable) on-the-spot party. The last report I have is of Tuesday. A light rain had fallen and seems to have enticed a goodly number of steelies into the streams near their mouths. A light rain will help somewhat; a hard rain will kill chances.

And that's that for steelhead with just one tip—these frigid mornings will unquestionably ice up the guides of your rod—even freeze the line on your reel. Should you hook a fish when ice has formed in the guides of your reel, you will be out of luck, until the guide is cleared. The modus operandi under such conditions is to dunk the entire rod, even the reel, into the water. That will clear the reel and the guides.

NOW FOR A look-see at the local bass picture. Fishing for stripers in the San Pablo and Suisun bays is strictly a case of "some do, but others don't." Results are spotty, but fish are being taken in the upper San Pablo and the middle and lower Suisun Bay, and some mighty nice stripers have been taken. Just learned that a south county angler, Chet Anderson, hooked and landed his dream fish. Said lunker weighed in (on accurate scales) at 40 pounds, eight ounces. Cheers for Chet, right?

The latest report from up the Klamath, the Happy Camp region is on hand. Jim Roads reports river in good shape, lots of fish in most areas; weather clear and cold, but warming after old Sol starts shining. Jim says: "I believe steelhead can be taken now on flies. Best bets are, ⅛-ounce red-tipped Little Jewel and Little Cleo, fresh roe and nightcrawlers. Fish are averaging four pounds with a few going to seven pounds or better. Present conditions should prevail for several weeks."

TOO BAD that the gunning set didn't get much hunting in the experimental six-county late season. Many of the areas were closed to hunting because of crops still unharvested, but the season is still open—will be until the day after Christmas. If you have gained permission from a land owner to hunt his acres, that's fine; you may get some last-minute pheasant hunting. Hope so, anyhow.

A dedicated angler living on my block informed me he uses a pocket warmer and alternates his hands while fishing. Nifty, eh? You can pick up a pocket heater in most sporting goods stores.

Drake Alumni Game On Tap

Former Drake High School varsity and Class B players will be on hand next Tusday at the annual alumni games on the Pirate's court in San Anselmo.

The "B" game will start at 7 p.m., followed by the varsity scrap. The games are free and all alums are welcome, said Drake cage coach Carl "Red" Brown.

Bullpups Win

Three preliminary basketball games were played at San Rafael High School Wednesday in addition to the varsity clash with South San Francisco. Color Line Broken For Blue-Gray Tilt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — If you believe in the law of averages, put your support behind the South to win tomorrow's Blue-Gray football game.

But if you think the outcome of the Christmas Day encounter will be decided by the caliber of the players, it might be a different story.

The rival squads of college seniors from above and below the Mason-Dixon Line are evenly matched.

Negroes will be in the line-up for the first time since the intersectional clash began more than two decades ago. And because the color barriers have fallen, the game will be televised nationally for the first time since 1962.

NBC dropped the telecast because of the policy against using Negro players, and for two years it was broadcast over an independent regional network.

Tomorrow's game will be carried nationally by CBS. The kickoff is at 1 p.m. PST.

The Southern all-stars have won 15 of the 26 Blue-Gray contests, the Northerners 11. And with two exceptions — in 1945 and 1959 — the Rebels have triumphed in every off-numbered year.

Consequently, if the law of averages prevails, it's the South's turn again this year. The Yankees won last year 10-6.

The Northern squad has two Negroes on its defensive team, 225-pound end Jim Long of Purdue and 248-pound Iowa tackle Bill Briggs.

When the Southerners have the ball a Florida A&M Negro, Eugene Thomas, will be in the backfield. On defense, the Rebels will use Thomas' teammate from Tallahassee, Johnny Holmes, at tackle.

The head coach for the Grays, Bill Elias of Navy, will be counting heavily on Texas A&I's Little All-America quarterback Randy Johnson, along with hard-running Mike Dennis of Ole Miss.

Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue, directing the Yankee strategy, has Fred Custardo of Illinois and Sonny Stowers of Army among his backfield performers.

Drake Loses Game And A Player

The Drake High School "B" basketball team lost a game and a player yesterday in the final day's action of the Jefferson "B" tourney in Daly City.

In the second quarter of Drake's 55-28 loss to San Mateo, top Pirate scorer Curry Miller fell and broke his left arm. He will be out for the season. Earlier this season, the only returning starter from last year, leg in an auto accident and was also lost for the season.

Drake had won their game Wednesday 41-30 over Oceana as Miller scored 14 and Bob Girvin and Dave Alvarado added nine each.

DAUGHERTY NAMED COACH OF THE YEAR

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty has been named National Football Coach of the Year.

His selection by the Football Writers Association of America was announced yesterday by Bert McGrane, association secretary.

Runnerup for the honor is Daugherty's Rose Bowl rival, Tommy Protho of UCLA.

Casper's In Lucky Field

Bill Casper, 34-year-old golf pro representing Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club of San Rafael, has entered the 1966 Lucky International Golf Tourney to be held Jan. 24-30 at San Francisco's Harding Park.

Casper had a most successful season on the pro tour this year, winning the Bob Hope Classic in Palm Springs, the Western Open in Chicago and the Insurance City Open in Hartford, Conn. The Lucky title has eluded him in the five years it has been held. This time the purse will be $50,000.

Terra Linda Wins

The Terra Linda varsity basketball team thumped its Alumni squad with a 30-point third quarter last night and waltzed to a 71-44 victory before a crowd estimated by coach George Starn to be about 700 at the high school.

Marin 'Cats Blow Lead, Lose 47-29

Marin Catholic's cagers blew a 21-17 halftime lead yesterday when they managed only eight points in the second half to fall to Mission High of San Francisco, 47-29.

The Wildcats were outscored 11-1 in the third quarter and 19-7 in the final stanza. Wildcat fouling had much to do with their defeat, as Mission made 11 free throws to Marin's five, the Bears having many more opportunities from the charity stripe.

The main cog in the Mission offense was 6-6 center Hiram Peterson, who at 16 years of age is still a bit uncoordinated but worked easily around the basket for 17 points against the rather short Wildcats. Marin center Bob Lombardi, 6-2, accumulated four fouls in the first half trying to guard Peterson. Bruce Taylor hit eight for eight from the foulline for Mission, which only brought five players.

Mike Lasater and Ches Bornia led Marin with 10 each. The Wildcats play next at home against St. Joseph's Tuesday. Tipoff will be at 7 p.m.

Scoring:

Mission	11	6	11	19—47
Marin Catholic	11	10	1	7—29

Mission: Ed Garrett 1-0-2; Marshall Clay 4-0-8; Hiram Peterson 7-3-17; Pete Bozo 4-0-8; Bruce Taylor 2-8-12. Total: 18-11-47.

Marin Catholic: Mike Lasater 5-0-10; Ches Bornia 4-2-10; Bob Lombardi 0-1-1; Pat Waltz 3-1-7; Brian Grove 0-1-1. Total: 12-5-29.

Denny Untermann scored 31 points yesterday to lead West End Nursery past the Huskers 87-41 in Adult C League action in San Rafael. Ron Pedersen and Fred Hilton each had 12 for the losers. Scotto's won the other C game by forfeit over the Do Goods.

Mike Wroblewski hit 20 as the Bus Stoppers downed Fox Petroleum Co. 48-37. Tom Corbett had 13 for Fox in the B game. In the other B tilt Ron Blum's 23 points sqarked Brandon Tires to a close 66-62 win over the Mill Valley Boys Club.

Drake Wins In 'B' Tourney

Drake High School's Class B cagers were playing San Mateo's "B" team today for the consolation title of the Jefferson Lightweight tournament going on in Daly City.

THERE'S ALWAYS ROOM FOR ONE MORE

Cleveland Browns' fullback Jim Brown looks over a few of his numerous trophies accumulated since playing in the National Football League. He got one more for his collection when he was voted 1965 NFL Player of the Year in a poll conducted by United Press International. It's Survival Of Fittest

SIDELINES

By ED RANDOL

Survival of the fittest. That's what this Sunday's playoff game between the Green Bay Packers and the Baltimore Colts amounts to. And with the Western Conference NFL title at stake, it would seem that the cards are stacked in favor of the Packers.

The key to any pro attack is the quarterback, and the Colts go into this one stripped bare. When regular Johnny Unitas was sidelined by injury the Colt's number two man, Gary Cuozzo, stepped in to fill the breach admirably. Unitas is considered tops of all the pro teams, and Cuozzo is rated the best backup man in the game.

When Cuozzo went out with a shoulder separation, Coach Don Shula had to dig into the record book to find a couple of men who had done some quarterbacking in college and came up with Tom Matte and Bobby Boyd. Both are great competitors but not as quarterbacks. Boyd, in fact, hasn't even operated with the offense as a Colt.

Matte's come-through performance against the Los Angeles Rams put the Colts into the division tie that necessitates the extra game. If the game goes according to form the Colts may wish that they had lost down in smogland, but hope springs eternal.

You can't win without scoring, and scoring is mighty tough when your quarterback is inept at passing. It figures that the Packers will move their league-leading pass defense up tight to shut off the running game, figuring any passes Matte may throw can't hurt too much.

So, if you were in Shula's shoes, what would you do? The answer is pretty obvious: Start with sweeps and then try to catch the drawn-up defense napping by having any or ALL the backs lob the ball into the Packer secondary on an option basis. Any pro can throw a fair enough pass even if he be no Unitas.

Such heroic measures may or may not work, but you can be sure the Colts will go down fighting. Very few experts gave them a chance against the Rams and they managed that one. Chances are good that the Packers will be pretty confident going into this game, perhaps too confident.

Weather reports out of Wisconsin indicate cold, freezing weather. Icy fingers don't hold passes too well, so this may turn into an old-fashioned, ground-fighting, low-scoring affair.

Now that I've talked myself into believing the Colts have a chance, I'll go on record with my idea of the final score. That would be Green Bay 38 to 10. I want to see the Packers against the Cleveland Browns on January 2.

Merry Christmas!

Getting their gear together after the last workout before the Christmas holidays are (from left) Texas Tech All-America halfback Donny Anderson, tackle John Porter and quarterback Tom Wilson. Texas Tech will take on Georgia Tech in the Gator Bowl Dec. 31. After that, Anderson is expected to sign a rich contract with either the Houston Oilers of the American Football League or the Green Bay Packers of the NFL. (UPI Telephoto)

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Scribe Has Tip For Anglers On These Cold And Icy Mornings

STEVENS

So you are hoping to try out that new reel, rod, or other fishing accessories Santa is going to leave for you. If you are warmblooded and are willing to brave the arctic blasts on one of the steelhead rivers, you may (note I say you MAY) do yourself some good on the lower Russian, the area near the mouth of the Gualala, Garcia, Noya, Ten Mile and the Navarro, or in the main Eel as well as the South Fork of the Eel. At this writing the above streams are nearly in a GO condition, but the plain truth is that to date the results have been very very slim pickings.

AS STATED in other columns, before you make the trek to any stream you should phone a local (and dependable) on-the-spot party. The last report I have is of Tuesday. A light rain had fallen and seems to have enticed a goodly number of steelies into the streams near their mouths. A light rain will help somewhat; a hard rain will kill chances.

And that's that for steelhead with just one tip—these frigid mornings will unquestionably ice up the guides of your rod—even freeze the line on your reel. Should you hook a fish when ice has formed in the guides of your reel, you will be out of luck, until the guide is cleared. The modus operandi under such conditions is to dunk the entire rod, even the reel, into the water. That will clear the reel and the guides.

NOW FOR A look-see at the local bass picture. Fishing for stripers in the San Pablo and Suisun bays is strictly a case of "some do, but others don't." Results are spotty, but fish are being taken in the upper San Pablo and the middle and lower Suisun Bay, and some mighty nice stripers have been taken. Just learned that a south county angler, Chet Anderson, hooked and landed his dream fish. Said lunker weighed in (on accurate scales) at 40 pounds, eight ounces. Cheers for Chet, right?

The latest report from up the Klamath, the Happy Camp region is on hand. Jim Roads reports river in good shape, lots of fish in most areas; weather clear and cold, but warming after old Sol starts shining. Jim says: "I believe steelhead can be taken now on flies. Best bets are, 1/3-ounce red-tipped Little Jewel and Little Cleo, fresh roe and nightcrawlers. Fish are averaging four pounds with a few going to seven pounds or better. Present conditions should prevail for several weeks."

TOO BAD that the gunning set didn't get much hunting in the experimental six-county late season. Many of the areas were closed to hunting because of crops still unharvested, but the season is still open—will be until the day after Christmas. If you have gained permission from a land owner to hunt his acres, that's fine; you may get some last-minute pheasant hunting. Hope so, anyhow.

A dedicated angler living on my block informed me he uses a pocket warmer and alternates his hands while fishing. Nifty, eh? You can pick up a pocket heater in most sporting goods stores.

Drake Alumni Game On Tap

Former Drake High School varsity and Class B players will be on hand next Tusday at the annual alumni games on the Pirate's court in San Anselmo.

The "B" game will start at 7 p.m., followed by the varsity scrap. The games are free and all alums are welcome, said Drake cage coach Carl "Red" Brown.

Bullpups Win

Three preliminary basketball games were played at San Rafael High School Wednesday in addition to the varsity clash with South San Francisco. The Bulldog B team whipped the visitors 47-36 with Gary Welch scoring 16 points, but the Warrior freshmen downed San Rafael's frosh 42-39 and the South City junior varsity clobbered San Rafael 80-40.

Clipper Yacht To Be In Show

The San Francisco Yacht Club's Clipper Class has decided to display the championship clipper "Bottoms Up" of member Scott Harris at the International Sailboat Show at Civic Auditorium in San Francisco next month.

The class re-elected its officers, President Tim McGovern, secretary-treasurer Hart Corbett and directors Bill Moore and Harris.

Color Line Broken For Blue-Gray Tilt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — If you believe in the law of averages, put your support behind the South to win tomorrow's Blue-Gray football game.

But if you think the outcome of the Christmas Day encounter will be decided by the caliber of the players, it might be a different story.

The rival squads of college seniors from above and below the Mason-Dixon Line are evenly matched.

Negroes will be in the line-up for the first time since the intersectional clash began more than two decades ago. And because the color barriers have fallen, the game will be televised nationally for the first time since 1962.

NBC dropped the telecast because of the policy against using Negro players, and for two years it was broadcast over an independent regional network.

Tomorrow's game will be carried nationally by CBS. The kickoff is at 1 p.m. PST.

The Southern all-stars have won 15 of the 26 Blue-Gray contests, the Northerners 11. And with two exceptions — in 1945 and 1959 — the Rebels have triumphed in every off-numbered year.

Consequently, if the law of averages prevails, it's the South's turn again this year. The Yankees won last year 10-6.

The Northern squad has two Negroes on its defensive team, 225-pound end Jim Long of Purdue and 248-pound Iowa tackle Bill Briggs.

When the Southerners have the ball a Florida A&M Negro, Eugene Thomas, will be in the backfield. On defense, the Rebels will use Thomas' teammate from Tallahassee, Johnny Holmes, at tackle.

The head coach for the Grays, Bill Elias of Navy, will be counting heavily on Texas A&I's Little All-America quarterback Randy Johnson, along with hard-running Mike Dennis of Ole Miss.

Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue, directing the Yankee strategy, has Fred Custardo of Illinois and Sonny Stowers of Army among his backfield performers.

Drake Loses Game And A Player

The Drake High School "B" basketball team lost a game and a player yesterday in the final day's action of the Jefferson "B" tourney in Daly City.

In the second quarter of Drake's 55-28 loss to San Mateo, top Pirate scorer Curry Miller fell and broke his left arm. He will be out for the season. Earlier this season, the only returning starter from last year, leg in an auto accident and was also lost for the season.

Drake had won their game Wednesday 41-30 over Oceana as Miller scored 14 and Bob Girvin and Dave Alvarado added nine each.

DAUGHERTY NAMED COACH OF THE YEAR

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty has been named National Football Coach of the Year.

His selection by the Football Writers Association of America was announced yesterday by Bert McGrane, association secretary.

Runnerup for the honor is Daugherty's Rose Bowl rival, Tommy Protho of UCLA.

Casper's In Lucky Field

Bill Casper, 34-year-old golf pro representing Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club of San Rafael, has entered the 1966 Lucky International Golf Tourney to be held Jan. 24-30 at San Francisco's Harding Park.

Casper had a most successful season on the pro tour this year, winning the Bob Hope Classic in Palm Springs, the Western Open in Chicago and the Insurance City Open in Hartford, Conn. The Lucky title has eluded him in the five years it has been held. This time the purse will be $50,000.

Terra Linda Wins

The Terra Linda varsity basketball team thumped its Alumni squad with a 30-point third quarter last night and waltzed to a 71-44 victory before a crowd estimated by coach George Starn to be about 700 at the high school.

Marin 'Cats Blow Lead, Lose 47-29

Marin Catholic's cagers blew a 21-17 halftime lead yesterday when they managed only eight points in the second half to fall to Mission High of San Francisco, 47-29.

The Wildcats were outscored 11-1 in the third quarter and 19-7 in the final stanza. Wildcat fouling had much to do with their defeat, as Mission made 11 free throws to Marin's five, the Bears having many more opportunities from the charity stripe.

The main cog in the Mission offense was 6-6 center Hiram Peterson, who at 16 years of age is still a bit uncoordinated but worked easily around the basket for 17 points against the rather short Wildcats. Marin center Bob Lombardi, 6-2, accumulated four fouls in the first half trying to guard Peterson. Bruce Taylor hit eight for eight from the foulline for Mission, which only brought five players.

Mike Lasater and Ches Bornia led Marin with 10 each. The Wildcats play next at home against St. Joseph's Tuesday. Tipoff will be at 7 p.m.

Scoring:

Mission	11	6	11	19—47
Marin Catholic	11	10	1	7—29

Mission: Ed Garrett 1-0-2; Marshall Clay 4-0-8; Hiram Peterson 7-3-17; Pete Bozo 4-0-8; Bruce Taylor 2-8-12. Total: 18-11-47.

Marin Catholic: Mike Lasater 5-0-10; Ches Bornia 4-2-10; Bob Lombardi 0-1-1; Pat Waltz 3-1-7; Brian Grove 0-1-1. Total: 12-5-29.

West End Quint Wins Cage Tilt

Denny Untermann scored 31 points yesterday to lead West End Nursery past the Huskers 87-41 in Adult C League action in San Rafael. Ron Pedersen and Fred Hilton each had 12 for the losers. Scotto's won the other C game by forfeit over the Do Goods.

Mike Wroblewski hit 20 as the Bus Stoppers downed Fox Petroleum Co. 48-37. Tom Corbett had 13 for Fox in the B game. In the other B tilt Ron Blum's 23 points sqarked Brandon Tires to a close 66-62 win over the Mill Valley Boys Club.

Drake Wins In 'B' Tourney

Drake High School's Class B cagers were playing San Mateo's "B" team today for the consolation title of the Jefferson Lightweight tournament going on in Daly City.

The Pirate babes whipped Oceana 41-30 yesterday to gain a berth in the finals today. Jim Miller led the Drake scoring yesterday with 14 points.

A Team Is Available To Help Plan Estates

By ANDREW BALDWIN

Long ago, our courts pointed out that paying the largest tax is not a necessary element of patriotism. All of us know the difference between evading and avoiding taxes.

Our current federal tax laws actually show the way to the postponement of substantial amounts of estate taxes.

While the primary parties in a tax-saving effort are the property owner and his heirs, there is also a supporting staff, and each member can and does make a substantial contribution toward minimizing the tax cost in an estate.

The supporting staff includes the insurance underwriter, the trust officer, the accountant, and the attorney.

The underwriter demonstrates the need for liquidity to pay taxes and expenses and thus forestalls sales of valuable estate property. The accountant in addition to his other functions can be helpful in estimating the property values on which the plans will be based. The trust officer may explain to the property owner the general areas of tax savings and services for those who establish irrevocable trusts and testamentary trusts to reduce successive tax bites. It is the attorney who ties together the many family and tax-saving objectives of the property owner, the contracts provided by the underwriter, and the services of the trust officer's organization — all into an integrated plan suited to the client and the client's heirs.

The property owners' heirs may be primary parties in this tax-saving effort because they can encourage early and informed estate planning, restraining the property owners from making gifts without proper legal and tax advice, drawing holographic wills, or shortcutting the transfer of property by such devices as joint tenancy.

All too frequently the result of no planning at all or planning without competent advice is that the heirs, themselves, pay the penalty through higher, unexpected, and unnecessary outlays of tax money.

As the property owner, you could dispose of some or all of your estate during your lifetime with most interesting tax results. You could make use of gift tax exclusions and exemptions, transfer income-tax responsibility in the property given, pay no estate or gift tax on charitable donations, and if you must pay a gift tax, you would be told that it is much less than the estate tax.

Post-mortem tax planning complements this advance lifetime planning by working out efficiently and economically the various programs designed to save taxes.

Tax returns must be accurate, must be filed promptly, be complete in all respects, and must take advantage of all proper deductions, exemptions, exclusions, credits, options, discounts, and installment payments that the tax law allows, and must avoid all penalties and interest.

Property evaluation is also a must important part of post-mortem tax planning, for on the valuation of the estate, executor, attorney, and appraiser fees are fixed, taxes of all types are assessed, and such values establish the basis for capital gain or loss on later sale. A recently reported estate found the appraiser fixing a value on a farm close to a growing city at $157,000, with federal taxing authorities making an estimate of $897,000. The tax court finally fixed a value of $240,000. As you can see, whatever value would have been accepted would have had an immediate effect on inheritance-tax and federal estate tax costs, depreciation schedules now and capital gains later.

Today is a market holiday. The New York Stock Exchange is closed.

Oldsters May Lose Out On Security Check

About 500 oldsters have been found in Marin County who qualify for new social security benefits who never before have been eligible to receive a social security check.

But there are twice as many in the county who could also receive the benefits if they only could be found and told about the new law, according to an estimate made by Patrick M. Stevens, social security district manager for San Rafael.

The law's feature affects persons previously denied benefits because they had less than six quarters, about 18 months, coverage under social security.

Now men 76 or older, and women 73 or older, may receive $35 a month if they have nine months work covered by social security.

Men 75 years old now need only four quarters, about a year, and 74-year-olds need five quarters. Women now 72 need four quarters, and women who will be 72 next year may qualify on their birthdays if they have five quarters work.

In addition, if a husband worked long enough to qualify, a wife may be entitled to $17.50 a month when they are 72, and some widows will be eligible for $35 when they are 72.

Stevens said anyone who believes he may be eligible should contact the nearest social security office for more information.

Boy Can't Hide Fiery Pastime

SAN JOSE (UPI)—A 6-year-old boy tried to hide a fire under his bed. It didn't work.

Fire investigators said the lad admitted he set fire to some papers while playing with matches Wednesday. Trying to hide the evidence, he slid it under the bed and went into the living room to watch television with his five brothers and sisters.

An older brother smelled smoke and called firemen who extinguished the flames after two bedrooms and a bath had been destroyed.

Economist Sees Less Growth In Next Year

NEW YORK — One of the nation's top airline economists predicts that it will be difficult in 1966 to match the 1965 growth of about 5 per cent in the economy and 16 per cent in the airline industry.

George P. Hitchings, vice president for economic research and financial relations of American Airlines, said in a yearend review that the most likely prospect is a growth moderately less than these amounts, but still well above average.

Yacht Sales Hearing

Hearing on Edgewater Yacht Co.'s request for a use permit to allow a branch sales office at 633 Redwood Highway near Richardson Bay will be at 11:30 a.m. Monday before the Marin County zoning administrator at the Civic Center. Applications for four variances will be heard in the afternoon session.

Pork Prices Likely To Fall Next Spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department said farmers planned to produce a spring crop of 46 million pigs, up 7 per cent from the spring pig crop this year.

This means farmers definitely have started expanding swine production, which would cut the retail price of pork.

Ex-Tam Teacher Helps Hospital

A former Tamalpais High School teacher who went to Selma, Ala., for the Selma to Montgomery march last spring, is now director of the Selma Hospital Fund Committee.

Maxwell A. Hull (known as "Mac") of 81 Rollingwood Drive, San Rafael, gave up a planned trip to Europe for graduate study to work for Good Samaritan Hospital in Selma.

Hull said he "fell in love with the work being done at the Good Samaritan Hospital" when he was in Selma and "decided then that something should be done to bring this great positive story to the attention of my fellow westerners."

Good Samaritan Hospital, with a patient load 99 per cent Negro, serves a six-county area and has grown from a store-front clinic dispensing out-patient care to a complete medical complex.

Hull, operating out of headquarters in San Francisco, travels to major metropolitan areas throughout the west to outline the hospital's needs and tell of the work being done there.

The hospital was established in 1943-44 by the Fathers of St. Edmund, a Catholic order, dedicated to serving the Negro poor in the South.

In 1947 Good Samaritan constructed an 85-bed, two-story hospital, the first such facility for Negroes in Dallas County. In 1950 a school of licensed practical nursing for Negroes was opened, ad in 1957, the hospital established a 26-bed nursing home.

The greatest expansion came last Christmas when a four-story, modern facility was opened. It is the tallest building in Selma and the second largest employer in the community, and its sole support comes from donations.

Unruh Warns Of Wrath If Speakr Battle Arises

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, has told members of the Assembly he will consider it a person affront for anyone to carry on any active or open campaigning for the speakership job.

Rumor has it that Unruh will seek election to one of the new State Senate districts in Los Angeles County next year, leaving his present powerful job vacant. Rumor also has it that Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, is Unruh's hand-picked successor.

However, Assemblyman Carlos Bee, D-Hayward, speaker pro tempore for the past seven years, also is seeking the speakership and has been attempting to line up support.

Unruh is expected to announce his political intentions at a testimonial and fund-raising dinner in his honor in Los Angeles on Jan. 13. Meanwhile, he has sent letters to all members.

"I would like all of my colleagues to know that I have made no decision with references to my own plans nor have I made any announcement about them," Unruh said.

Unruh said he felt it was perfectly natural and proper for members to discuss their views of the situation and their preferences.

"I do not, however, believe members ought to sign or make pledges or publish lists of supporters in advance of any opening in the position of speaker of the Assembly," he said. "Being the occupant of that position, for as long as my colleagues will tolerate me, I must regard active and open campaigning for the position as a personal affront."

Unruh said things might be changing rapidly, back and forth, in the next few weeks and members should refrain from becoming publicly committed. He said it was uncertain what the 1967 session would hold until the 20 to 28 new assemblymen take their seats.

Assessment Plan Gains Backing

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District board voted Tuesday to set up an assessment district to finance sewers for the Harbor Point development on Strawberry Point, secretary Alfred O. Pratesi reported.

The board learned from the district's attorney, Sherrod Davis, that easement deeds have been obtained from four Strawberry residents for a sewer main across their property from Harbor Point to the Salt Works Canal pumping station. Negotiations with a fifth resident are continuing, Davis reported.

The board discussed retirement benefits and a hospital plan for district employees but took no action.

A Team Is Available To Help Plan Estates

By ANDREW BALDWIN

Long ago, our courts pointed out that paying the largest tax is not a necessary element of patriotism. All of us know the difference between evading and avoiding taxes.

Our current federal tax laws actually show the way to the postponement of substantial amounts of estate taxes.

While the primary parties in a tax-saving effort are the property owner and his heirs, there is also a supporting staff, and each member can and does make a substantial contribution toward minimizing the tax cost in an estate.

The supporting staff includes the insurance underwriter, the trust officer, the accountant, and the attorney.

The underwriter demonstrates the need for liquidity to pay taxes and expenses and thus forestalls sales of valuable estate property. The accountant in addition to his other functions can be helpful in estimating the property values on which the plans will be based. The trust officer may explain to the property owner the general areas of tax savings and services for those who establish irrevocable trusts and testamentary trusts to reduce successive tax bites. It is the attorney who ties together the many family and tax-saving objectives of the property owner, the contracts provided by the underwriter, and the services of the trust officer's organization — all into an integrated plan suited to the client and the client's heirs.

The property owners' heirs may be primary parties in this tax-saving effort because they can encourage early and informed estate planning, restraining the property owners from making gifts without proper legal and tax advice, drawing holographic wills, or shortcutting the transfer of property by such devices as joint tenancy.

All too frequently the result of no planning at all or planning without competent advice is that the heirs, themselves, pay the penalty through higher, unexpected, and unnecessary outlays of tax money.

As the property owner, you could dispose of some or all of your estate during your lifetime with most interesting tax results. You could make use of gift tax exclusions and exemptions, transfer income-tax responsibility in the property given, pay no estate or gift tax on charitable donations, and if you must pay a gift tax, you would be told that it is much less than the estate tax.

Post-mortem tax planning complements this advance lifetime planning by working out efficiently and economically the various programs designed to save taxes.

Tax returns must be accurate, must be filed promptly, be complete in all respects, and must take advantage of all proper deductions, exemptions, exclusions, credits, options, discounts, and installment payments that the tax law allows, and must avoid all penalties and interest.

Property evaluation is also a must important part of post-mortem tax planning, for on the valuation of the estate, executor, attorney, and appraiser fees are fixed, taxes of all types are assessed, and such values establish the basis for capital gain or loss on later sale. A recently reported estate found the appraiser fixing a value on a farm close to a growing city at $157,000, with federal taxing authorities making an estimate of $897,000. The tax court finally fixed a value of $240,000. As you can see, whatever value would have been accepted would have had an immediate effect on inheritance-tax and federal estate tax costs, depreciation schedules now and capital gains later.

'Peace On Earth' Is Wish For Every Day Of Year

The message of "Peace" and "Goodwill" may sound like cruel mockery in a time of strife and suffering.

Instead of peace, we think in terms of a huge network of anti-missile defense. Instead of goodwill, we look to intercontinental ballistic missiles with nuclear warheads.

But the ageless message bearing the words "peace" and "goodwill" is still mankind's only hope for ultimate survival.

"Peace on earth; goodwill to men." The message is being repeated between individuals and among nations.

The exchange will be accompanied this year with gratitude, sorrow, prayer and hope.

Gratitude to the thousands of men and women who face strife in its most brutal form in far-flung corners of the world, so that the rest of us can live in peace and in comfort.

Sorrow, which only the loved ones can really feel, for those who have given their all.

Hearts go out to the suffering, with a fervent prayer for their quick recovery.

And most of all, we all look forward to the day when peace and goodwill become more than just whispered hopes in a world bristling with arms and animosities.

We join peoples of all nations in expressing those hopes, as Pope John XXIII did in his encyclical "Pacem in Terris":

"May He banish from the hearts of men whatever might endanger peace, may He transform them into witnesses of truth, justice, and brotherly love.

"May He enlighten the rulers of peoples so that in addition to their solicitude for the proper welfare of their citizens, they may guarantee and defend the great gift of peace.

"Finally, may Christ enkindle the wills of all, so that they may overcome the barriers that divide, cherish the bonds of mutual charity, understand others, and pardon those who have done them wrong. By virtue of His action, may all peoples of the earth become as brothers, and may the most longed-for peace blossom forth and reign always between them. . . ."

DIKE HELD BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Teen-agers saved the flood-threatened town of Stillwater, Minn., by building and manning the dike that protected the downtown district.

Many towns, in fact, throughout the Midwest, were safeguarded from the rampaging rivers by young people from hundreds of colleges and high schools.

They hurried out after classes to the swollen riverbanks, often working throughout the night living on potato chips, coffee, ice cream and candy bars.

One night at the dike, when new bags arrived to be filled with sand, the call was issued for volunteers. "Within 15 minutes," the town's mayor exclaimed, "they passed the word and 200 kids were on the dike."

Persons, young or old, who respond to an emergency situation show the enormous and scarcely tapped resources God has put in them.

Seek to provide incentives and outlets for those who want to do more for humanity on a long-term and continuing basis.

"To whom much has been given, much will be required." (Luke 12:48)

The Lure Of Mistletoe Banishes Animosities Of Political Life

By WAT TAKESHITA

Takeshita

Even politics seems to take a holiday this time of year.

You make the rounds of holiday parties and find partisans from both ends of the political spectrum toasting each other in the good old holiday spirit.

Inside, they may be shooting daggers at each other, but outwardly it's peace and goodwill to all.

It's all very heartwarming, especially the spirits.

Sure, the talk sometimes turns to politics, but comments that normally bite have been softened at the edges.

THIS IS THE one season when Dr. Gaylord Parkinson's 11th Commandment is at its glory. "Thou shalt not speak ill of other Republicans" is extended to include all "good Democrats," especially if he's the host dispensing drinks from behind the bar.

But when the year-end daze is over, and the new year rolls around, the differences will come back into focus. And this is how it will look:

ON JAN. 4, actor Ronald Reagan is scheduled to announce his long-awaited decision — to run for governor.

(Our part-time staff member, young Glen Becker, almost had a "scoop" on this item about Reagan's Jan. 4 announcement. Becker, a student at University of California, writes a column for the Daily Californian. As early as Thursday, Dec. 9, he had the information and tapped out his column, for Monday (Dec. 13) publication. But during that weekend the information leaked out of Southern California).

But our boy Becker had it first!

Former U.S. Attorney and crime buster Laughlin Waters is very much in the running for Republican nomination for governor.

But political pundits in the Bay Area foresee a congealing of the moderates around George Christopher of San Francisco. It could well be that the race will narrow down to Reagan vs. Christopher for the Republican nomination.

BILL WEISSICH, who headed the county's campaign for Barry Goldwater last year, is not likely to be the county chairman for Reagan in the coming campaign.

For one thing, his law practice is keeping Weissich hopping, and he has been court-appointed to defend a young man in the re-trial of a murder case in Fairfield. (He was convicted the first time around). And that trial should be coming up during the height of the primary campaign.

THE NATIONAL Beautification Act got such a boost from Mrs. Lyndon Johnson that it was called "Lady Bird's bill."

California, not to be outdone, has scheduled a "Governor's Conference on California Beauty" in Los Angeles on Jan. 11 and 12. And guess who's heading the state-wide citizens' advisory committee? It's California's "Lady Bird," Mrs. Edmund G. Brown.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

We All Can Help Human Rights

Editor, Independent-Journal:

It is with considerable hope that I have read the conclusions of the Marin Symposium on human rights. Here in Marin there is a chance reason may prevail.

By the account in the I-J, most of the 160 attendees seemed ready to reconsider the popular idealistic obsession that in human affairs you can accomplish more with persuasion. For years conservatives have tried to get across the point that you can't force people to love each other. Dr. Joseph L. White, the Negro psychologist who participated in the symposium said, as Sen. Barry Goldwater said last year—the solution to the problems of racial discrimination lies in changing the hearts and minds of men.

I agree with the conclusions of the symposium. The answer to the question "What can we do?" is "Whatever we can"—each as individuals.

Some positive actions we can take include:

1. Use all that money and energy wasted in demonstrations to motivate Negroes to continue their education.

2. Encourage self improvement. Not one major civil rights leader says "Don't flunk out." They coax the very children who need education the most out of the classrooms and into the streets.

3. Build Negro businesses. Why do Negroes let their money go out of Negro hands? Negro businessmen now loudly complain that Negro organizations bypass their restaurants and services just so they can say "we are integrated."

4. Build racial pride in Negro history and traditions.

5. Forget that fright pedaling . . . point out the good in people instead of the bad.

6. Publicize positive actions.

Where and when can we as individuals do some of these things? We can start today in our civic clubs, our bridge clubs, business, P-TA's, political organizations . . .

Right Action From Thought

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The following is quoted from Walter Lippman's column:

"I found that the most sophisticated South Americans feel that Washington is so preoccupied with its black and white anti-communism that it is not putting its mind seriously on solving the problems which generate communism. 'What your people do not understand,' said an official who has wrestled with our delegation at the Rio conference, 'is that in Latin America communism is not the supreme evil you say it is but the only alternative in case we fail to ovecome what we regard as the supreme evils of poverty and despair.' "

In other words the people of Latin America are embracing communism; because what we have to offer, is not very effective.

The following quote is from Henry George's "Social Problems" written in New York in 1883.

"Whoever, laying aside prejudice and self-interest, will honestly and carefully make up his own mind as to the causes and the cure of the social evils that are so apparent, does, in that, the most important thing in his power toward their removal.

"Social reform is not to be secured by noise and shouting; by complaints and denunciation; by the formation of parties, or the making of revolutions; but the awakening of thought and the progress of ideas. Until there be correct thought, there cannot be right action; and when there is correct thought, right action will follow. Power is always in the hands of the people. What oppresses the people is their own ignorance, their own short-sighted selfishness."

Each individual approaches the Truth by independent means.

You Can Be Glad For Flag Wavers

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In reply to Mr. Kerss' letter of 20 December, I state that I too am getting a little tired —nay, absolutely tired of this type drivel that flows forth from the pens of those who would look down on people who do wave the American flag.

Specifically I take issue with the statement: "We condemned Hitler's Germans of crimes against humanity. But we are as guilty today." Where does the guilt lie? I suppose it is all right for the Viet Cong to murder a whole South Vietnamese village or possibly just a few of its leaders. It's A-okay for Uncle Ho's boys to stroll through Laos, a nonbelligerent, en route to South Viet Nam where these playful fellows toss a few grenades at innocent civilians . . . But if the United States drops bombs on the North or if the GIs use tear gas to flush out the Viet Cong, then this becomes American atrocities in your eyes.

If we write off Viet Nam and pull out we may wake up to find the maps changing. China could extend from the Russian border to the southern tip of what was once India (a sovereign state now) to the bottom of Korea (remember that place?) . . .

I, for one, believe it when China says that war with the United States is inevitable, so I'm for conducting it on our terms for a change. No more Pearl Harbors for me.

One more thing, Mr. Kerss, I do not happen to be too old or decrepit to fight. I'm not a school dropout, hoodlum or bum. In fact I have spent the last fifteen years "putting up" in the Air Force while you, no doubt, have been tending the home fires of Mill Valley. Be glad there are flag wavers in this country. It helps keep a red star from flying over the capital in Washington.

GOP Watchdogs Must Be Nice While Watching Poverty War

WASHINGTON—The Republican Party faces a dilemma from which it urgently needs to free itself.

If the GOP keeps a sharp and exposing eye on the muddles and scandals churned up by the anti-poverty program, it runs the risk of being punished by the same public it is trying to serve.

ENOUGH HAS gone wrong at the edges of the anti-poverty administration to warn that shoddy abuses are lurking at its heels.

This is the very point at which the Republican dilemma is acute:

There will be a strong public demand to keep the anti-poverty administration on its toes and to expose scandal and mismanagement wherever they show their face.

But there will be a sharp adverse public reaction if the investigating Republicans leave any impression that they are hostile to the purposes of the anti-poverty program, or are exposing its mistakes to hamper it rather than to help it.

This is why Rep. Charles E. Goodell of New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy and Planning Committee, is doing his party—and the public—a good service by circulating to the entire GOP membership this twin admonition: (1) Watch for abuses and wrong-doing in the administration of the anti-poverty program; (2) support it strongly every time you speak out against its shortcomings.

Goodell feels — and many agree with him—that the anti-poverty program rests upon such a loosely drawn law, creating a loose administration, that "abuses and scandals are almost inevitable."

HIS VIEW finds support from one of the strong friends of the program, the National Committee for an Effective Congress, which warns that, with all the new programs burgeoning in Washington, it will "take a miracle to avoid the development of at least one politically damaging scandal."

But Goodell does not want to see the GOP make the mistake of simply charging out with all spears at the ready against abuse and scandal, and simultaneously leave the impression that they are aiming at the poor.

"It is imperative," he is telling his colleagues, that they show "they are in favor of helping the poor"—in actions as well as in words.

Because of the GOP minority position in Congress, which enables the Democrats to turn down everything until they are ready to act, the Republican record doesn't get the attention it deserves. On anti-poverty measures, it is a constructive and forehanded record.

AS FAR BACK AS 1961, the Republicans sponsored an amendment to the Juvenile Delinquency Act to set up a head start program. They also sponsored a pilot job corps proposal in 1963. These measures were opposed by the administration at the time.

Take another example. In the 1965 poverty debate the Republicans offered an amendment to require involving of the poor at policy level, but it was opposed by nearly all the Democrats on the Labor and Education Committee. Committee Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N. Y., who has lately been trumpeting his plea that the poor ought to participate, rejected the amendment on the ground it was unnecessary.

The House Republican Anti-Poverty Committee, led by Rep. Albert Quie of Minnesota, is doing well in pushing for adequate representation of the poor on local community action boards. This is not the road to riots and chaos; it is the road away from them.

INVOLVEMENT of the poor in the poverty program needs conservative support and it is getting it in Goodell's ardent plea to his fellow Republicans.

Public Service Camps For War Objectors?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — "Civilian public service camps" for conscientious objectors may soon be put into operation for the first time since World War II.

On orders of President Johnson, the Defense Department is making a survey of a number of "surplus" military installations for possible use as camps for conscientious objectors.

Selective Service records indicate there already are more than 5,000.

Most of them are filling out their draft service working in state hospitals and mental institutions under supervision of local draft boards. Several hundred others who were inducted in the Army but whose religious beliefs bar their bearing arms are serving in military hospitals and other noncombatant capacities.

REPORTS FROM state Selective Service headquarters indicate draft boards are rapidly exhausting places to assign conscientious objectors.

With Vet Nam troop requirements and casualties running higher than originally planned, Pentagon chiefs now believe monthly draft calls will have to be considerably increased early next year.

Increased draft calls will unquestionably mean more conscientious objectors. That will require expanded measures and facilities to handle them. Whether they will be put into special World War II-type camps is still not definitely decided. But preparations are being made for that contingency.

Also under study is assigning conscientious objectors to "civic action" work in the anti-poverty program.

WAR FLASHES—Since Congress adjourned several months ago, more than 100 members have visited Viet Nam, and another 50 are expected there before the legislators reconvene in January. A large number of the lawmakers plan to make verbal and written reports on what they saw and what they think about it.

Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, who did not go to Viet Nam, is planning to offer what may be the most explosive proposal—a bill to bar sending draftees to the war zone. To force action on his measure, Gruening is considering offering it as an amendment to a pending administration bill. The issue is certain to precipitate a bitter wrangle.

The leftist-led Students for a Democratic Society are preparing to expand their anti-Viet Nam agitating to high schools and junior colleges. The SDS will send university students to pre-draft-age schools to distribute literature and stage anti-war meetings.

INSIDE THE MAFIA—Samuel Giancana is still in jail; Thomas Luchese remains in serious condition from a physical breakdown he suffered in July; Murry ("The Camel") Humphreys is dead; and Angelo Bruno is showing signs of becoming more uneasy every day.

These men have at least two things in common—they are (or were) top leaders in the organized underworld, and they have the FBI to thank (or blame) for their ill fate.

Giancana, reputed member of La Cosa Nostra's ruling "Commission" as boss of the Chicago "family," has been in jail since June for refusing to answer questions by a federal grand jury after being granted immunity from prosecution.

Goodell of New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy and Planning Committee, is doing his party—and the public—a good service by circulating to the entire GOP membership this twin admonition: (1) Watch for abuses and wrong-doing in the administration of the anti-poverty program; (2) support it strongly every time you speak out against its shortcomings.

Goodell feels — and many agree with him—that the anti-poverty program rests upon such a loosely drawn law, creating a loose administration, that "abuses and scandals are almost inevitable."

HIS VIEW finds support from one of the strong friends of the program, the National Committee for an Effective Congress, which warns that, with all the new programs burgeoning in Washington, it will "take a miracle to avoid the development of at least one politically damaging scandal."

But Goodell does not want to see the GOP make the mistake of simply charging out with all spears at the ready against abuse and scandal, and simultaneously leave the impression that they are aiming at the poor.

"It is imperative," he is telling his colleagues, that they show "they are in favor of helping the poor"—in actions as well as in words.

Because of the GOP minority position in Congress, which enables the Democrats to turn down everything until they are ready to act, the Republican record doesn't get the attention it deserves. On anti-poverty measures, it is a constructive and forehanded record.

AS FAR BACK AS 1961, the Republicans sponsored an amendment to the Juvenile Delinquency Act to set up a head start program. They also sponsored a pilot job corps proposal in 1963. These measures were opposed by the administration at the time.

Take another example. In the 1965 poverty debate the Republicans offered an amendment to require involving of the poor at policy level, but it was opposed by nearly all the Democrats on the Labor and Education Committee. Committee Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N. Y., who has lately been trumpeting his plea that the poor ought to participate, rejected the amendment on the ground it was unnecessary.

The House Republican Anti-Poverty Committee, led by Rep. Albert Quie of Minnesota, is doing well in pushing for adequate representation of the poor on local community action boards. This is not the road to riots and chaos; it is the road away from them.

INVOLVEMENT of the poor in the poverty program needs conservative support and it is getting it in Goodell's ardent plea to his fellow Republicans.

Public Service Camps For War Objectors?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — "Civilian public service camps" for conscientious objectors may soon be put into operation for the first time since World War II.

On orders of President Johnson, the Defense Department is making a survey of a number of "surplus" military installations for possible use as camps for conscientious objectors.

Selective Service records indicate there already are more than 5,000.

Most of them are filling out their draft service working in state hospitals and mental institutions under supervision of local draft boards. Several hundred others who were inducted in the Army but whose religious beliefs bar their bearing arms are serving in military hospitals and other noncombatant capacities.

REPORTS FROM state Selective Service headquarters indicate draft boards are rapidly exhausting places to assign conscientious objectors.

With Vet Nam troop requirements and casualties running higher than originally planned, Pentagon chiefs now believe monthly draft calls will have to be considerably increased early next year.

Increased draft calls will unquestionably mean more conscientious objectors. That will require expanded measures and facilities to handle them. Whether they will be put into special World War II-type camps is still not definitely decided. But preparations are being made for that contingency.

Also under study is assigning conscientious objectors to "civic action" work in the anti-poverty program.

WAR FLASHES—Since Congress adjourned several months ago, more than 100 members have visited Viet Nam, and another 50 are expected there before the legislators reconvene in January. A large number of the lawmakers plan to make verbal and written reports on what they saw and what they think about it.

Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, who did not go to Viet Nam, is planning to offer what may be the most explosive proposal—a bill to bar sending draftees to the war zone. To force action on his measure, Gruening is considering offering it as an amendment to a pending administration bill. The issue is certain to precipitate a bitter wrangle.

The leftist-led Students for a Democratic Society are preparing to expand their anti-Viet Nam agitating to high schools and junior colleges. The SDS will send university students to pre-draft-age schools to distribute literature and stage anti-war meetings.

INSIDE THE MAFIA—Samuel Giancana is still in jail; Thomas Luchese remains in serious condition from a physical breakdown he suffered in July; Murry ("The Camel") Humphreys is dead; and Angelo Bruno is showing signs of becoming more uneasy every day.

These men have at least two things in common—they are (or were) top leaders in the organized underworld, and they have the FBI to thank (or blame) for their ill fate.

Giancana, reputed member of La Cosa Nostra's ruling "Commission" as boss of the Chicago "family," has been in jail since June for refusing to answer questions by a federal grand jury after being granted immunity from prosecution.

Mount Tam Resident Remembers Too Much To Welcome Christmas

There is a man who lives in a former coachman's cottage on Mount Tamalpais who says he no longer celebrates Christmas. He is Benny Kisban, hermit.

BORN IN BUDAPEST, Hungary, he lived many years in Transylvania. His father was Lutheran, his mother Catholic and the custom in Hungary was for male children to follow their father's religion and females their mother's. Kisban is a Lutheran.

"I was always a firm anti-communist," said Kisban. "But my God came under the hands of the communists." He attributes his strong moral character to his religious upbringing.

"I don't drink, don't smoke and don't go to the woman," he says. He has no car.

Asked about Christmas in Hungary, he said that as a child he celebrated the Sixth of December, the so-called name day of Nicolaus. "The child cleaned his shoes nicely, polished them and put them in the window. The story was that Santa Claus came during the night, and filled the shoes of the good children with candies and, for the bad ones, brought a switch."

EVERYTHING was done for the children and almost secretly. The family bought a Christmas tree and put it in a room which was separate and lockable. When the children were in bed, the grownups decorated the tree.

"All the gifts were put below the tree. On Christmas Eve they illuminated the tree with candles. The whole family went before the tree and prayed and sang carols and distributed gifts, the wife for the husband and the husband for the wife. Then came the Christmas dinner and later the neighbors might come in. At midnight the Catholics went to church and, earlier, the Protestants went to their church.

Kisban remembers that before World War I Hungarians had a white Christmas with snow. After the war they began to get a "black Christmas," which he said means no snow but either rain or mud.

"I lost all my mood about the holidays because my native country's capital, Budapest, was encircled by the communists in 1944 during Christmas Eve. My mother was killed by bombing during the seige. So Christmas is a very sad remembrance for Hungarians from 1944."

Kisban said he has no friends now, lives "like a hermit." He said, "I do nothing." He has only his books, his classical music on radio and he loves nature.

Kisban was a pharmacist until he came to the U. S. at 47, why, because his degree was not recognized, he could not become a pharmacist. He worked gardening, picking oranges, washing dishes, "at everything."

HE LIVES a Thoreau-like existence in his redwood hut with only oven heat on $65 a month, except for rent. He is a vegetarian using honey for sweetening, buys remnants to make cushions, patches his clothing which he buys at rummage sales, sleeps in a sleeping bag on a cot and wishes for a real bed which he can't afford, goes for long walks on the mountain and, on New Year's Day, will be 64. "I was born in Budapest before sunrise," he says, "when all the people of New Year's Day were illuminated. I plan to die in Mill Valley."

A Sausalito "lunch mother" reports a bush caught fire the other day at Bayside School. "The bush broke into flames but wasn't consumed. This is terribly, terribly Biblical. This was the sign that the Lord gave to Moses."

SHE SAID THIS is spoken of in Exodus 3, verse 2: "And the Angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: And he looked and behold the bush burned with fire and the bush was not consumed."

John Milton Hagen, Mill Valley poet, song writer and author, said he once escorted the late W. Somerset Maugham around San Francisco. Hagen describes the famed story teller as a man with cutting wit and "a very sharp, black eye."

Florence Packard reports that a squirrel caught a cat at her house on Walnut Avenue. The cat had been coming onto her deck, pulling open the dog food sack and eating the food.

The squirrel, Buster, thinks this is his territory, said Florence. The other day Buster was on the deck and the cat rolled up the stairs. Buster came down a redwood tree after the cat, batting the cat. "The cat has never returned," said Florence.

Merry Christmas.

True Thoughts Behind Flowery Diplomacy Can Be Fascinating

WASHINGTON—When Washington receives a head of state, many flowery words are exchanged, and since they are spoken in a diplomatic tongue, one cannot be sure what each party is really saying.

BY A NEW method of extrasensory perception I was able to record not only the words but the thoughts of the principals involved.

The dialogue was between the President of Enchilada and a very high U.S. government official. Their thoughts are in (bold type).

The President of Enchilada spoke first. "I bring you warm greetings from my country and my people. I am happy to set foot on the great and wonderful United States and I am deeply moved by the overwhelming reception I have received today."

(This is a reception? I had more troops greet me in Zambia.)

"The United States is happy to welcome the leader of the free people of Enchilada. No one admires more than we the great strides you have made in your country and the great contributions you have made for peace and prosperity in our time."

(I wonder how much dough he's going to ask for?)

"We are a small country with many problems besetting us. We look to you, the most powerful nation on the face of the earth, to lend your full support to resolving the differences between us and the aggresive Upper Tamale over our legitimate rights to the Vale of Chili."

(This is your last chance. If you don't give us the planes and rockets we want, we know someone who will.)

"I have visited your country and I love your people. I even met one of your sheepherders. I know we can work together. We both want the same things, so we must find peaceful solutions to all problems and that is the task I have set above all others. We desire to help you."

(But if you play footsie with Red China once more, it's curtains for you and your crummy friends.)

"Your country and your people have been most generous in coming to the aid of little Enchilada and I would be the first to admit it. My people look to you for hope and encouragement in the dark days that lie ahead. All we ask is your understanding."

(And for you to stay the hell out of Upper Tamale. We would have had them licked if it hadn't been for the tanks and arms you sent them.)

"The United States is deeply grieved by the tragic events that have taken place between our two dearest friends, Enchilada and Upper Tamale. We must bind the wounds and sit down and talk out our differences. For the only ones who will gain by this dispute are the Communists."

(You'd think they would have something better to do than to fight over a useless piece of real estate.)

"My hopes and prayers have always been to live with our neighbors. We will pursue every avenue of peace, no matter how difficult or how trying these negotiations will be."

(Give me three squadrons of B-52s and I'll settle the Upper Tamale problem overnight.)

"But in exchange for our support, Mr. President, we hope you will support us in our endeavors in Southeast Asia where we are trying to find a just solution to a very difficult situation."

(A lot you care about what's happening in Viet Nam.)

"The United States problems are our problems."

(You should have gotten out of Viet Nam long ago.)

"I assure you, Mr. President, we will always be brothers, for the things that bind us far outweigh the things that pull us apart."

(I hope he finishes soon so I can get a nap before that damn state dinner.)

"You have said the words that have been on my lips."

(Boy, would I like to get a nap before that damn state dinner.)

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Marin Officials' Statements In Recent Sessions Recalled

FUSSELMAN

SOME QUOTES from the supervisors' meeting Tuesday, and other quotes:—The chairman, addressing the supervisor from Ross Valley, "That's a form of blackmail that I resent"—and then later, "Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds." The Ross Valley man took exception and insisted that the chairman's statement be entered in the minutes and that it was "completely discourteous" and petty. The chairman replied that the Ross Valley man was being childish.

The meeting Tuesday, Dec. 14 produced, among other things, this: The supervisor from District One, while debating whether to hire a coordinator for the school department to carry on with the job training program and, who was to be paid $13,750 per year (only $2,277 of which was being requested from county funds)—"The fact of the matter is that the county schools office is down the drain. I don't think we should build in programs just to forestall that." He is reported to have gone on to say that when the county schools office is no longer needed it would be "a happy day for taxpayers."

It might be well to call his attention to some things the administrator said in a speech at a meeting of the North Coast section of the California Supervisors Assn., in February of this year:

He pointed out the relevance of our need for a revision of the California State Constitution. With a word of warning he advised that in the San Francisco Bay area the monster of urban political planners known as metro or regional government was with us . . . In his opinion, "many of the functions now discharged by counties will be transferred to regional government where they can less expensively and best be carried out!" (I am copying the above from the official publication.)

YOU HAVE JUST had occasion to pay your tax bills, so supose we consider these comments of the two men. It looks like the old story of the glass house and the throwing of stones.

The man from District One is slated to be chairman, come the first of the year. He has been a strong advocate of the administrator type of activity. He was one of those instrumental in paying the administrator $21,000 a year and with furnishing him with several assistants at some $13,000 (plus) besides a total staff of 15 or more.

Now he has moved to pay a salary of $15,600 a year (which was $2,500 more than was set up in the budget) for a man to head up a department of economic development to improve the tax base of the county.

Note that the statement was not to relieve the taxpayer. A larger base permits a greater escalation of spending.

WHEN HE FIRST was appointed to the board, he promoted $12,500 of county funds to sweeten up a fund with some developers to have an economic survey made by the Stanford Research people. I went along with him but was considerably disappointed with the result. I was not the only one who felt that way, either.

He was reported as saying he has some changes to propose in the conduct of the meetings and is not sure the other members of the board will agree to these. He kept trying to have the agenda we changed "to shorten the meetings". He finally succeeded the first of the year. Last Friday I mentioned the late adjournment hours as compared with 4:30, formerly. Well, Tuesday they adjourned at 7:45.

A HAPPY HOLIDAY TO YOU ALL. Have a real good time.

Soviet Farmers Said Not Stylish Enough

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Communist Youth League and the Ministry of Agriculture has announced a contest for the best design for a farmer's work uniform in an effort to get Russian peasants out of their traditional quilted jackets.

An agriculture official said the peasants' "ugly and old-fashioned sack-like clothes in gloomy colors" had to be done away with.

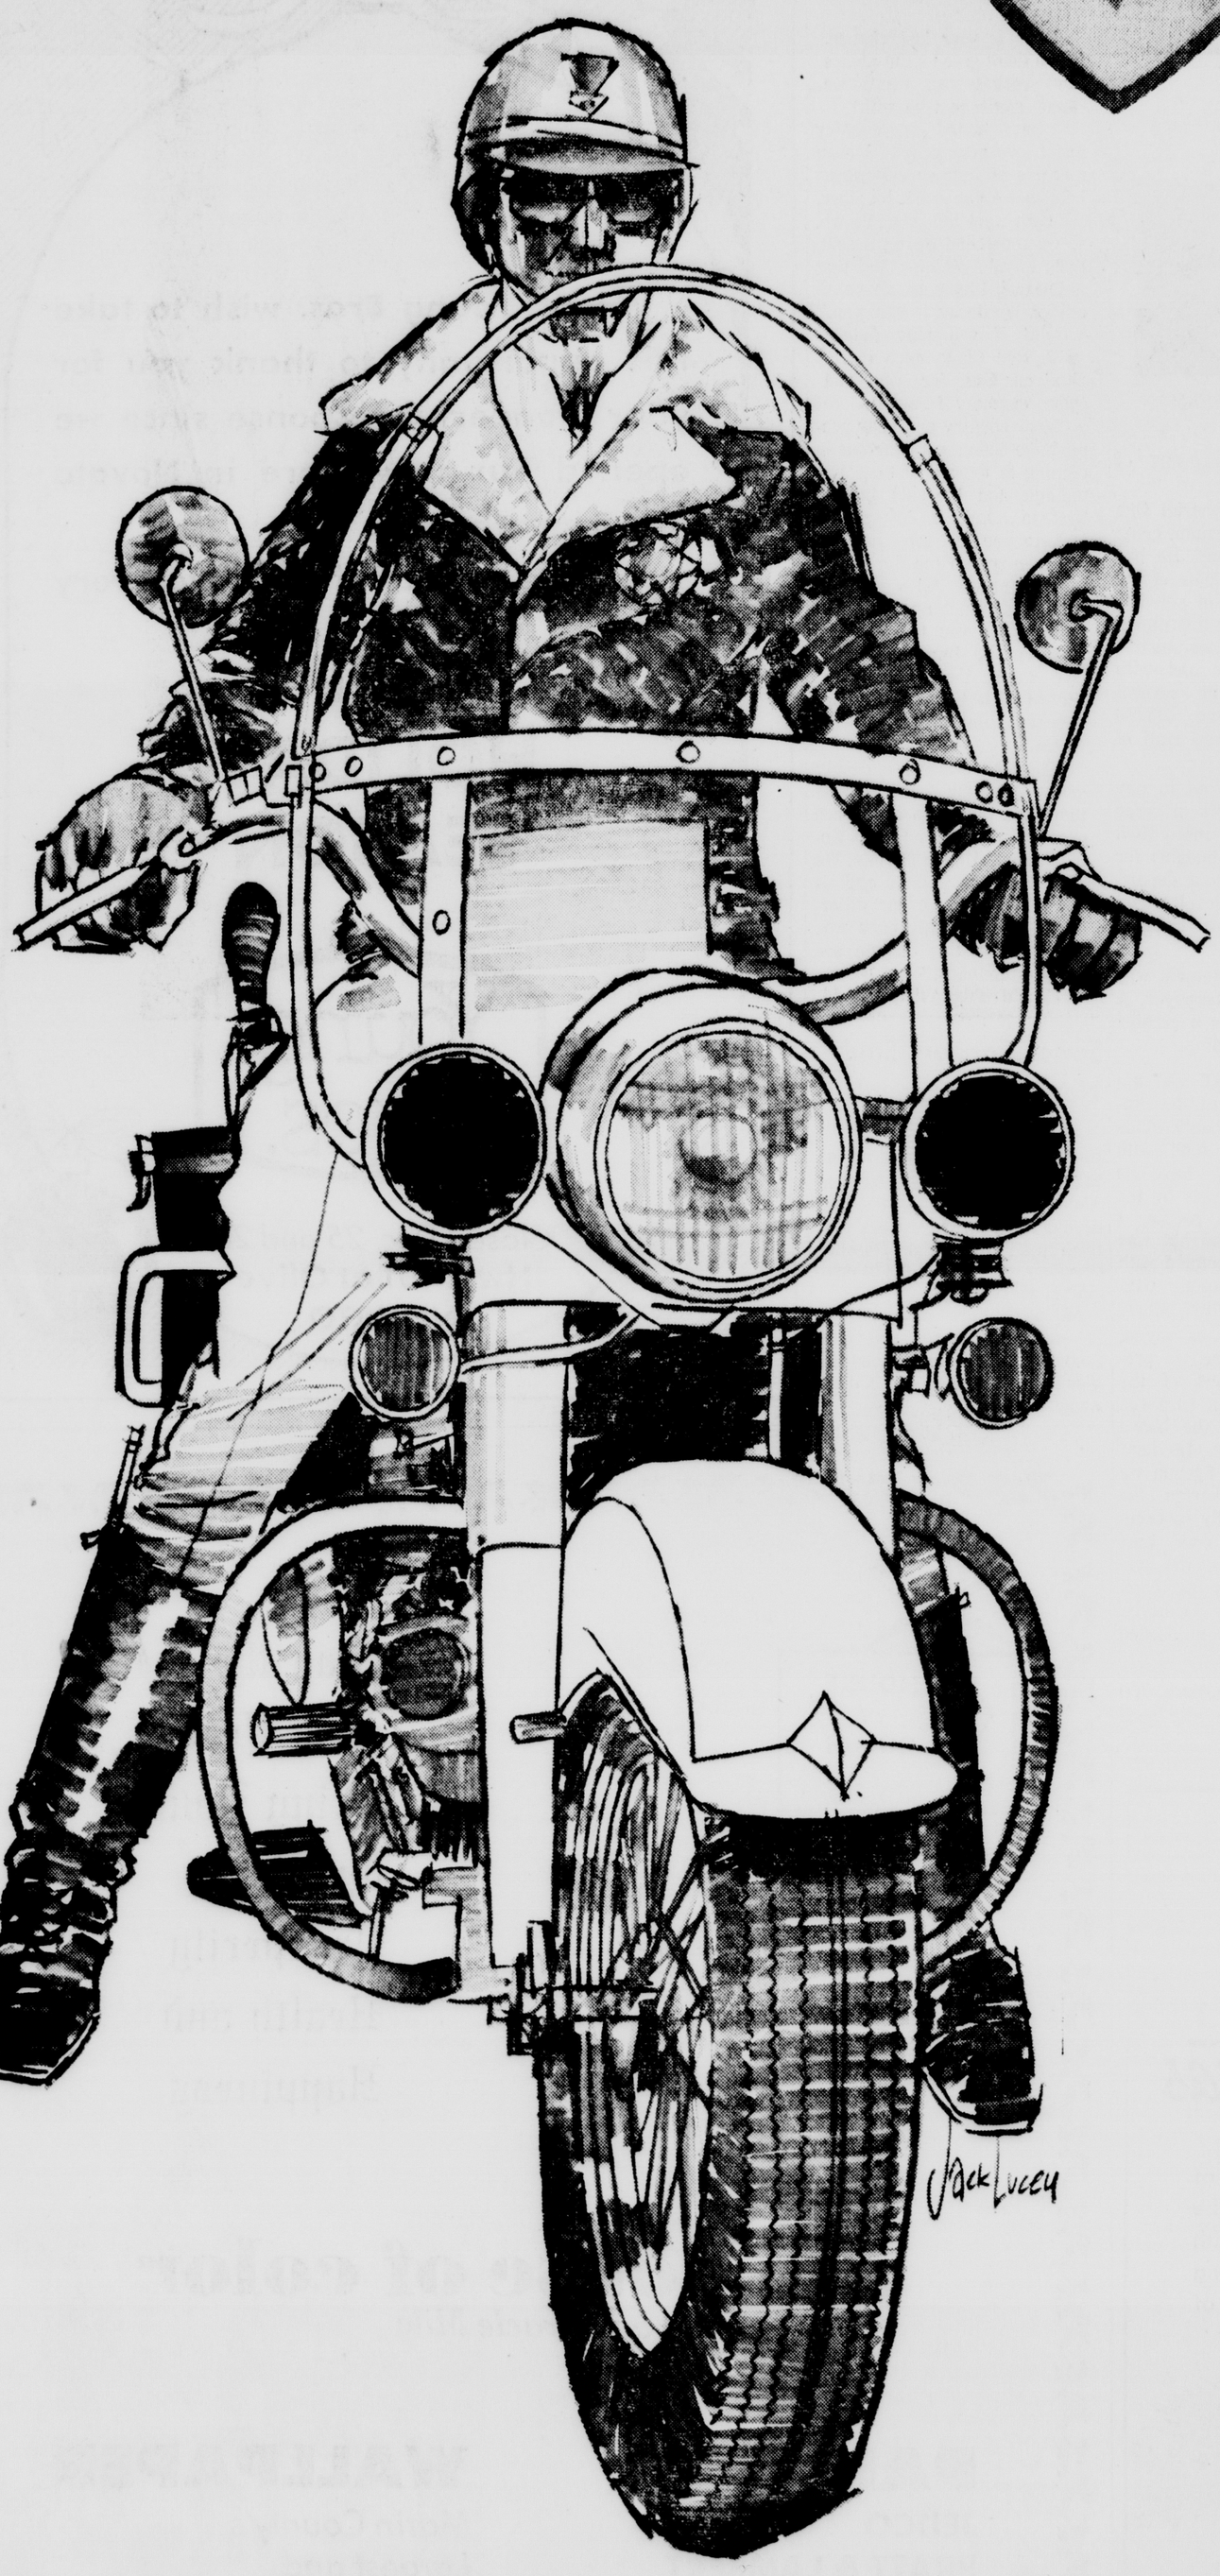
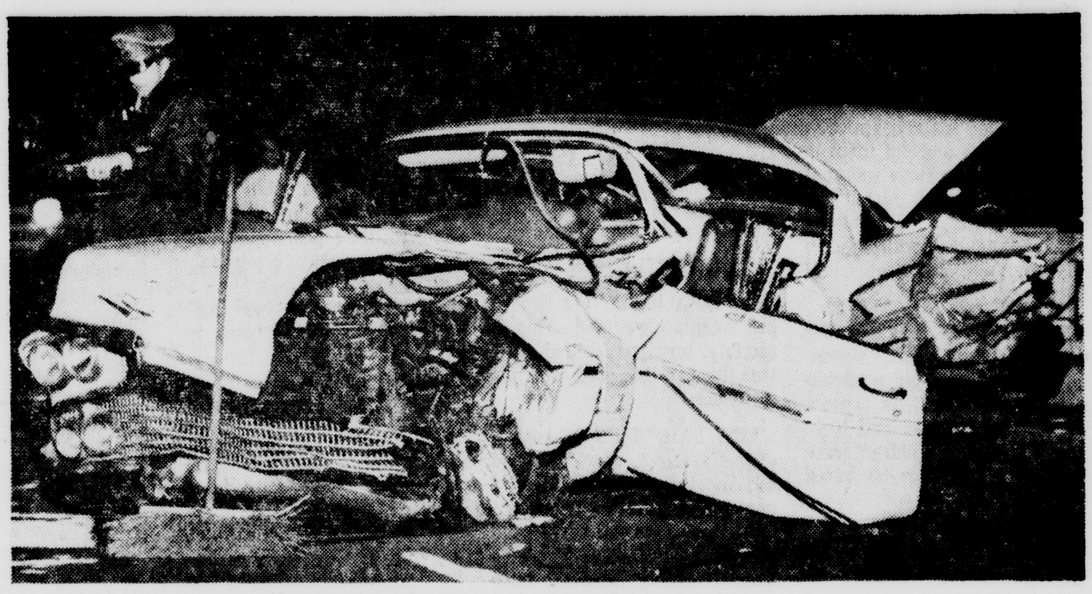
CALIFORNIA HIGHWAY PATROL

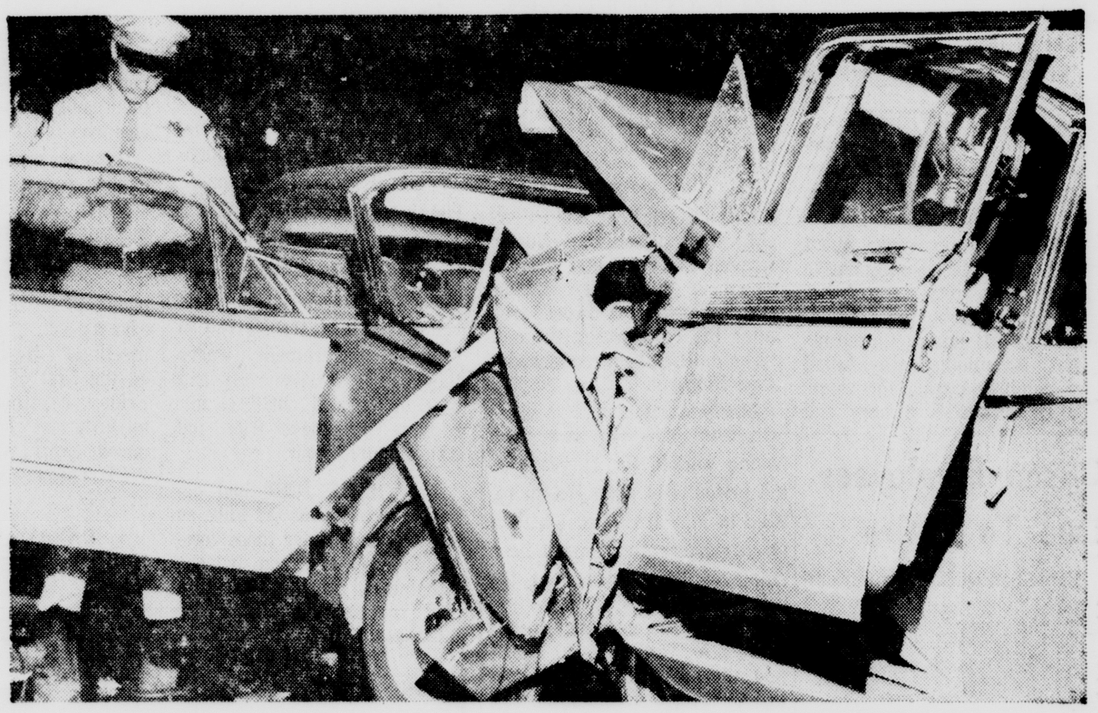
URGES YOU TO DRIVE SAFELY THIS HOLIDAY SEASON



Don't let an accident mar your holidays! Drive with caution and courtesy. The California Highway Patrol will be out in force to help keep traffic moving without incident or accident. Help them help you. It may save your life and that of others . . . especially now when holiday traffic is thick with danger.



3 DEAD! Car ran off roadway, struck bridge abutment just north of San Rafael. During 1965, to date, 29 persons have been killed in traffic accidents in Marin—mostly due to negligence.



4 DEAD! In this head-on collision, one vehicle was on the wrong side of the roadway. A regard for traffic laws and the other fellow can prevent most accidents. Resolve to drive carefully.

5 DEAD! In this head-on smash-up, on San Rafael overpass, one vehicle crossed the divider on a curve. The economic loss of accidents like this in Marin runs to $6,000,000 each year . . . much less the loss of life!

The California Highway Patrol and other law enforcement agencies can only help you if you help yourself. Don't challenge other cars—challenge yourself to be an expert, law-abiding driver! That could be the best New Year's resolution you'll ever make.

3 DEAD! Car ran off roadway, struck bridge abutment just north of San Rafael. During 1965, to date, 29 persons have been killed in traffic accidents in Marin—mostly due to negligence.

4 DEAD! In this head-on collision, one vehicle was on the wrong side of the roadway. A regard for traffic laws and the other fellow can prevent most accidents. Resolve to drive carefully.

5 DEAD! In this head-on smash-up, on San Rafael overpass, one vehicle crossed the divider on a curve. The economic loss of accidents like this in Marin runs to $6,000,000 each year . . . much less the loss of life!

The California Highway Patrol and other law enforcement agencies can only help you if you help yourself. Don't challenge other cars—challenge yourself to be an expert, law-abiding driver! That could be the best New Year's resolution you'll ever make.

A MINISTER SAYS

'Christmas Is Contemporary'

(Editor's Note: It is the custom of the Marin Magazine to invite a member of the clergy to present a message of his choice to our readers at Christmas and again at Easter time. Rev. Don Schilling of the St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, Marin City, has chosen as his theme: "Christmas Is Contemporary.")

By REV. DON SCHILLING

At this time in history when increasingly within our world and nation we find class pitted against class and race against race the Christmas event takes on special significance.

For not only does it speak of a gospel which God makes freely available to all men, but it points further to a Lord who spent most of his earthly life trying to deliver the poor and oppressed peoples from their unjust plight. On both accounts the Christmas event speaks uniquely to our time. Let us first consider the relevance of a gospel which is for all men.

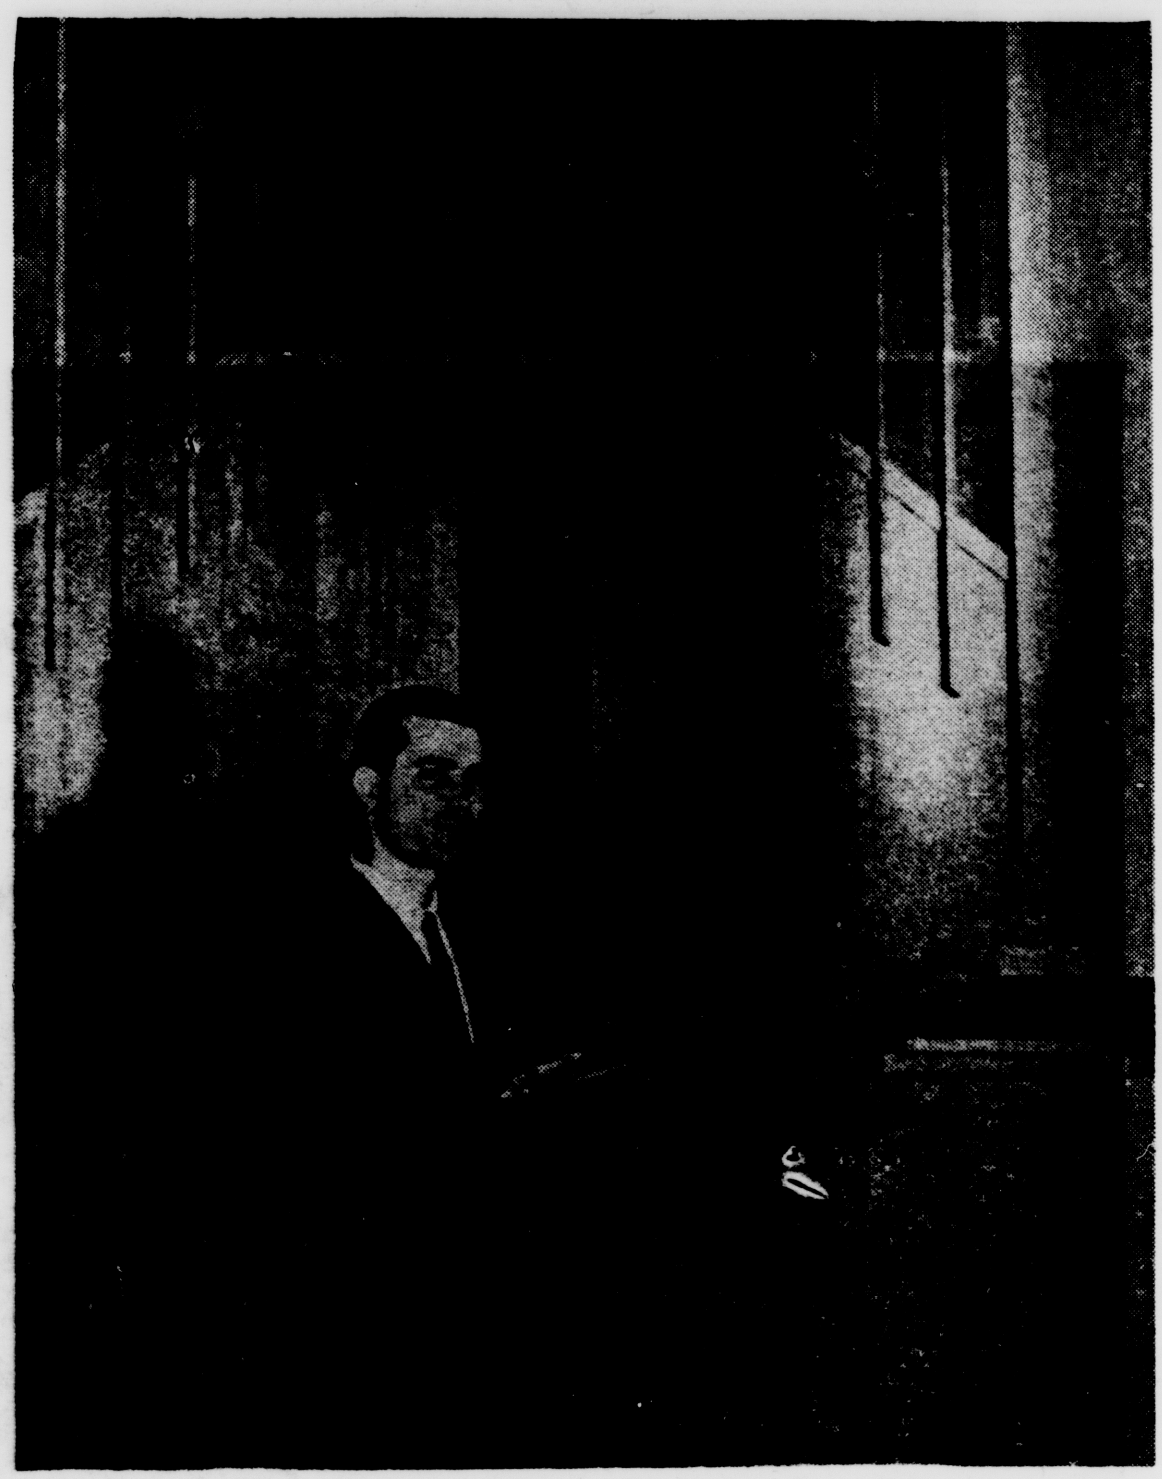
This point seems almost too obvious. The birth of Jesus at Bethlehem was made known both to simple shepherds of Judea and to wise men from far away regions; thus, signifying that Jesus had come for all people — for his own countrymen and others—for rich and poor alike. The truth here seems apparent enough. Yet in real life experience it was not apparent in Jesus' day, nor is it apparent today.

WHEN JESUS walked the earth and in the years immediately following, Jewish Christians would never have agreed that God had any use for every man. Jewish Christians of that period refused to accept the idea that their God was also God of the Gentiles. To them it seemed incredible, even blasphemous, that every man could be presented to God, that God actually wanted every man regardless of his condition, race, or class. In fact it wasn't until Paul was led to God to become a special missionary to the Gentiles that this narrow form of provincial theology began to be expanded.

So in Colossians we find Paul writing of what he describes as "the mystery hidden for ages and generations but now made manifest," namely, that the gospel was not only for Jews but for all men everywhere. Yet, today, some 2,000 years hence, the world is still faltering in its struggle to face up to the real life ramifications of that basic truth.

Recently President Lyndon B. Johnson declared a widely supported national day of prayer. Some have seen this as an attempt to win God over to the side of the United States in the war in Viet Nam.

Surely, it is true that theology which implies that God is a God of non-communist peoples only, or that everything our country does is right and everything another does is wrong, is erroneous. The Christmas event excludes belief in this kind of God and nullifies this kind of praying. Nationalistic theology is not Christian theology, and Christians can no longer afford the luxury of thinking of God in such provincial terms. The birth of Jesus in Bethlehem changed all that. God is the God of all mankind.



REV. DON SCHILLING has served the congregation of St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City for the past three years, coming there from Sacramento where he was director of a large settlement house in a community predominantly of Mexican ancestry and also on the staff of a large Presbyterian Church. Reverend Schilling is seen here in the sanctuary of the just completed new St. Andrew Church where he is co-pastor.

OF COURSE, the same holds true regarding the various classes and races of people within our own land. The ethnic and socio-economic makeup of our churches and communities shows that we have not yet taken seriously the God who loves and binds together the whole of society. We have failed to see Paul's discovery that God's love, in belonging to all, decisively cuts through the traditional injustices, hostilities and walls of separation that continue to keep us apart.

This leads me to my second point: Namely, that the Christmas event points to a Lord who speaks uniquely to our time for the simple reason that He spent most of His time delivering the poor and oppressed peoples of His day from their unjust plight. While His ministry was to loving salvation equally to all men, His birth in a lowly stable was indicative of His identification with low status people.

In fact, His quote from the prophet Isaiah one later day in the synagogue in Nazareth was actually to set the tone for His entire ministry: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has annointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed . . . " (Luke 4:18).

Yet again we find the unfortunate situation wherein neither the early church nor the church today has been able to accept or approximate Christ's identification with low status people.

IN THE EARLY church there was a strong group called Gnostics who didn't even believe that it was possible for the unsophisticated and uneducated to have enough knowledge of God to obtain salvation. The Gnostic believed rather than such knowledge was so involved and elaborate and difficult that only the spiritual elite could master it. Only the aristocratic few were wise enough to have full access to God.

It seems incomprehensible to us that intelligent Christian people could have been so narrow and stupid, doesn't it? But really, are we much different today? The answer is an unequivocal "no." For when one begins to talk in terms of the way most of today's educated, status-quo oriented, governmental bureaucrats deal with the poor of our own country, the parallel becomes altogether too clear.

In the first place, the poor person in our society is systematically denied (though usually unconsciously) the most basic God-given right that we have: Namely, the right to have something to say about his own life. He is kept voiceless and powerless and prevented from, in any significant way, shaping his own lot. His most crucial decisions are all made for him by someone who neither understands his needs nor has his best interests at heart. And if he is apathetic it is little wonder. For he is boxed in and unable to see any way out.

HE HAS LONG since come to know full well that few people in authority pay any attention to his grievances beyond merely giving lip service to them. Furthermore, when he attempts to organize his power (his only weapon) in order to be able to deal across the bargaining table as an equal, he is put down, being labeled a threat to the status quo and the public safety. Meanwhile all kinds of special public services, including much of the present anti-poverty program, are planned outside his community and continue to be imposed upon him, and the vicious circle starts over again.

Of course, the basic problem is similar to that of the Gnostics of old. The Gnostics felt that low status people were incapable of significantly knowing God. Today far too many people continue to believe that the poor are incapable of being trusted with the God-given business of shaping their own lives. Yet, ironically enough, Jesus hung on the cross in part because He insisted upon protecting that right.

Yes, then, the Christmas event does take on special significance for us this year. By speaking to us of a gospel which is for all men, and by pointing us to a Lord who established genuine identification with the poor, we see that by following Him we find great joy and hope both for ourselves and for our troubled world.

THE COVER of the 1965 Christmas card, mailed by the National Lutheran Council to servicemen with a personal note from the hometown pastor, depicts the birth of Christ. The 12-page "card," really a small booklet, enables the serviceman to hold his own private devotional on Christmas, no matter where he might be.

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

Some good listening for the holidays:

BEETHOVEN: Hammerklavier Sonata (No. 29); Sonata in A Flat (No. 31)—Charles Rosen, piano—Epic BC 1300 Stereo:

Considering the popularity of the massive "Hammerklavier" sonata, one would think there might be as many different recordings of it as say, the Moonlight or the Appassionata. Such is not the case, and the only performance in stereo worth hearing before the release of this new Epic lp was the one by Rudolf Kempff on DGG.

Of course there are the complete collections of all 32 sonatas, in mono only, by Schnabel, Backhaus, Gieseking and Kempff.

Rosen has a direct and skillful manner in both the "Hammerklavier" and the amiable "Sonata in A Flat Major," and the stereo provides a worthwhile argument for solo instrument reproduction via two channels of sound.

BRUCKNER: Symphony No. 4 in E Flat "Romantic"—Philharmonia Orchestra/Otto Klemperer—Angel Stereo S 36245:

If a listener were to be introduced to the world of Bruckner for the first time, I would use this symphony for a start. It is rich, expansive, flowing, and fully justifies the "Romantic" subtitle.

It best illustrates the unhurried pace of musical development which is so different from the rush of modern day life and which is one of the major reasons for the great value of this music today.

Before this new Angel lp, the Bruno Walter performance on Columbia held top place on my shelf. However, Klemperer's monumental style is so perfectly suited to Bruckner, and the Angel stereo is so rich and dynamic that this one has my vote now. In addition, it is complete on one disc whereas the Walter album also included some filler Wagner selections and took up two discs.

POULENC: Sextet for Piano and Winds; Trio for Piano, Oboe, and Bassoon; Flute Sonata—Jacques Fevrier, piano/Michel Debost, flute/Paris Wind Quartet—Angel Stereo S 36261:

The most popular chamber work by the French composer, the Sextet, or Sextour, is available in three other stereo versions. All are excellent and respectful of the airy and witty quality of this piece, but for Poulenc fans my choice would now go to this Angel lp for it includes on the second side the only recording of the transparent little "Trio for Piano, Oboe, and Bassoon" and the only stereo recording of the simple and melodic "Flute and Piano Sonata." Also, the sound is rich and natural in the Angel tradition.

PIANO MUSIC OF ALKAN: Le Festin D'Esope; Barcarolle; Quasi-Faust; Symphonie excerpts — Raymond Lewenthal, piano—RCA Victor Stereo LSC-2815:

Launching long-ignored composers by recordings devoted entirely to their music is not a frequent happening in today's recorded music world, and when a conservative major label does it, it is even more amazing.

Pianist Raymond Lewenthal is behind this unusual project—he has long had a fascination for offbeat piano music, such as late Scriabin, which he recorded for the Westminster label some years ago.

Charles-Valentin Alkan was born in 1813 in Paris and in his youth was a precocious pianist. Late in his life he began composing astonishing works such as those heard on this stereo disc. They are ferociously difficult and full of bizarre and imaginative effects. The best description I could come up with is that if Liszt had lived 30 years longer and come under the influence of late Scriabin, this is what he might have composed. But Alkan is original, he truly doesn't sound like anyone else.

Lewenthal's complete and intriguing notes reproduce some of the actual music and it is enough to make Webern, Boulez, etc., look easy.

ORGAN MUSIC OF THE BACH FAMILY, Works of C.P.E. BACH, J. B. BACH, J. M. BACH, J. C. BACH, W. F. BACH, and J. S. BACH — Carl Weinrich, organist — RCA Victor Stereo:

The amazing Bach family of musicians spread its influence across European musical life for two centuries. All 52 of them did honor to the name of Bach and many were just as well known, if not more so, than old J. S. during their lifetimes.

Most of them served as organists at one time or another, and it is natural that works for the king of instruments exist for most of them.

Carl Weinrich has selected 11 of them here to show the similarities and differences in the Bach styles. He records on the organ of the General Theological Seminary in New York City, and the Dynagroove reproduction should stand as a model of perfect recording of Baroque organ music.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

THAT SLENDER TREE

A fir grew on a great hill where,
Caressed by winds and bathed in air,
A warm soft cloak of green to wear,
He stood straight up—his way of prayer
To God who rules the friendly hills.

We cut him down, this young fir tree,
And crucified him, merrily:
We nailed him to a board in glee,
Then stood him up for all to see,
Within four walls full strange to him.

Each day he flooded that great room
With aromatic sweet perfume,
Heedless of pain, or of his doom,
Until whole forests seemed to bloom
With odors sweet and needles green.

Alas! Too soon he faded, died—
That slender tree we crucified.
All of himself he gave: a tide
Of hillsweet fragrance, deep and wide,
Flowed out of him. Twelfth Night he died.
We burned him then; the golden flame

Sang as it blazed: "In His dear name
We live to give, and dying, live.
Who gives his all—fir, man or thorn—
In him anew, the Christ is born."

THE CHRISTMAS ROAD

Let there be candlelight
upon this Christmas night,
let there be scent of pine,
a creche, and mantle shrine—
the scene of Mary's plight
travail in lonely fright,
with Joseph standing by
to wait the Christ-child's cry.
Let there be bells to ring
and angel choirs to sing.
Let ways of love increase the Christmas roads to Peace!

HAPPY HOLIDAY

Greetings from us in this mountainy town
Whose one side tips up as the other tilts down,
Where canyons sweep up till they peak in a crest
To catch the last glows of day's end in the west,
Where evergreens tiptoe to dizzying heights
And shimmer and dance in star-lighted nights,
Where a ruby-crowned kinglet ruffles a frown
And a brown towhee thinks he is Governor Brown—
Gay greetings to you, from this mountainy town.

Until whole forests seemed to bloom
With odors sweet and needles green.

Alas! Too soon he faded, died—
That slender tree we crucified.
All of himself he gave: a tide
Of hillsweet fragrance, deep and wide,
Flowed out of him. Twelfth Night he died.
We burned him then; the golden flame

Sang as it blazed: "In His dear name
We live to give, and dying, live.
Who gives his all—fir, man or thorn—
In him anew, the Christ is born."

THE CHRISTMAS ROAD

Let there be candlelight
upon this Christmas night,
let there be scent of pine,
a creche, and mantle shrine—
the scene of Mary's plight
travail in lonely fright,
with Joseph standing by
to wait the Christ-child's cry.
Let there be bells to ring
and angel choirs to sing.
Let ways of love increase
the Christmas roads to Peace!

SAN RAFAEL — RUTH MURRAY JONES

HAPPY HOLIDAY

Greetings from us in this mountainy town
Whose one side tips up as the other tilts down,
Where canyons sweep up till they peak in a crest
To catch the last glows of day's end in the west,
Where evergreens tiptoe to dizzying heights
And shimmer and dance in star-lighted nights,
Where a ruby-crowned kinglet ruffles a frown
And a brown towhee thinks he is Governor Brown—
Gay greetings to you, from this mountainy town.

Christmas In Marin County 100 Years Ago

Journal Files Tell Story Of Observance Of 1865

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

What was Christmas like in Marin County 100 years ago?

One way to answer that question is to search the files of the Marin Journal, one of the Independent - Journal's parent papers.

The Journal was a weekly in 1865.

And, one week before Christmas, there was to be found in its pages no full-page advertisements on behalf of glamorous gifts.

MORRIS HYMAN had a one column ad that itemized his stock: Drygoods, groceries, boots and shoes, clothing, hats, caps, tobacco, cigars, perfumery and patent medicines.

The stores advertised sewing machines—the Singer, and the Wheeler and Wilson.

A San Francisco concern offered the most elegance in the way of possible holiday presents —gold spectacles and powerful opera glasses.

Nowhere was there a mention of toys.

THE READER was, however, notified that he could send for a catalog of stereoscope views of California, including Yosemite scenes, snow-covered mountains, redwood forests and green valleys.

There was an invitation to the public to attend a Christmas ball at the Marin Hotel in San Rafael. Tickets cost $2.

Beyond this information, we will have to fill in the gaps.

IT IS SAFE to say that, despite the advertisements, not many people in Marin County could then go into San Francisco to do their shopping. It took a full day to make that trip from San Rafael and back. The San Rafael Stage Line would carry passengers to San Quentin Point where they would board the steamer, the Clinton.

Only the well-to-do could afford the cost of the trip and the loss of a full-day from their work.

Many Marinites of the time, of course, were residents of ranches in the remote areas of the county. There were few roads.

PERHAPS ONCE a week, a rancher would transport his family to the general merchandise stores in such towns as Tomales, Point Reyes, Marshall and Bolinas. There the wife would buy drygoods at from two to four bits a yard, and perhaps a yard or two of ribbon or lace. Rolls of butter and pails of eggs would be traded for such staples as flour and sugar.

And if it was just before Christmas, very likely she would buy some "store candy." There were no fancy-wrapped boxes then. But the candy was a treat savored by the children.

The rancher would whittle whistles for the small boys, and make wagons, always painted red, for the older ones.

THE MOTHER would make rag dolls and dresses for the girls, and knit mittens and socks.

There was always much excitement on Christmas Eve when the youngsters hung their stockings for Santa to fill. Next morning the children were up before dawn to get their stockings.

In them would be the 'boughten" candy, perhaps a few marbles, sometimes jacks and a ball. Oranges were scarce then, and only the children of the wealthy found them in their stockings.

Sometimes the family would have a Christmas tree, felled near the house. The children had fun decorating it, making strands of popcorn and paper garland. Small candles would be clamped to the branches. When lit, these sent out a golden glow, and the parlor was perfumed with the fragrance of the candles and the pungent odor of the tree.

JUST WHAT presents were exchanged by the grownups, we can only conjecture.

Most likely, the gifts would be something practical. If it could be afforded, the wife might get a new stove or a sewing machine. Or if money was more than usually plentiful, a bottle of perfume.

Certainly there was no glamorous lingerie among her gifts. The women wore high-necked, long-sleeved nightgowns.

She might present her husband with a handmade nightshirt, or perhaps a plug of chewing tobacco.

THE FAMILY always went to church on Christmas morning, sometimes driving miles for the services.

And there were the usual farm chores—the feeding and milking of the cows, etc.—that went on Christmas Day, the same as any other day.

Accustomed as the ranch woman was to preparing three big meals a day for her family and the hands, the Christmas dinner had to be something special.

There might not be a turkey to carve. But instead there might be a plump chicken or fat goose. Or a suckling pig with an apple in its mouth.

FOR CERTAIN, there would be a huge mound of mashed potatoes, topped by glistening yellow homemade butter. The vegetables, most likely, would be cauliflower or carrots. And to climax the dinner, large pieces of mincemeat pie, or a steamed, fragrant plum pudding with a sauce of butter and sugar, creamed into a soft ball.

Sometimes the rancher and his hands would mark the holiday with a few stiff drinks of whiskey before dinner. This "cock-

Now back to the Marin Journal files of 1865 for its after-the-holidays resume of Christmas festivities of a century ago:

THE EDITOR printed his acknowledgement of and thanks for the turkeys that had been given him by a Major Hughes and J. D. Bullis.

On the other hand, the Journal reported, the Christmas ball at the Marin Hotel had been "a sickly affair" with only eight to ten couples attending. Apparently the advertisement the previous week had not helped.

Otherwise, the newspaper was filled with reports of politics and scattered references to the Civil War. Christmas was forgotten, and Marin was returning to its work-a-day life.

THERE WAS, however, one item that caught my eye. It told how a beautiful young lady had died at a ball. Cause of death: Tight lacing.

Thank heavens, the women of today haven't such hazards.

The Biblical Story In Graphic Art

Marin Sees Work Of Devout Zulu

By DON KEOWN

In sharp contrast to the many colors in the paintings now on display for a group exhibit at the Mary Perry Stone Studio Gallery in San Rafael is a collection of graphics in stark black and white also being shown.

"They just seem to make the whole wall vibrate with their energy" is the way their owner, W. Herbert Gilbert, formerly of Woodacre, now of San Francisco, describes them.

The artist responsible for those graphics also offers a sharp contrast to the painters represented in the show.

The painters are Marin County residents. He lives in faraway South Africa.

HE IS AZARIO MBATHA, a 25-year-old Zulu who received his training in an arts-crafts center sponsored by a Swedish Lutheran mission in Zululand.

The work on display in San Rafael represents the beginning of a gigantic undertaking by the deeply religious young African. He has set out to illustrate the entire Bible.

The completed panels being shown at the Mary Perry Stone Gallery include, appropriate to the season, the Christmas story.

Their owner, Gilbert, says he stumbled on Mbatha's unique work quite by accident.

CANADIAN BORN GILBERT and his wife, Anna, who was born in Kenya, went to Africa in 1960, and starting from the north drove all the way to South Africa except for one "leg" of the journey in Sudan made by barge on the Nile.

They went there because Mrs. Gilbert's father and other relatives were living in South Africa. There, Gilbert, who had taught at the Vancouver, B.C., School of Art, engaged in painting, printmaking and teaching, and for a time managed a banana plantation.

After four years in South Africa, the Gilberts decided to return to North America and made arrangements to immigrate to the United States.

GILBERT SAID THE decision was based partially upon a need for greater artistic stimulation and a desire to be with his American artist friends, and partially upon a distaste for South Africa's apartheid racial policies.

"I couldn't stomach the situation," he says. But he adds that the South African whites are motivated by their particular background and a sincere belief that it is best for all in insisting upon the complete separation of the races.

Preparations for departure were under way when Gilbert "with only 10 minutes on the parking meter" made a hurried visit to a shop in Durban to transact some business. And there, on the walls, hung some of Mbatha's prints.

"HIS SENSE OF design is what excites me—those powerful black and white shapes," he says. "They have something of the same quality of Giotto, or of a Bach fugue, both of whom were also strongly motivated by religion."

Gilbert found himself making purchases for re-sale in the United States, the parking meter outside forgotten.

Since then, Gilbert has had correspondence with the Zulu artist through the Institute of Race Relations, a group of South Africans taking the moderate position on racial matters.

MBATHA, HE ADDS, is immensely excited by the knowledge that his work is now being shown in the United States.

Some of Mbatha's work had already reached Sweden and the East Coast of the United States, but Gilbert's acquisitions represent their introduction to the West Coast.

Gilbert says he is finding that many Americans share his enthusiasm for the prints.

AS HIS CURRENT supply of prints sell, Gilbert expects to import more.

Mbatha, he says, is quite serious about illustrating the complete Biblical story with his linoleum blocks—"apparently he is dedicated to the project."

The prints are modestly priced, averaging from $15 to $30 each.

Looking at Mbatha's depiction of the Christmas story, Gilbert comments: "You can just tell that here is a man who accepts and believes deeply in the Christian faith. Only an artist so convinced could do this kind of work."

THE GILBERTS, parents of a 3-year-old daughter, plan to return to Marin County in about a year.

Gilbert, too, has a few of his paintings on exhibit at the Mary Perry Stone Gallery, 109 F Street, San Rafael, which is open to the public on Sundays only, 2 to 5 p.m., or by appointment at other times.

But it is of the striking Biblical pictures by the young man in faraway Zululand that he prefers to talk.

W. HERBERT GILBERT places on the wall the black and white linoleum block print in which the young Zulu artist Azario Mbatha tells the Christmas story. Below is shown a closer view of the panel in which the Holy Family flees to Egypt to escape Herod's wrath. The second print in the photo above tells the tale of Jonah and the Whale and other Old Testament stories. (Independent-Journal photos)

CHRISTMAS TREE DOLLS by the dozens were produced by the busy hands of these three women — Mary Stannard of Novato, Rose Tsuyuki of San Francisco and Margaret Robideaux. The rainbow-hued tulle of the dolls was one many gifts which tuberculosis patients at the Terrace, Ross General Hospital, made this holiday season with the encouragment and assistance of Mrs. Robideaux, who works with and understands TB patients because she was once one herself.

The 'Christmas Angel' Of The Terrace

Peg Robideaux Has Helped Fill Vital Need Of Tuberculosis Patients

After a few days, most hospital patients are eager to return home.

When the hospital is a tuberculosis sanatorium, and the time spent there stretches into months or even years, the patients' most fervent wish upon release is never to return.

Not Mrs. Margaret Robideaux of Trellis Drive, Terra Linda.

Upon leaving a Colorado TB hospital after 18 months of treatment, she vowed someday to return to help those patients whose days merge into one long period of sameness.

YEARS OF traveling around the world with her Army officer husband prevented Mrs. Robideaux from fulfilling her pledge until a year ago. But she has been making up for lost time Since then, she has worked full time as a volunteer at the Terrace, the tuberculosis wing of Ross General Hospital.

"I was a cosmetologist, and my first thought was to try to help the morale of those women who were too ill to do their own hair," she says. She began at Ross by giving shampoos, sets and permanent waves. She also shopped and did personal errands for the patients.

Her goals grew when she discovered how little there was with which the 40 tuberculosis patients at the Terrace could fill their days.

"WHEN I WAS ill, I read until my eyes hurt," Mrs. Robideaux says. "But it's difficult to read full-time even when you enjoy it. Television has the same drawback."

And among the patients at the Terrace are many older people with failing eyesight. There are also patients of Chinese ancestry who do not read or understand English. Sometimes there are small children.

Peg Robideaux began by interesting the patients in several simple crafts, her own hobbies. She brought the necessary materials from her home.

It was an uphill task in the beginning, and she says she never would have continued had it not been for the encouragement and tutelage of Mrs. Corwin Hinshaw, chairman of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn.'s patient services committee. Mrs. Hinshaw has worked steadily for Terrace patients for more than 10 years, during which period numerous less dedicated volunteers came and went — sometimes leaving the entire job on her shoulders.

WHEN MRS. Robideaux came, attracted by an Independent-Journal story about the need for volunteers, Mrs. Hinshaw and Gertrude Kent were sharing the task of running errands for some 35 patients and helping them find boredom-fighting occupations.

Never have there been too many volunteers. The nature of the disease confining patients to the Terrace scares off—although without cause — many volunteer workers.

Modern drug treatment has cut the time an average TB patient remains in the hospital to a little over three months, according to Dr. Robert W. Clarke of the hospital's medical staff.

As soon as their fever drops tuberculosis patients are allowed to wear street clothing and to stroll around the wards. They may have visitors. Still, they are faced with complete disruption of their normal lives, prolonged medication and separation from their families.

Though far from being the hopeless disease described in the romantic novels of the last century, TB still is discouraging.

ATTRACTIVE AND vivacious Margaret Robideaux made friends with the TB patients. She urged them to attempt small needlework projects, wood-burning, copper-hammering, leatherwork or weaving.

By displaying their efforts, she encouraged even reluctant patients to paint and draw.

Received slowly at first, her ideas caught on after a successful Easter party featuring eggs decorated by the patients.

As the patients return to their communities and report her efforts, individuals and organizations are beginning to collect and deliver craft materials to the small workroom at the hospital.

Upon leaving a Colorado TB hospital after 18 months of treatment, she vowed someday to return to help those patients whose days merge into one long period of sameness.

YEARS OF traveling around the world with her Army officer husband prevented Mrs. Robideaux from fulfilling her pledge until a year ago. But she has been making up for lost time Since then, she has worked full time as a volunteer at the Terrace, the tuberculosis wing of Ross General Hospital.

"I was a cosmetologist, and my first thought was to try to help the morale of those women who were too ill to do their own hair," she says. She began at Ross by giving shampoos, sets and permanent waves. She also shopped and did personal errands for the patients.

Her goals grew when she discovered how little there was with which the 40 tuberculosis patients at the Terrace could fill their days.

"WHEN I WAS ill, I read until my eyes hurt," Mrs. Robideaux says. "But it's difficult to read full-time even when you enjoy it. Television has the same drawback."

And among the patients at the Terrace are many older people with failing eyesight. There are also patients of Chinese ancestry who do not read or understand English. Sometimes there are small children.

Peg Robideaux began by interesting the patients in several simple crafts, her own hobbies. She brought the necessary materials from her home.

It was an uphill task in the beginning, and she says she never would have continued had it not been for the encouragement and tutelage of Mrs. Corwin Hinshaw, chairman of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn.'s patient services committee. Mrs. Hinshaw has worked steadily for Terrace patients for more than 10 years, during which period numerous less dedicated volunteers came and went — sometimes leaving the entire job on her shoulders.

WHEN MRS. Robideaux came, attracted by an Independent-Journal story about the need for volunteers, Mrs. Hinshaw and Gertrude Kent were sharing the task of running errands for some 35 patients and helping them find boredom-fighting occupations.

Never have there been too many volunteers. The nature of the disease confining patients to the Terrace scares off—although without cause — many volunteer workers.

Modern drug treatment has cut the time an average TB patient remains in the hospital to a little over three months, according to Dr. Robert W. Clarke of the hospital's medical staff.

As soon as their fever drops tuberculosis patients are allowed to wear street clothing and to stroll around the wards. They may have visitors. Still, they are faced with complete disruption of their normal lives, prolonged medication and separation from their families.

Though far from being the hopeless disease described in the romantic novels of the last century, TB still is discouraging.

ATTRACTIVE AND vivacious Margaret Robideaux made friends with the TB patients. She urged them to attempt small needlework projects, wood-burning, copper-hammering, leatherwork or weaving.

By displaying their efforts, she encouraged even reluctant patients to paint and draw.

Received slowly at first, her ideas caught on after a successful Easter party featuring eggs decorated by the patients.

As the patients return to their communities and report her efforts, individuals and organizations are beginning to collect and deliver craft materials to the small workroom at the hospital.

THIS Christmas tree with strikingly different decorations is one result of Mrs. R. J. Robideaux's determination to find interesting and creative projects to occupy the time of tuberculosis patients at the Terrace, Ross General Hospital, especially during the Christmas season. Brilliant with scarlet cardinals and pyracantha berries, it is one of five small yule trees decorated by patients and Mrs. Robideaux for the TB sanitorium. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

UNTIL TUBERCULOSIS inactivated him and put him in the Terrace, Tony Martinez of Richmond had never even handled a paint brush. Now feeling well and energetic, though his illness is not yet arrested, Martinez fills many hours exercising a talent he didn't know he had. Oil-on-black-velvet is one of a half-dozen media combinations he is trying.

SO PROFESSIONAL are his completed leather wallets, key containers and leather-working tools that Harvey Gantt of Berkeley says: "I'm going into the leather business after I get out of here." Finding hobbies to interest hospital-bound men is more difficult than selecting sedentary crafts for women, according to volunteer Peg Robideaux.

Former Tuberculosis Patient Now Helps Today's TB Victims

Peg Robideaux's Own Experience Gives Her Depth Of Understanding

conducting its annual Christmas Seal fund drive to further its efforts on behalf of the sick) and the Independent Order of Foresters have been especially good friends, according to Mrs. Robideaux.

"We accept most anything, because it's bound to come in handy sometime," she says. Yards of colorful tulle received some months ago were made into skirts for dolls and ballet dancers hanging on the Terrace Christmas trees.

Books, puzzles and non-strenuous games are always welcome.

"Not a joiner," Mrs. Robideaux was reluctant to become part of a formal volunteer organization. But the needs of the Terrace patients so impressed her that she joined the Ross Hospital Volunteers for the Terrace and now is overseeing a small corps of volunteer helpers.

THREE RETIRED nurses, Ruth Mason, Ethel Kelsey and Gertrude Kent now shop for the toothpaste, toilet articles and personal wants of the patients. Elizabeth Wietlauf recently joined the enthusiastic cadre and is helping with the crafts program.

Jay Erskine, a Marin County businessman, acts as general handyman on big projects.

More help would be welcome. "We still need someone who can come on Thursdays," Mrs. Robideaux says.

Entertainment for the male patients has been a real puzzler. "But," says Mrs. Robideaux, "things are looking up." A brand new pool table, gift of the Foresters, is her pride and joy.

THE FORESTERS also bought lumber for a workbench she designed and had built. Because there is no room for it inside, it rests on a graveled roof between two wings. With more tools the men being treated at the Ross Terrace will be able to make several things — when weather permits.

The major remaining problem is lack of space. Peg Robideaux spends a big part of her week in a tiny room crammed with materials for her crafts. She lacks shelves and storage facilities, and a tiny table is the only space available for patients who wish to work under direction.

Her big wish is for a central area large enough for group projects, games and tournaments and parties.

"That's the way to fire up enthusiasm," she says. "And it's much better therapy for those who are inclined to closet themselves in their room with their problems."

NOW MOST of the craft work must be done at bedside. A stroll around the wards of the Terrace may reveal a Chinese gentleman painting with oils on velvet, a Liberian exchange student (forced by TB to spend the first few weeks of his stay in a foreign land in an even more foreign hospital) alternately working on leather tooling and studying his chemistry, and an elderly lady making Christmas ornaments.

Mrs. Robideaux staged last October's Halloween celebration in a newly constructed hallway that joins the Terrace to the rest of the hospital. Decorations, costumes and "wonderful pumpkins" carved by the patients made the occasion festive.

Her prized memory is of the Liberian student demonstrating his native dances, with a hospital staff member as his partner.

Tuberculosis is no respecter of persons and both private and county-care patients are admitted to the Terrace. There are housewives and accountants, students and retired businessmen, even an undertaker.

A BIG PART of Mrs. Robideaux's "job"—and an activity much praised by the medical staff—is talking with these people. When the rest period ends at 2 p.m., a steady stream of visitors stops by her headquarters for a little glue, a patch of fabric, or a few sequins—and a friendly chat.

Whether the tuberculosis patients find Peg Robideaux easy to talk with because of her own illness and recovery or whether they are simply caught up in her unflagging enthusiasm is difficult to assess. But the success of her mission is unquestioned.

"I praise Peg Robideaux to the skies," declares head nurse Beulah Peterson. "The difference here in the year she has been with us is amazing."

DR. CLARKE agrees that she is doing a wonderful job. Although more than 5,000 new, active cases of TB are reported in California each year and the beds at Ross Terrace are nearly always filled, it's difficult to find tuberculosis workers, professional or voluntary, he says.

Mrs. Robideaux may be able to look forward to at least one additional helper.

When she entered the Colorado sanatorium as a bride of less than a month, she also said farewell to her husband, who was being shipped to Hawaii on active duty. They were separated for the year and a half she was undergoing TB treatment.

NOW, WHILE she works daily at Ross Terrace, Lt. Col. R.G. Robideaux rests in Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver, recovering from an undiagnosed lung condition that probably resulted from an earlier case of TB.

When he comes home to Marin, chances are he will want to join the ranks of Ross Terrace volunteers.

In the meantime Peg Robideaux carries on with her present corps of helpers. To the TB patients, she's their Christmas angel. But a Christmas angel who works in their behalf the year around.

PROPERLY ARRANGED on an empty plastic bleach bottle, bits of bright felt and a handful of sequins, plus four large corks for feet, produce this irristible piggy bank. Though in the Terrace only two months, Mrs. Pearl Borden of San Francisco is grateful for volunteers' interest in helping her find creative hobbies to fill the hours.

IT WAS AN ESPECIALLY Merry Christmas for the R. B. Robideauxes in Switzerland where this photo was taken. She had recovered from her siege of polio, and they were living in Europe, where he, a lieutenant colonel, served as executive officer of the Heidelberg, Germany, Command from 1959 to 1963. This Christmas season, he is hospitalized, receiving treatment for an ailment that is apparently the aftermath of tuberculosis. And Mrs. Robideaux is working with patients of the TB ward at Ross General Hospital, helping to brighten the holidays for them.

Prison Doc—

THE "CON BOSSES" were gathered in the decorated dining hall of San Quentin Prison for their Christmas Day dinner of 1914 when this photograph was taken. Those were the times when pork, not turkey, was the piece de resistance on the Christmas menu. And an apple was a treat.

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles written especially for the Marin Magazine by Dr. Leo L. Stanley, long-time chief medical officer at San Quentin Prison, recalling events and conditions at the prison in its earlier days. "Christmas in the Clink" is what Dr. Stanley calls this story.)

Early-Day Christmases At San Quentin Recalled

By DR. LEO L. STANLEY

Newspaper accounts of the way convicted criminals spend their Christmases behind bars almost invariably make reference to the inmates' holiday dinner of "salad, turkey with dressing, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie and all the other trimmings."

This could be elaborated upon, but in essence that is what is served in San Quentin Prison, which, along with the other penal institutions under the Department of Corrections, boasts that "the food served our inmates is as good as that served in the armed forces."

It was not always so.

UNDER WARDEN John Hoyle, 1907-1913, the piece de resistance on the Christmas dinner menu was pork.

Turkey in those days was much more expensive than it is today, and the fowl were considered too good for the "cons." But at the prison's pig ranch, some very fine porkers were fattened for the feast day. They were fed on table leavings and some grain. Then the pigs were slaughtered on the ranch, scalded in a huge vat, scraped of hair, cut up and put on ice to await the big feed.

There would also be apple sauce, pound cake, possibly an apple and plenty of "Old Joe" coffee.

WHAT WAS not devoured at the table could be taken, on this special day, back to the cells at "lock-up" time to be eaten later. Ordinarily this taking of "lumps," as the left-overs were called, into the cells was frowned upon for sanitary reasons, since there was no running water in the Old Stone Block. Often times, however, I think that the "boys" of those days were as well satisfied as the modern day inmates, despite their many advantages.

Under Warden Hoyle, a Christmas amnesty was declared each year. On that day lost privileges were restored and the punishment slate wiped clean. Every prisoner could start the new year afresh.

IN THE FIRST year of his administration, Hoyle wanted to permit the prisoners to receive gifts from relatives and friends at Christmas time. But this proposal of the "reform warden" (all wardens, it seems, are referred to as "reform wardens" when they first take over the job) was dropped at the persuasion of Samuel Randolph, captain of the yard.

The experienced Randolph pointed out that opium, morphine, and other contraband had been smuggled into the prison in the past in gift packages. Even the most critical inspection by prison officials failed to discover the "dope." Some of the schemes for getting the stuff into the prison were really ingenious — beneath postage stamps, in hollowed-out books and magazines, in the soles of shoes, etc.

For the women in prison, Christmas had a special significance. There was their annual Christmas show to break the monotony. To refresh my memory, I quote from a passage in my book, "Men at Their Worst":

"THAT NIGHT, with other members of the official family, I watched the women's Christmas show. Clara Phillips, the murderess of her husband's secretary, had emerged from solitary in time to direct it.

"Dorothy Mackay, a one-time Hollywood actress, was in charge of the dramatics. She is dead now, poor girl. She served ten months for failing to report immediately to police that the young actor she loved, Paul Kelley, had killed her husband in a struggle. Dorothy Mackay never took on a tinge of prison psychology, and her friends remained devoted to her.

"Mrs. Peete proved to be the hit of the show. The so-called 'enigma woman' sang a parody of 'My Little Gray Home in the West,' meaning San Quentin, to enthusiastic applause. (After her release from a murder "rap," she committed the same crime again. This time she was sentenced to death and died in the little green gas chamber at her 'little gray home in the West.')"

OTHER SKITS by the "girls" were very well done.

Then the curtain lifted upon a religious tableau for which I was totally unprepared. It was a setting in Bethlehem, with the Crib, the Mother and the Angels. There was a hush in the hot little auditorium. The robed women actually had the appearance of angels!

Gun molls, murderesses, thieves, unfortunates, at this moment they knew their divine source. It shone on their white robes and rapt faces.

What they should have been — not what they were — stood revealed in that prison tableau. I found myself sitting there pondering, where, in the making of so many, had the hand of the Potter gone wrong on these few?

UNFORTUNATELY, I learned later from Josephine Jackson, the prison matron, that after gifts had been exchanged among the women, just before lights out, one of the girls, Erna Janoschek, convicted of slaying a baby left in her charge, had reverted to type and in her customary spitful mood had kicked over the Christmas tree "just for the heck of it."

Even that sordid event, however, did not dim my memory of that one inspiring moment I experienced when the curtain first revealed that timeless tableau of the Christmas story.

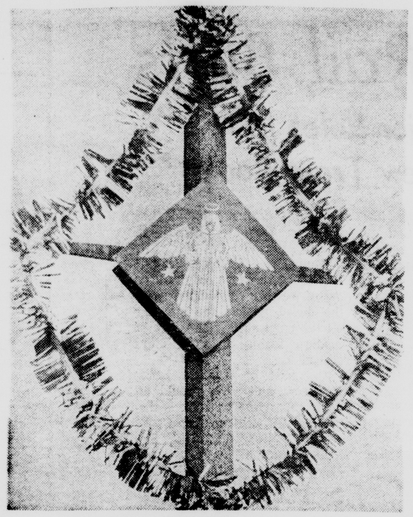
Marin In Her Christmas Finery



SAUSALITO MIGHT be expected to come up with something artistic, and this caroling angel on a pole decoration fulfills those expectations.

THE RELIGIOUS BASIS of the Christmas holiday has not been overlooked by Marinites. Along with the gaiety, there are also to be seen the Nativity Scenes. This one is at San Anselmo City Hall.

THE YOUNGSTERS at the Northgate Shopping Center have not one but two Christmas trees to admire — the large evergreen before them, and its image in the pool below. The big and decorated tree remains the focal point in many of Marin's Christmas decoration schemes.

A Treat For Rail Buffs

Marinites Play Major Roles In Dick Steinheimer's New Train Book

You have to be a railroad buff to appreciate fully Richard Steinheimer and Donald Sims' "Western Trains." But anyone can enjoy the pictures.

Steinheimer, who achieved wider-than-national esteem for his railroad photos while still photographing and writing news on the Independent-Journal, has put together a collection of beauties in this, his second book. The reproduction is excellent, too.

Sims' text has the proper note of nostalgia that goes with railroad talk, and enough jabber about 2-10-2s, bi-polar electrics, combinations, etc., to show he knows his locomotives.

Adding to Steinheimer's pictures are some by contributing photographers, including Wilbur C. Whittaker of Mill Valley. The book was designed by another Marinite, David A. Strassman of San Anselmo.

Theme of "Western Trains" is that the romance didn't all go out of western railroading when the diesel pushed the steamer off the track. The photos are of modern trains—and old-timers still in use.

The host of railroad buffs, both east and west, should all enjoy this one. The book is distributed by Golden West Books of Post Office Box 3136, San Marino, Calif.

Cycle As Symbol Of A Mobile Age

By DON KEOWN

A TREASURY OF MOTORCYCLES OF THE WORLD by Floyd Clymer, McGraw-Hill, 238 pages, $8.95.

Like rock 'n' roll music and flashing neon signs, the motorcycle seems an appropriate symbol of the frantic age in which we live, with its noise and its mobility.

In these 1960s there has been a tremendous upsurge of interest in the two-wheelers that continues to gain momentum. It is now estimated that there are more than three million riders in these United States (a third of whom, incidentally, reside in Southern California).

Motorcycling interest cuts across practically every segment of our society, from the black leather jacketed Hells Angels to movie stars and socialites.

With this huge audience in mind, veteran automotive writer Floyd Clymer has put together: "A Treasury of Motorcycles of the World."

It is a collection of articles that range from instructional tips for both novice and experienced riders to reports on the big international competitions. There is considerable history of the cycle, information on the new mechanical developments, special articles on travel and recreation for motorcyclists, statistics on engine performances, a plug for the American Motorcycle Assn., and a great deal more.

Racing records are recorded.

More important is the cataloging of the major motorcycle models, past and present, with thumbnail descriptions and illustrations.

But perhaps the chief attraction for the dedicated buff will be the some 500 photographs that Clymer has included, ranging from early-day scenes out of historical archives to present-day action shots.

What the book does not have is organization. All this material is presented in a rather unplanned, slapdash manner. The writing styles vary widely. Material overlaps. Some subjects receive a great deal more space and emphasis than they would seem to merit. Others are slighted or ignored.

Real motorcycling buffs (as distinguished from those whose interest is only occasional and slight) are likely, however, to be greatly impressed by the wealth of information that has been compiled, and will probably not quarrel too seriously with the method of its presentation. They will rejoice at the opportunity to pore over what the publishers assure us is "the first book of its kind." And especially will they savor those photographs.

A CHRISTMAS STORY with appeal the year-around for young readers is Marion Garthwaite's "The Twelfth Night Santons" (Doubleday, $3.25) with illustrations by Winifred Lubell. It is the tale of Pierre the shepherd boy, who longed to learn how to make santons and who, above, watches skilled craftsman Papa Gant at work.

By And About Cole Porter

THE COLE PORTER STORY by Richard G. Hubler, World, 140 pages, $3.75.

"THE COLE Porter Story" represents an unusual combination of autobiography and biography.

It is part Porter's own version of his life, as told to and recorded by writer Richard G. Hubler in 1954. The original intent was to transform the material into a magazine series. But Porter, at the last minute, stipulated that the information he had provided not be used until after his death.

The remainder of the book is Hubler's own expansion of Porter's account of his early life and career, and his analysis of Porter's peculiar talents and their impact upon the American entertainment and social scenes.

Rather surprisingly, it is the part written by Hubler, rather than the portion recorded from Porter, that is the more interesting.

The "as told by Cole Porter" segment is a rather terse and colorless chronicling of his various shows. Hubler's material adds meat to that skeleton, bringing out not only the personality of Porter himself, but revealing a great deal as well about the more general role of musical comedy in our culture. It is a well-done and perceptive "think piece" about one of our most popular and most pleasant forms of escapism. Nor does it ignore the satirical aspects so often overlooked.

Porter, himself, emerges as a paradox, an individual who enjoyed and played to the hilt the flamboyant playboy role society attributed to him. Yet he was a man who lived with a great deal of physical pain, who was rather retiring inwardly and who was always a serious worker.

COLE PORTER
Respectful treatment

Hubler's contention that Porter's music was far superior to his lyrics will provide food for a great deal of thought and some argument.

Rather ironically, the introduction is by Arthur Schwartz, producer of the movie, "Night and Day," based loosely on Porter's life. It was a picture the late composer detested. A considerable number of photos, some of them of questionable value, have been included. It is a small book, and hardly an important one. But it is an interesting one, light and entertaining, yet respectful of its subject matter.

Our Reviewers Report

Two Biographies

ADLAI E. STEVENSON by Stuart Garry Brown, Barron's Woodbury Press, 216 pages, $3.25.

PORTRAIT — ADLAI E. STEVENSON: POLITICIAN, DIPLOMAT, FRIEND by Alden Whitman and The New York Times, Harper & Row, 289 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer, Jr.

These two books, published close on the heels of Stevenson's death, were written differently, one in haste, one at leisure, and for different purposes, but they have a sameness about them because they both lean heavily on their very quotable subject.

Commissioned in 1962, Brown's biography is his second book on Stevenson.

According to the author, who worked with Stevenson in the 1952 campaign, it is intended as an interim biography, not as a definitive work. Within this limited framework it succeeds reasonably well, giving an adequate chronological review of Stevenson's life and accomplishments. Unfortunately, as an analytical and critical biography it fails. It smacks too much of the eulogy.

Whitman's "Portrait" is one of those extremely topical books, put together in haste to take advantage of the sales of the moment. It is a potpourri of parts of Stevenson's speeches, parts of columns of Times' columnists, particularly James Reston and Arthur Krock, tied together by Whitman's commentary. Fortunately, while this is a shallow and expedient approach to anecdotal biography, the bits and pieces used are of such high quality that the work has its rewarding moments.

Both books afford an opportunity for reacquaintance with Stevenson's prose and this is their primary value. They remind the reader of his wit, his courage in talking sense to the electorate and of the integrity which denied him the use of the platitudes, promises and panaceas which are the stock in trade of the ordinary politician.

Either book reminds the reader of the importance of the man who was not ashamed to be dubbed "egghead" when that was a term of suspicion and abuse. This reminder gives strength to all thoughtful men, regardless of their party.

Campus Controversy

REVOLUTION AT BERKELEY: THE CRISIS IN AMERICAN EDUCATION edited by Michael V. Miller and Susan Gilmore, Dial Press, 348 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer, Jr.

"Revolution at Berkeley" is an interesting collection of comments on the Free Speech Movement (FSM) which rocked the Berkeley campus in the fall of 1964.

The editors have included a variety of points of view: Student, faculty, administration and outsider. The picture that emerges, naturally, is colored by the attitudes of the various commentators. This review concentrates on the major areas of general agreement, and leaves the polemics to the individual reader.

Irving Howe's introductory essay is a masterly summing up of some of the major problems confronting higher education in America today, and the relationship of the FSM to these problems.

Howe is followed by the only comment from the administration included in the collection—a long article by Clark Kerr, written before the fact and based on the Godkin Lectures he gave in 1963. President Kerr and the ideas he presents in this and other works is much quoted by many of the contributors, and usually with hostility.

Kerr refers to the university as the keystone of what he calls the "education industry." This "industry" has developed as a result of two major factors: (1) the population explosion at the university level caused by the extension of the mass education concept to the college level, and (2) the reliance of government and industry on the university for their research needs.

Several contributors point out that research has taken precedence over teaching on many campuses at just the time when even more skillful and more numerous teachers are required to deal with a burgeoning student population. The students describe a feeling of "alienation" due to the impersonal nature of life at a large university.

The professors confirm that undergradute students rarely deal with instructors above the teaching assistant level, except in large lecture classes.

Contributions from both faculty and students focus a great deal of hostility on the university administration. It is interesting to note that in his essay, the role which Kerr foresees for the administration in his "multiversity" is one where the " . . . administration serves and stimulates rather than rules the institution . . . flexible all the time."

According to almost every account this ideal describes neither Kerr nor the Berkeley campus administration in the FSM crisis. The administration was rigid and lacked any "feeling" for the student point of view.

Another area of agreement is that the FSM illustrates some real problems current in the education establishment, and that it is not merely the work of a few unrepresentative radicals.

"Revolution at Berkeley" is a provocative case study for anyone seriously concerned with the changing nature of the American university.

A Unique Role

JOHN, THE TRANSITIONAL POPE by Ernesto Balducci, McGraw-Hill, 318 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Italian priest - philospher Ernesto Balducci teaches at the School of Classical Studies in Florence and the School of Philosophy and Theology in Rome. He wrote this book during John XXIII's papacy and draws upon much of his writing through his lifetime, although none of the material from the wealth of manuscripts left after the Pope's death was used for this book.

The complex threads linking the life of Pope John with the wide historical movement which he began are set down by Professor Balducci to reveal their unity and design. Not really for the layman interested mainly in the human details of the Pope, the book includes Pope John's preparedness through the years for his work as cardinal and finally as Pope, and his unique role in guidance toward world peace with the treatise "Pacem en Terris" and a new era for the Church of Rome.

A Saint's Story

PAUL, A MAN WHO CHANGED THE WORLD by Henrietta Buckmaster, McGraw-Hill, 213 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Jean Langham.

Sunday School teachers will appreciate the easily presented material in Miss Buckmaster's book about St. Paul.

She follows his activities from his conversion and Jerusalem, through the pagan cities of Tarsus, Galatia, Thessalonica, etc., and finally to Rome where tradition says he was beheaded at the direction of Nero. It is the first in the new "Men of the Bible" series from McGraw-Hill.

Unfortunately, Miss Buckmaster does not do justice to the character of Paul as he must have been, strong and vibrant.

The colorful pagan country and customs on the other hand are vividly recreated and will probably make more of an impression on the audience Miss Buckmaster will reach than will the zealous missionary who preached the new religion of spiritual love. There is no dialogue of any consequence and the account seems much more like an encyclopedic description than a biography.

Different Worlds

DARK STRANGER by John Iggulden, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 242 pages, $5.50. Review by Richard Lyttle.

The author here has marooned a Negro and a white man on a wild Australian shore to show how different their worlds are.

Though a lawyer, the Negro has the heritage of the bush behind him and at first dominates in the struggle against the elements. The white man, a top public relations flack, is helpless in the wilds, but comes slowly to dominate as the two work closer to civilization.

Though the experience gives the two men a bond for friendship, they part ways at the end when it is shown that the Negro is a man of high principle while the white man is not.

Though the adventure sometimes seems thinly contrived, Iggulden is a novelist who has given much thought to racial relations and all the sociological implications.

The characters are well drawn and seem real even when the plot does not.

THE LATE ambassador to the United Nations and twice Democratic candidate for President, Adlai E. Steveson, is subject of two newly-published biographies reviewed on this page.

Three Variables

SMOKING, HEALTH AND PERSONALITY by H. J. Eysenck, Basic Books, 155 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Dr. Eysenck (professor at the Institute of Psychiatry, Maudsley Hospital, London) smokes, but he doesn't need a pipe to aid him in throwing up a muddling smoke screen.

What he's really trying to say in this short work is that he fears researchers into the cause of cancer have become too "one-tracked" in their work by emphasizing the relationship between heavy smoking and lung cancer. Eysenck believes there is considerable evidence to warrant the investigation of the relation between personality and cancer.

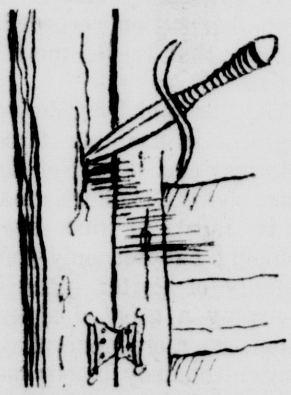
He states in the beginning: "This book is concerned then with the relationship between three variables: Smoking, disease, particularly lung cancer and coronary thrombosis, and personality. All the evidence to be considered is circumstantial; there is no direct evidence which does not rely on statistical investigation and logical interpretations. These are difficult matters and it is very easy to go wrong."

With the aid of 30 line graphs bar graphs and diagrams, he then proceeds to show us how impossible it is to prove his points.

It takes entirely too much work for the reader to understand what this man is trying to say—he's just not a good writer. But that alone is not sufficient cause to reject a work such as this—if he had presented good evidence to substantiate his arguments. In my estimation, he did not.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE WINDY SIDE OF THE LAW by Sara Woods, Harper & Row, 249 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.



Sara Woods, who has earned considerable praise for her earlier suspense novels, has written a not very original and rather disappointing one this time.

Peter Hammond, just returned to England from Ceylon, finds himself a victim of amnesia. Thus unable to defend himself against a charge of narcotics smuggling, he turns to his barrister friend Anthony Maitland for assistance. Maitland soon finds himself with the added complication of murder on his hands.

The mystery element is rather thin, and there is very little in the way of deduction. Nor is the suspense sufficient to cause you to overlook those omissions.

"The Windy Side of the Law" will occupy your attention, but it is not up to standard for either Miss Wood or Harper & Row.

For A Super-Fine Finish, Sandpaper Is Still Necessary

The Master Craftsmen Prefer To Do Such Work By Hand

Look at the figures on the millions of dollars worth of power sanders sold every year and you would be convinced that nobody sands by hand anymore.

That is until you look at the figures on the million dollars worth of ordinary hand sandpaper sold every year.

A flawless surface is the basis of a truly fine finish on wood. When using a clear finishing material—varnish, lacquer, shellac, synthetic or whatever—the finest product in the world and the most efficient techniques will not hide a surface that has been improperly prepared. In some cases, the tiniest of scratches will assume gigantic proportions after a clear finish has been applied.

POWER SANDERS are indispensable for anyone who works a lot with wood, especially for the initial sanding. It saves time. It saves labor. And it accomplishes results that the novice could not have hoped for many years ago.

But when it comes to that superfine finish just before the first coat is put on, most master cabinetmakers — and apparently most amateurs — still rely on sanding by hand. A very fine grade of sandpaper also is preferred by the handsanders for the necessary smoothing between coats.

While there are many varieties of abrasive papers available, the principle is always the same—the finer the grit, the less of the wood surface is taken off. And that is what you want in that final sanding and for those between-coats. Only a very light pressure is used in the direction of the grain.

IT IS ONE of the curious things about sanding that most persons, when they first begin this important step in wood finishing, find it difficult to sand in a straight line. This is especially true after the first few minutes of sanding, when it begins to get a little monotonous and the process becomes rather mechanical.

Teachers in woodworking in high schools say they constantly have to remind their students to sand in a straight line since the hand and arm have a tendency to wander off course.

President Kerr and the ideas he presents in this and other works is much quoted by many of the contributors, and usually with hostility.

Kerr refers to the university as the keystone of what he calls the "education industry." This "industry" has developed as a result of two major factors: (1) the population explosion at the university level caused by the extension of the mass education concept to the college level, and (2) the reliance of government and industry on the university for their research needs.

Several contributors point out that research has taken precedence over teaching on many campuses at just the time when even more skillful and more numerous teachers are required to deal with a burgeoning student population. The students describe a feeling of "alienation" due to the impersonal nature of life at a large university.

The professors confirm that undergradute students rarely deal with instructors above the teaching assistant level, except in large lecture classes.

Contributions from both faculty and students focus a great deal of hostility on the university administration. It is interesting to note that in his essay, the role which Kerr foresees for the administration in his "multiversity" is one where the " . . . administration serves and stimulates rather than rules the institution . . . flexible all the time."

According to almost every account this ideal describes neither Kerr nor the Berkeley campus administration in the FSM crisis. The administration was rigid and lacked any "feeling" for the student point of view.

Another area of agreement is that the FSM illustrates some real problems current in the education establishment, and that it is not merely the work of a few unrepresentative radicals.

"Revolution at Berkeley" is a provocative case study for anyone seriously concerned with the changing nature of the American university.

A Unique Role

JOHN, THE TRANSITIONAL POPE by Ernesto Balducci, McGraw-Hill, 318 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Italian priest - philospher Ernesto Balducci teaches at the School of Classical Studies in Florence and the School of Philosophy and Theology in Rome. He wrote this book during John XXIII's papacy and draws upon much of his writing through his lifetime, although none of the material from the wealth of manuscripts left after the Pope's death was used for this book.

The complex threads linking the life of Pope John with the wide historical movement which he began are set down by Professor Balducci to reveal their unity and design. Not really for the layman interested mainly in the human details of the Pope, the book includes Pope John's preparedness through the years for his work as cardinal and finally as Pope, and his unique role in guidance toward world peace with the treatise "Pacem en Terris" and a new era for the Church of Rome.

A Saint's Story

PAUL, A MAN WHO CHANGED THE WORLD by Henrietta Buckmaster, McGraw-Hill, 213 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Jean Langham.

Sunday School teachers will appreciate the easily presented material in Miss Buckmaster's book about St. Paul.

She follows his activities from his conversion and Jerusalem, through the pagan cities of Tarsus, Galatia, Thessalonica, etc., and finally to Rome where tradition says he was beheaded at the direction of Nero. It is the first in the new "Men of the Bible" series from McGraw-Hill.

Unfortunately, Miss Buckmaster does not do justice to the character of Paul as he must have been, strong and vibrant.

The colorful pagan country and customs on the other hand are vividly recreated and will probably make more of an impression on the audience Miss Buckmaster will reach than will the zealous missionary who preached the new religion of spiritual love. There is no dialogue of any consequence and the account seems much more like an encyclopedic description than a biography.

Different Worlds

DARK STRANGER by John Iggulden, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 242 pages, $5.50. Review by Richard Lyttle.

The author here has marooned a Negro and a white man on a wild Australian shore to show how different their worlds are.

Though a lawyer, the Negro has the heritage of the bush behind him and at first dominates in the struggle against the elements. The white man, a top public relations flack, is helpless in the wilds, but comes slowly to dominate as the two work closer to civilization.

THE LATE ambassador to the United Nations and twice Democratic candidate for President, Adlai E. Steveson, is subject of two newly-published biographies reviewed on this page.

Though the experience gives the two men a bond for friendship, they part ways at the end when it is shown that the Negro is a man of high principle while the white man is not.

Though the adventure sometimes seems thinly contrived, Iggulden is a novelist who has given much thought to racial relations and all the sociological implications.

The characters are well drawn and seem real even when the plot does not.

Three Variables

SMOKING, HEALTH AND PERSONALITY by H. J. Eysenck, Basic Books, 155 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Dr. Eysenck (professor at the Institute of Psychiatry, Maudsley Hospital, London) smokes, but he doesn't need a pipe to aid him in throwing up a muddling smoke screen.

What he's really trying to say in this short work is that he fears researchers into the cause of cancer have become too "one-tracked" in their work by emphasizing the relationship between heavy smoking and lung cancer. Eysenck believes there is considerable evidence to warrant the investigation of the relation between personality and cancer.

He states in the beginning: "This book is concerned then with the relationship between three variables: Smoking, disease, particularly lung cancer and coronary thrombosis, and personality. All the evidence to be considered is circumstantial; there is no direct evidence which does not rely on statistical investigation and logical interpretations. These are difficult matters and it is very easy to go wrong."

With the aid of 30 line graphs bar graphs and diagrams, he then proceeds to show us how impossible it is to prove his points.

It takes entirely too much work for the reader to understand what this man is trying to say—he's just not a good writer. But that alone is not sufficient cause to reject a work such as this—if he had presented good evidence to substantiate his arguments. In my estimation, he did not.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE WINDY SIDE OF THE LAW by Sara Woods, Harper & Row, 249 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Sara Woods, who has earned considerable praise for her earlier suspense novels, has written a not very original and rather disappointing one this time.

Peter Hammond, just returned to England from Ceylon, finds himself a victim of amnesia. Thus unable to defend himself against a charge of narcotics smuggling, he turns to his barrister friend Anthony Maitland for assistance. Maitland soon finds himself with the added complication of murder on his hands.

The mystery element is rather thin, and there is very little in the way of deduction. Nor is the suspense sufficient to cause you to overlook those omissions.

"The Windy Side of the Law" will occupy your attention, but it is not up to standard for either Miss Wood or Harper & Row.

The Legends Of Christmas Flowers Told

ROSES, LIKE SO many of our most beautiful flowers, have their special Christmas legend. It was, the story says, the gift of the little shepherdess to the new-born Holy Infant lying in his manger.

While thousands of Americans are saying "Merry Christmas" with flowers this year, few may realize that the druids of ancient Britain, who lived 2,000 years ago, believed that mistletoe was sacred to the goddess of love—thus our modern custom of kissing under the mistletoe.

According to legend, when a lad claims his kiss under the mistletoe, he must remove a berry and give it to the grateful maiden. When the last berry is removed from the plant, the mistletoe loses its power and no more kisses may be bestowed beneath it.

It's also said that if a girl is kissed as many times as there are berries, she will be married within a year!

THE USE OF holly as a decoration at Christmas time also can be traced back to antiquity—and many believe that the name is derived from the word "holy." In Germany, where holly is called Christdorn, there is a legend that this thorn was used for the crucifixion crown.

Another tale about holly relates the story of Joseph of Arimathea and eleven of his followers who came to convert some heathens. While preaching to them on Christmas day, he dug his staff into the ground and it immediately burst into life and blossom. A church was dedicated on the spot, and this miraculous thorn of holly continued to grow, blooming always on Christmas Day.

The flower that has become one of the best-known symbols of the Christmas season is the star-shaped poinsettia. So popular in this country are these scarlet-leaved blooms that the Florists' Transworld Delivery Assn. reports wiring more poinsettias than any other holiday floral offering.

THERE ARE ALSO many legends surrounding this Christmas-colored bloom.

One tale relates how a poor Mexican girl was heartbroken because she had nothing of value or beauty to offer the Virgin. In desperation she plucked some scrawny roadside weeds and placed them at the feet of the holy statue. They were immediatly transformed into scarlet brilliance.

The poinsettia plant, brought to this country from Mexico over 125 years ago by Dr. Joel Poinsett, is still called by many "Flor de Noche Buena"—flower of the Holy Night.

Other favorite Christmas flowers have fascinating stories behind them.

Did you know, for instance, that the Christmas daisy is not really a daisy—but an aster? It's a fact. But this is no more unusual than the history of the Christmas rose — which during Greek times was thought to be a remedy for madness.

ACCORDING TO one legend, the rose came to be associated with Christmas on the very night that Christ was born.

A little shepherdess, saddened because she had no gift to offer the Child of Bethlehem, went back to tending her flocks when suddenly an angel appeared. As the angel waved a lily that he carried, the ground was covered with Christmas roses—which the girl joyfully gathered and carried to Christ's manger. The Holy Child turned from the gems and gold of the Magi, reached forth his tiny hands for the blossoms, and smiled as the shepherdess heaped them at His feet.

Whether you've decorated your home with traditional Christmas greens and flowers — or chose roses, poinsettias or holiday bouquets to send loved ones—you can be sure of one thing: Flowers that announce the season's joys bring a glowing delight and a sense of well-being and warmth to all those who come in contact with them — a joyous heritage from the past in honor of the Prince of Peace.

GARDENERS' CHECKLIST

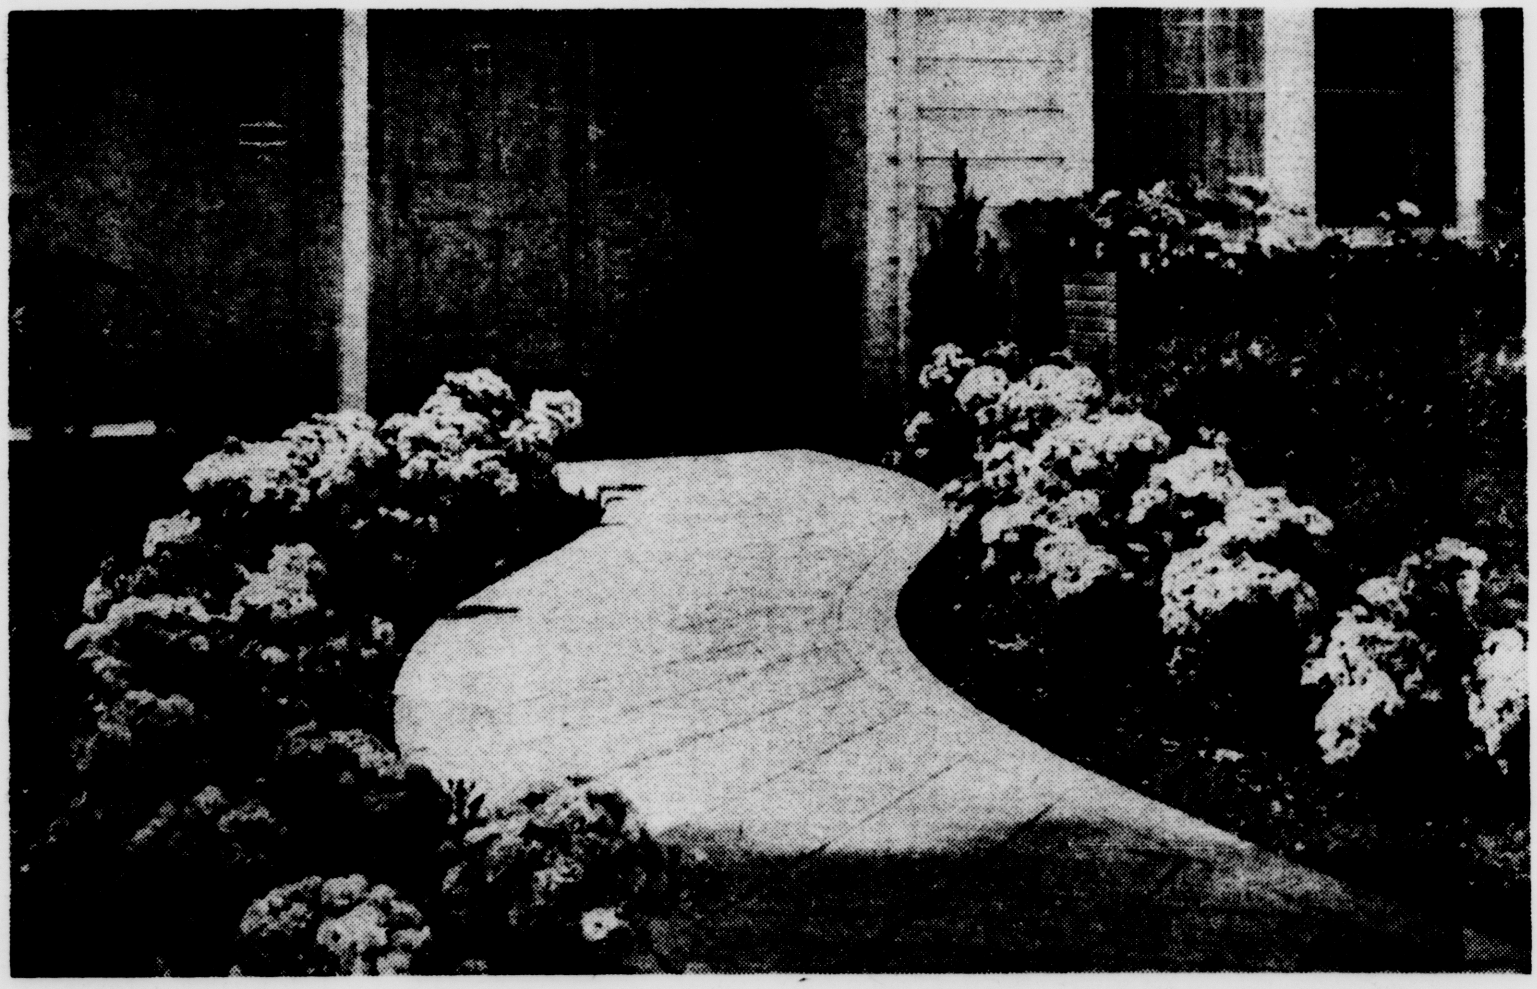
Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ Check the camellias in bloom now at your nursery and see if they're the ones you've been looking for. Remember that camellias bloom when they're dormant, so you can move or plant them in full bloom safely for instant color.

✔ To keep a poinsettia plant flowering for several weeks, place it in your sunniest window and keep it out of drafts. Water it whenever the soil begins to feel dry to the touch. To increase humidity, place the pot on a saucer filled with pebbles to which water has been added.

✔ Bulbs that may be planted now include amaryllis, anemones, callas, gladiolus and ranunculus.

✔ If you are enjoying a living Christmas tree this year, remember to keep it watered while it's indoors. It will last for many seasons.



A MASS OF FLOWERS that line the walk from spring till fall is one way to say welcome to your guests. And floribunda roses are a good planting for such an edging. For A Super-Fine Finish, Sandpaper Is Still Necessary

The Master Craftsmen Prefer To Do Such Work By Hand

Look at the figures on the millions of dollars worth of power sanders sold every year and you would be convinced that nobody sands by hand anymore.

That is until you look at the figures on the million dollars worth of ordinary hand sandpaper sold every year.

A flawless surface is the basis of a truly fine finish on wood. When using a clear finishing material—varnish, lacquer, shellac, synthetic or whatever —the finest product in the world and the most efficient techniques will not hide a surface that has been improperly prepared. In some cases, the tiniest of scratches will assume gigantic proportions after a clear finish has been applied.

POWER SANDERS are indispensable for anyone who works a lot with wood, especially for the initial sanding. It saves time. It saves labor. And it accomplishes results that the novice could not have hoped for many years ago.

But when it comes to that superfine finish just before the first coat is put on, most master cabinetmakers — and apparently most amateurs — still rely on sanding by hand. A very fine grade of sandpaper also is preferred by the handsanders for the necessary smoothing between coats.

While there are many varieties of abrasive papers available, the principle is always the same—the finer the grit, the less of the wood surface is taken off. And that is what you want in that final sanding and for those between-coats. Only a very light pressure is used in the direction of the grain.

IT IS ONE of the curious things about sanding that most persons, when they first begin this important step in wood finishing, find it difficult to sand in a straight line. This is especially true after the first few minutes of sanding, when it begins to get a little monotonous and the process becomes rather mechanical.

Teachers in woodworking in high schools say they constantly have to remind their students to sand in a straight line since the hand and arm have a tendency to wander off course.

There Are Many Festive Plants That Enjoy The Indoors

Bring a gaily blooming azalea plant into any room and that room takes on an instant "party look." The same thing happens with potted chrysanthemums, poinsettias or cyclamen.

They're naturally festive plants.

AFRICAN VIOLETS, with their dainty, ruffled flowers sitting primly above neat, low mounds of leaves, create a charming, spring-like mood. Foliage plants such as Dieffenbachia, Zebra Plant, Norfolk Island Pine, or glamorous little palms bring the outdoors in and make spectacular party props as well as family "pets."

There are dozens of decorative plants that enjoy life indoors, and caring for them there is easy if you follow a few simple rules.

Just remember that conditions that are comfortable for people are also healthful for most plants. No plant likes temperatures any warmer than we do; a few like cyclamen like it a bit cooler; and African Violets can live in the same room with people who enjoy a cozy 72 degrees. A drop of 10 degrees in temperatures at night is ideal.

PLANTS NEED light in the daytime, just as people do, but most of them don't enjoy baking in a sunny window. Poinsettias are an exception to this, as they are happy in the direct sun and want to be kept out of drafts.

An azalea, on the other hand, will keep blooming a long time if you give it plenty of daylight but no direct sun.

A dark spot that needs brightening is ideal for many foliage plants such as ferns because they don't much need light to look their best.

House plants get thirstier than the ones outdoors and must be watered regularly. How much watering they should have depends on the individual variety. Dieffenbachia, for instance, should be allowed to dry out between waterings, whereas azaleas, chrysanthemums, and cyclamen should be kept constantly moist. But no matter how much water your house plant likes, don't let excessive water stand around in the saucer underneath.

Giving a house plant an occasional shower bath under the spray at the kitchen sink will clean dust from the foliage and provide a pleasant interval of humidity.

Nurseries have complete selections of the best indoor plants at this time of the year, so make your selection according to your taste and then ask your nurseryman about the specific preferences of your particular plants.

The New Bareroot Fruit Trees Will Be Arriving Soon

"No matter how large, or how small the garden, there are fruit trees tailored to size," says the California Assn. of Nurserymen. It will soon be time to take action.

There are standard fruit trees used by California orchardists, easily adapted to the fairly large backyard, dwarf fruit trees for small gardens and for espalier-ing against walls and fences and combination trees with three or more varieties of the same kind of fruits on one tree.

ABOUT THE first week in January, your nurseryman will probably be receiving stocks of fruit trees from specialist growers. He chooses only those varieties likely to grow well and produce satisfactory crops in your locality.

Some kinds may be in short supply (because of their restricted demand), so it is a good idea to make your selection while his stock is complete.

This is the season for bareroot planting, a handy way to buy, and a handy way to plant. No containers are involved, so precautions must be taken to keep the roots from drying out.

If you can't plant right away, dig a trench large enough to accommodate the roots, set in the trees, backfill with soil, water well and they are all set to keep until you are ready to plant.

ONLY THE LARGEST of the young bareroot orchard trees are selected by the nurseryman for home planting. They are quick to make up into a producing tree. Early planting gives them the chance to put on extra growth during their first season in the garden.

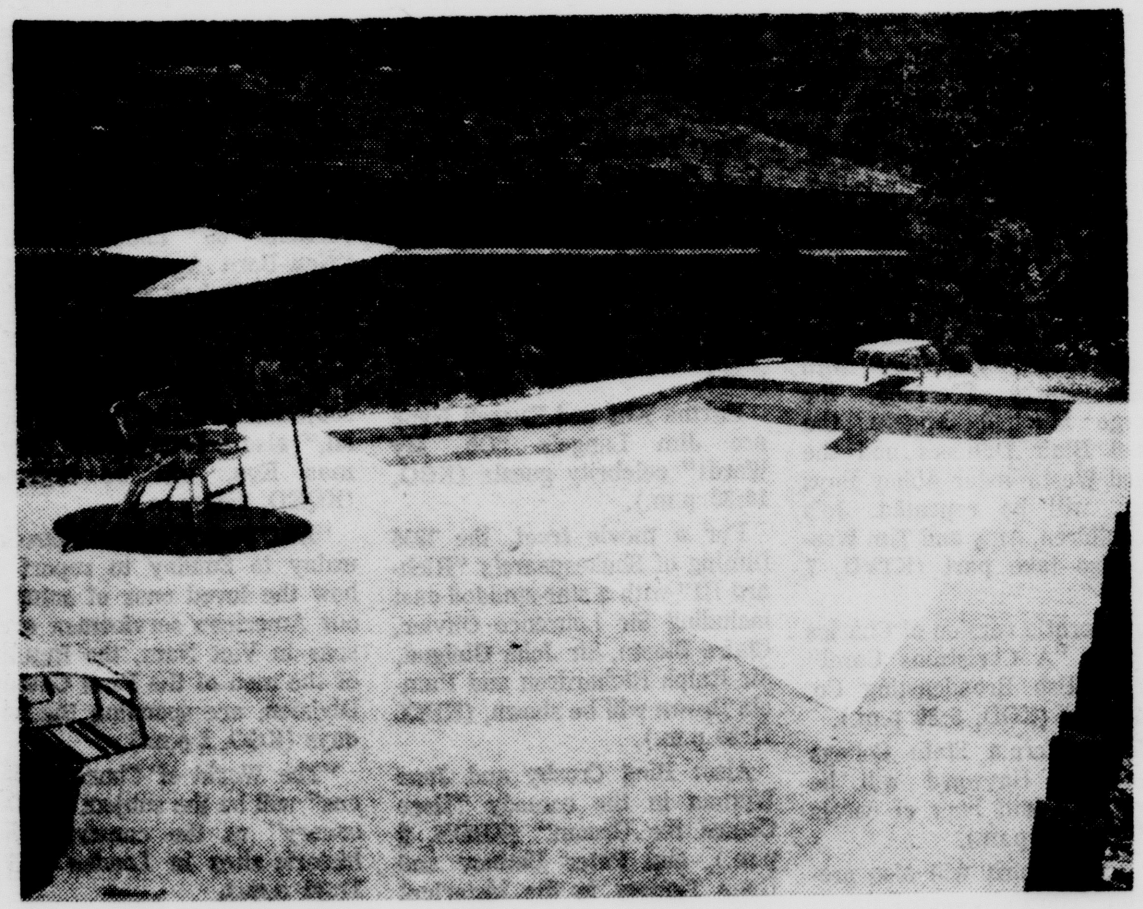
Pruning trees for planting requires experience, so the job is best left to the nurseryman from whom you make your purchase. Don't quail at the sight of the operation—a drastic one—it is all for the good of the future of your trees.

The dwarf fruit tree is a big boon to the owners of "handkerchief size" gardens. The trees grow to a modest size and slow enough to be easily kept under control. You are likely to find the best known of our Coast fruits available in "dwarfs."

Dwarf trees are often formed into "espaliers" against sunny walls and fences. The fruit thrives in the reflected heat from its background and dresses up the garden in summer and fall. The crops of spring flowers are striking additions to your garden.

THERE IS ANOTHER method of planting your home orchard to consider — the three - in - one system. Three standard size fruit trees are planted in one hole. Varieties are chosen for their sequence of ripening and the same kinds of fruits are used, just as on the combination tree.

When you choose this system, ask your nurseryman to prune them so each tree is headed in one direction. The "blank" sides are then faced toward each other when set in the planting hole.



LANDCAPE ARCHITECT Henry Cole designed this pool to go with the angular patio site. The long pointed end in right foreground provides a large, shallow area for steps and a place for non-swimmers to play. Landscape contractor was Cagwin and Dorward. Pool was built by Mardy.

THE WEEKEND SHOWS

Holiday Music To Fill The Air As Television Heralds Season

There will be a strong holiday flavor to the television viewing this Christmas weekend with music predominating.

Among the unusual and worthwhile shows will be:

SATURDAY: The children of Champagne Music Makers will be guests of Lawrence Welk for the maestro's traditional Christmas celebration. Seventy youngsters, all under 12, will appear in the opening number. Twelve members of the Lennon Family sing another (KGO, 8:30 p.m.).

"The Jo Stafford Christmas Show," filmed in England, with guests Harry Secombe, the George Mitchell Singers, the Lionel Blair Dancers and the famed Westminster Abbey Boys Choir, will be repeated. Jo's two children, Amy and Tim Weston, also take part (KTVU, 7 p.m.).

An operatic version of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" is a British Broadcasting Co. production (KGO, 5:30 p.m.).

There Are Many Festive Plants That Enjoy The Indoors

Bring a gaily blooming azalea plant into any room and that room takes on an instant "party look." The same thing happens with potted chrysanthemums, poinsettias or cyclamen.

They're naturally festive plants.

AFRICAN VIOLETS, with their dainty, ruffled flowers sitting primly above neat, low mounds of leaves, create a charming, spring-like mood. Foliage plants such as Dieffenbachia, Zebra Plant, Norfolk Island Pine, or glamorous little palms bring the outdoors in and make spectacular party props as well as family "pets."

There are dozens of decorative plants that enjoy life indoors, and caring for them there is easy if you follow a few simple rules.

Just remember that conditions that are comfortable for people are also healthful for most plants. No plant likes temperatures any warmer than we do; a few like cyclamen like it a bit cooler; and African Violets can live in the same room with people who enjoy a cozy 72 degrees. A drop of 10 degrees in temperatures at night is ideal.

PLANTS NEED light in the daytime, just as people do, but most of them don't enjoy baking in a sunny window. Poinsettias are an exception to this, as they are happy in the direct sun and want to be kept out of drafts.

An azalea, on the other hand, will keep blooming a long time if you give it plenty of daylight but no direct sun.

A dark spot that needs brightening is ideal for many foliage plants such as ferns because they don't much need light to look their best.

House plants get thirstier than the ones outdoors and must be watered regularly. How much watering they should have depends on the individual variety. Dieffenbachia, for instance, should be allowed to dry out between waterings, whereas azaleas, chrysanthemums, and cyclamen should be kept constantly moist. But no matter how much water your house plant likes, don't let excessive water stand around in the saucer underneath.

Giving a house plant an occasional shower bath under the spray at the kitchen sink will clean dust from the foliage and provide a pleasant interval of humidity.

Nurseries have complete selections of the best indoor plants at this time of the year, so make your selection according to your taste and then ask your nurseryman about the specific preferences of your particular plants.

The New Bareroot Fruit Trees Will Be Arriving Soon

"No matter how large, or how small the garden, there are fruit trees tailored to size," says the California Assn. of Nurserymen. It will soon be time to take action.

There are standard fruit trees used by California orchardists, easily adapted to the fairly large backyard, dwarf fruit trees for small gardens and for espalliering against walls and fences and combination trees with three or more varieties of the same kind of fruits on one tree.

ABOUT THE first week in January, your nurseryman will probably be receiving stocks of fruit trees from specialist growers. He chooses only those varieties likely to grow well and produce satisfactory crops in your locality.

Some kinds may be in short supply (because of their restricted demand), so it is a good idea to make your selection while his stock is complete.

This is the season for bareroot planting, a handy way to buy, and a handy way to plant. No containers are involved, so precautions must be taken to keep the roots from drying out.

If you can't plant right away, dig a trench large enough to accommodate the roots, set in the trees, backfill with soil, water well and they are all set to keep until you are ready to plant.

ONLY THE LARGEST of the young bareroot orchard trees are selected by the nurseryman for home planting. They are quick to make up into a producing tree. Early planting gives them the chance to put on extra growth during their first season in the garden.

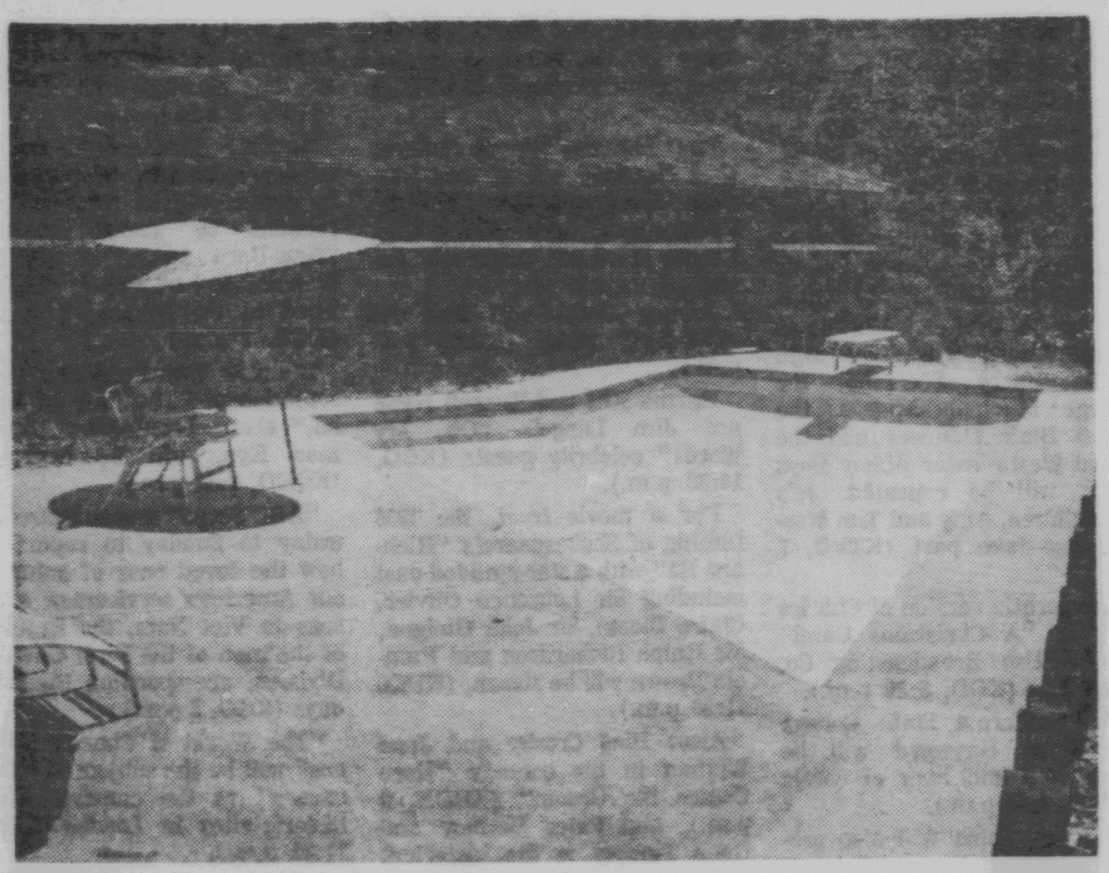
Pruning trees for planting requires experience, so the job is best left to the nurseryman from whom you make your purchase. Don't quail at the sight of the operation—a drastic one—it is all for the good of the future of your trees.

The dwarf fruit tree is a big boon to the owners of "handkerchief size" gardens. The trees grow to a modest size and slow enough to be easily kept under control. You are likely to find the best known of our Coast fruits available in "dwarfs."

Dwarf trees are often formed into "espaliers" against sunny walls and fences. The fruit thrives in the reflected heat from its background and dresses up the garden in summer and fall. The crops of spring flowers are striking additions to your garden.

THERE IS ANOTHER method of planting your home orchard to consider — the three - in - one system. Three standard size fruit trees are planted in one hole. Varieties are chosen for their sequence of ripening and the same kinds of fruits are used, just as on the combination tree.

When you choose this system, ask your nurseryman to prune them so each tree is headed in one direction. The "blank" sides are then faced toward each other when set in the planting hole.



LANDCAPE ARCHITECT Henry Cole designed this pool to go with the angular patio site. The long pointed end in right foreground provides a large, shallow area for steps and a place for non-swimmers to play. Landscape contractor was Cagwin and Dorward. Pool was built by Mardy.

Return Of Viet Nam Veteran Gladdens Marin Family

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Home is the soldier from Viet Nam, just in time for Christmas.

Army Sp4 Richard C. Tremelling arrived home in Mill Valley yesterday from always hot, always tense Viet Nam. He plans to spend a "quiet Christmas" with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Tremelling, and twin brother, Robert, at their home at 350 Corte Madera Avenue.

Robert is on vacation from California State Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo, where he is a student.

During the holidays and on his 30-day leave, Richard plans to visit other buddies, also home from the military service. They include David Howard of Chicago, who is stationed at Hamilton Air Force Base; Dan Kelly of Mill Valley, who is in the Navy, and Paul Deutch of Sausalito, who is in the Army.

Tremelling's mother is very joyous about the homecoming. "It's the most blessed Christmas I ever hope to have," said she today. "Well, you can imagine . . . Christmas once again for us."

Tremelling said it's great to be home, "but it is kind of hard to adjust. . . .

"You can drive a car and go out on a date. You're used to being around all GIs. Your language isn't too good. Then, there's the cold air here."

Tremelling, who is 19, said he was assigned to training American troops in the Hue Phubai area. "That is 420 miles north of Saigon, 30 miles South of North Viet Nam and 15 miles west of Laos," he said. "And it's five miles from the Ho Chi Minh supply trail." (Ho is the North Vietnamese leader.)

Tremelling said he taught Americans how to use weapons including machine guns, and went out on patrol once in a while.

"The climate in Viet Nam varies from hot and wet to hot and dry," said the soldier, who smoked cigarettes one after another. "It never got cold. It's the rainy season now."

Tremelling was graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1964 and worked for awhile at Safeway store in Mill Valley. He volunteered for military duty. Both parents are teachers, Tremelling at San Quentin prison and Mrs. Tremelling at Alto School, Mill Valley.

"I lived like an animal," declared Tremelling. "We lived in tents about 70 per cent of the time. When we weren't in the field, we lived in French buildings left from when the French occupied the country.

"You never completely relax in the country because you don't know who's who. You don't know if a Vietnamese is a VC (Viet Cong) or an ARVN (Army Republic of Viet Nam). A guy could work with you in the daytime and kill you in the night time."

In Viet Nam, said the youth, he might be up 20 or 22 hours a day and then get two hours sleep. "You don't have weeks and days like in the states. It's a 24-hour a day job."

Tremelling went twice to Saigon for what he calls "R and R."

"Rest and recuperation," he explained and added, "Believe me, you need it."

"I would like to express my appreciation for all the people who sent us packages over there," he said. "The day before I left 800 packages arrived. One for every man in the compound. Most were from Ohio and Indiana."

Tremelling spoke against the demonstrators in the United States, of his 11 months in Viet Nam, he said: "I grew up some. I got a better outlook. You meet different kinds of people. It's good experience, something to remember all your life."

He's glad it's only a memory now. After his leave, he will go to Fort Ord to train troops coming into the Army.

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS — Just back from Viet Nam for a Merry Christmas in Mill Valley, Army Sp4 Richard C. Tremelling guesses what's inside the packages placed under the tree by his mother, Mrs. Robert N. Tremelling. Tremelling said service in Viet Nam was "good experience." His mother said, "He's changed."

SAIGON REJOICES AS TRUCE STARTS

Allied Commanders Warily Wait For End Of Viet Cong's Shorter Cease-Fire Plan

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — A Christmas Eve truce declared by both the allied armed forces and the insurgent Communist Viet Cong appeared tonight to have stilled the guns, the terror and the slaughter that has tortured South Viet Nam for years.

The American-South Vietnamese decision to stop all offensive action for 30 hours went into effect at 6 p.m. (2 a.m. PST) and the Viet Cong seemed to have been faithful to their announced promise of a 12-hour truce as of 7 p.m.

The cease-fire in the embattled country turned at least some of it back to the little people. Most noticeable was the reaction in Saigon, the capital. The streets were a mass of humanity.

People who have not been on these streets perhaps for months were out in force with their children.

The three million population of Saigon strode out in confidence as though all of them had heard directly about the truce. The thousands of Americans in Saigon were, on the other hand, confined to their billets until dawn Christmas day under a curfew imposed Dec. 18. The curfew will be lifted tomorrow.

The atmosphere was electric, but loaded with a sense of relief.

From the jungles and the outpost, reports filtering into Saigon indicated that the ceasefire was just that. From An Khe, where the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division is deployed, Associated Press Correspondent Bob Poos reported "all's quiet."

From Da Nang on the northern coast where the Marines are based in strength, the word was of holiday feasting—turkey or baked Virginia ham after shrimp cocktails and winding up with mince or pumpkin pie.

The Communist Viet Cong announced three times on their radio today that they would undertake no offensive action or acts of terrorism from Christmas Eve, one hour after the Allied cease-fire started, until 7 a.m. Saturday, 17 hours before the U.S.-South Vietnamese truce period ends.

The Viet Cong had offered their 12-hour truce in a broadcast Dec. 7. The Americans and the South Vietnamese countered with their longer cease-fire order earlier this week.

It remained to be seen if the truce worked. But around the world there were expressions of hope that it would be extended after Christmas and would pave the way to peace negotiations.

All American and Allied units were on the alert and had orders to react sharply in self defense. The American cease-fire

Hometowners Sing Carols For Johnsons

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, still ploughing through accumulated paper work, was ready to open Christmas gifts with his family tonight.

Traditionally, the Johnsons set aside Christmas Eve to open gifts exchanged within the family. None of the gifts was announced in advance.

The President, his wife and two daughters actually got off to a running start on the holiday, driving last night to his renovated boyhood home here, 15 miles east of the LBJ ranch, to hear Christmas carols sung by the combined choirs of the town's three churches—First Christian, Methodist and Baptist.

Except for the chief executive, the family did better than listen. Wife Lady Bird sang heartily throughout the occasion—as she sat beside her husband on a wicker porch swing at the 19th century dwelling—and daughters Lynda, 21, and Luci, 18, joined the choirs before the serenade was over.

Johnson, dressed very conservatively and looking a bit dour upon arrival, warmed at the sight of his neighbors—more than 50 strong—assembled to greet him with traditional Christmas tunes.

Before the after-dark affair was over, he hoisted in his arms the 11-month-old daughter of the choral director and, though she tweaked his nose—or perhaps because of that, made believe

Oregon Bus Wreck Kills 12, Hurts 30

Icy Highway Is Pre-Dawn Death Trap

ROGUE RIVER, Ore. —Twelve persons were killed and an estimated 30 were hurt early today when a Greyhound bus full of holiday travelers skidded off icy Interstate Highway 5, plunged down an embankment and overturned.

Nine were killed outright and three died later in a hospital.

The Spokane-to-San Francisco bus was southbound through a cold rain when it left the road between Rogue River and Medford in southern Oregon shortly after midnight. It wound up 50 feet from the road upside down.

When police arrived on the scene, they found nine bodies, including the corpse of one woman pinned beneath the vehicle.

Robber Walloped In Theft Of $641

A 27-year-old shoe store owner, robbed last night of $641, walloped one of two bandits with a tire iron after they attempted to cut him with a razor "just for the hell of it."

Frank Salvadore Lucchesi, owner and operator of Frank's Shoes at 120 Town and Country Village, Strawberry, said he believed he broke the man's shoulder with the blow. Both robbers fled without injuring him.

Lucchesi told sheriff's officers he closed the shop and was alone counting change about 9:20 p.m. yesterday when the pair rapped on the door.

Thinking they wanted to purchase shoes, he admitted them. One went to the store's rear to look at a rack of shoes, Lucchesi returned to his cash register. He looked up at a demand for money to find "a small, dark gun" pointed at him, he told deputies.

Lucchesi said he handed over $487 cash and checks totaling $154, but the gunman then said, "Let's cut him (victim) just for the hell of it."

The second man drew a razor and leaned over the counter, Lucchesi grabbed the iron, kept under the counter, and slammed it down onto the razor holder's left shoulder.

"They grabbed each other and went off," he said.

The robbers left in a blue convertible driven by a third person. Left behind on the counter in the confusion, he said, were about 15 additional checks.

Lucchesi, said both robbers appeared to be under the influence of narcotics. He described them as in their early 20s, of medium height, wearing sports coats and slacks.

Supervisors May Reopen Hiring Issue

Hiring of John Martin Douglas of San Rafael to the $15,600 per year post of director of promotion and development may be reconsidered by the county supervisors.

"I may ask that the whole matter be reviewed on Jan. 4," declared Supervisor Thomas T. Storer today. He said he was completely unaware when he voted on Tuesday that Douglas is a neighbor of Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker.

"I found it very distasteful to learn through the Independent-Journal that I had voted affirmatively to appoint an immediate neighbor of a fellow supervisor," said Storer. "Mr. Leydecker, in my opinion, had an absolute duty to disclose this relationship."

Storer said that among the four finalists for the position, Douglas was the only one who requested the $15,600 salary.

Church Buys Brazil Ranch Site Sought For State Park

The 2,200-acre Brazil Ranch in southern Marin has been sold to a Los Angeles-based church denomination which was apparently unaware of mounting plans —both on the county and state level—to turn it into a park.

Leonard Kaufman of Beverly Hills, attorney for the First Christian Church of America, said he will come to Marin next week to attend the closing of the sale, escrow for which is expected to be closed in a few days. Kaufman said he hopes meantime to learn more about plans for the acreage.

The church is buying the property from a group including John Fell Stevenson of San Francisco, son of the late ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai E. Stevenson.

Marin County supervisors two weeks ago asked Nature Conservancy, a conservation group, to sponsor a nationwide drive for funds to buy the property "such as the Brazil Ranch" to create a memorial park for the senior Stevenson.

Yule Rain Forecast

Marin County got ready for a wet Christmas.

After staying away for two weeks, the rain came back unexpectedly in the early morning, leaving as much as .47 of an inch in some parts of the county by mid-morning.

The Weather Bureau predicted it would continue through Christmas Day.

The wet stuff may have dampened the spirits of some holiday celebrants, but it meant an end to the cold spell which had brought freezing night temperatures throughout the county most of this week.

Woodacre reported the most rain in the county up to 8 a.m., .25 of an inch. Low temperature there, meanwhile, was 36 degrees, compared with 20 yesterday.

Rain started at 4 a.m. in San Rafael and left .47 of an inch

Fire Kills Eight In New Jersey

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) —A "suspicious" Christmas Eve fire raced through a third-floor apartment early today, killing eight persons, six of them in one family.

The flash fire snuffed out three generations of one family. Twenty other persons were forced out into 35-degree temperatures.

Firemen were hampered by two other blazes which broke out in the immediate neighborhood shortly after the first fire was reported.

The first report came at 2:10 a.m. EST.

The Newark Fire Department Arson Squad headed by Capt. Joseph O'Brien began an immediate investigation.

"This is a suspicious fire," O'Brien said. "We're investigating the definite possibility of arson."

The dead were identified as Mrs. Gracie Basile, 50; her sons, Thomas, 19, Victor, 21, and Ralph, 23; his infant son, and a daughter of Mrs. Basile's, Margaret, 16. Also killed in the fire were Mrs. Marie Melinda, 23, an expectant mother, and her brother, Felix Fernandez, 21.

Firemen reported all of the bodies were found on the top floor of the three-floor frame building.

At least a score of residents of the frame apartment building escaped.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

One Of Most Wanted Captured

BOSTON (UPI) — Bank robber James Edward Kennedy, one of the FBI's 10 most wanted, was captured at Worcester, Mass., last night after a wild car duel and close-range gunfight.

Kennedy

Kennedy, 28, and a companion, Paul V. Davis, 26, of Worcester, surrendered after Kennedy's arm was nicked in the battle with the FBI and Worcester police. Both men were brought to Boston for arraignment today.

Kennedy, who escaped from the Cuyahoga County Jail in Cleveland last year, was the second of the FBI's most wanted men to be captured Thursday. Allen Wade Haugsted, 34, a baker sought in the killings of his wife and mother-in-law, was arrested by the FBI in Houston, Tex.

Kennedy was serving a 20-year term in the Marion, Ill., Federal Penitentiary in November 1964 when he was taken to the Cuyahoga County Jail for trial on another charge. On Nov. 10, he and four other inmates sawed their way through the bars, then slid four stories to the ground on ropes made of bedsheets.

Better Christmas For Amputee

VAN NUYS (AP)—Ronnie Baker wasn't making any plans last Christmas. This year he is.

Last December doctors told Ronnie he'd die if they didn't amputate his cancerous left leg. Rather than face the operation, Ronnie, 16, ran away from home.

Ronnie

He got as far as Flagstaff, Ariz., changed his mind, came home, and, last New Year's Eve, underwent the operation.

It was a success. Ronnie, fitted with a prosthetic leg, can walk, climb stairs, drive a car, and hold a part-time job as a painter. He has gained 30 pounds since his operation.

Doctors feel sure they eradicated all the cancer when they amputated Ronnie's leg above the knee, although they say it'll be years before they're positive. Ronnie undergoes periodic checks at a clinic.

Rhodesia Hits Back

SALISBURY (UPI) — The Rhodesian government put into effect today economic sanctions of its own against Britain. Telegraph rates were increased and British airlines were refused refueling rights. MOCKERS SHAMED

Coptic Writing Tells Of Jesus, Last Day

CHICAGO (AP)—Jesus Christ will bring His cross to the last judgment to reveal the shame of those who mocked Him and spit upon Him during his crucifixion, says an ancient Coptic prayer book discovered in Egypt.

The University of Chicago's Oriental Institute found the manuscript last month in a monk's cell of an abandoned Coptic monastery near the border of the Sudan, the university announced yesterday.

Written in the Coptic language, the book relates a dialogue between Christ and the apostle Peter on the Mount of Olives, four days before Christ's ascension to heaven.

Peter asks Christ to explain why He will bring the cross with Him on the day of Judgment.

'O my chosen one, Peter," Christ replies, "and you, my brethren (the apostles), you know the lies which were told against me on the cross, and the spitting at me. . .and the great contempt which was spoken against me. This is why I will bring the cross with Me, so that I may reveal their shame and shall put their sin upon their heads."

The university said the prayer book has two parts, and that in the second part Christ recites this hymn:

"Rise up, rise up, O holy cross,

"And lift Me O cross,

"I shall mount upon you, O cross,

"They shall hang me upon you as a witness to them.

"Receive Me to yourself, O cross.

"Amen.

"Do not weep, O cross

"But be joyful, O cross

"Amen.

"I have put on the crown of the kingdom. . ."

The waters of the Nile River, rising behind the new dam at Aswan, might soon have swept down on the old monastery and destroyed the thousand-year-old manuscript, reported George Scanlon of the Oriental Institute.

In making the announcement of the finding, the university said the prayer book apparently records an unpublished story from the oral history of Christianity. The Copts, early Christians, trace their roots to about 100 A.D.

West Half Of Nation Hit By Windy Snows And Rain

WEATHER
By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stormy, wet weather, with snow, rain and gusty winds, whipped across broad areas in the Western half of the nation today.

The pre-Christmas storm left heavy snow coverings in sections of the Rockies, in the northern Midwest and parts of Oklahoma. Colder air swept into snow-covered regions and temperatures dropped to below zero in parts of Montana, Idaho, Utah and Nevada.

The Weather Bureau reported a major winter storm which developed in the Oklahoma-Texas-northeastern New Mexico region spread northeastward into sections of Kansas and Nebraska. Heavy snow fell in Guymon, Okla., and strong winds caused much drifting. Visibility was reported near zero in parts of Cimarron County, Okla., Thursday night.

Snow or rain fell in most of the nation's midsection, the white covering in Northern areas and rain southward to the southern Plains and the Mississippi Valley.

Snow tapered off in Arizona where amounts on the ground measured 17 inches at Flagstaff. But snow continued in parts of New Mexico, Wyoming, Colorado, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Wisconsin and Iowa.

Rain-swollen rivers and melting snows from mountain areas sent floodwaters across sections of Arizona, forcing hundreds of persons from their homes. The swollen streams raced through a mining area of eastern Arizona, isolating the town of Kilvin.

Hazardous - driving warnings were in effect from New Mexico to Kansas and Nebraska because of glaze and snow-covered highways.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—American television viewers are flooding the U.N. with inquiries about U.N.C.L.E. They think it's the espionage arm of the United Nations, and they want to enlist.

In recent months, the U.N.'s General Services Division has been deluged with letters and telephone calls from fans of the popular NBC program "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."

"It's the U.N. in the title that gets them," said Maurice Liu, director of the division. "And when they hear that bit of hokum that the show would not have been possible without the help of U.N.C.L.E., they are sure we are tied up with it."

MANY TEEN-AGERS

Napoleon Solo and Illya Kuriakin work for the U.N. Command for Law and Enforcement, but the U.N. stands for United Network, not United Nations.

"Most of the applications come from teen-agers," said Liu, "but there are some adults, too, and they are the hardest to convince that we are not running a spy ring.

"One guy was so intent on becoming a secret agent that we finally suggested that he get in touch with Interpol," the International Police organization. "I don't know what they told him."

The queries comes in from all over the country.

One youthful applicant from Silver City, N.C., asked if he could join the spy ranks before he was 21. He wanted to know the location of the U.N.C.L.E. branch nearest his hometown.

PHONE CALLS

"We get phone calls also," said Miss Alice V. R. Smith, chief of the public inquiries unit. "Most of them sound like youngsters, but occasionally a voice comes through that is unmistakably adult."

Liu and Miss Smith, working on the assumption that the applicants are sincere, send a courteous reply expressing regret that the United Nations is not acquainted with the activities of U.N.C.L.E. They usually add a discreet suggestion that the inquirer pursue the matter with NBC.

Several days ago the General Services Division got a Christmas card from a female admirer in St. Louis, Mo. It was addressed to the staff of U.N.C.L.E. and ended, "With love to Illya and Napoleon."

The U.N. staff has not decided whether to send holiday greetings in return.

Top Hells' Angel Happy That Russ Being Critical

OAKLAND (UPI)—The president of the Hells Angels' Oakland chapter says he is proud to hear that his motorcycle club was criticized by a Russian Communist youth newspaper.

The newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda called the club the "new SS troop" of the United States, and said the group was the tool of "the smelly bouquet" of reactionary groups in California.

"We're glad they don't appreciate us, because we don't appreciate them," was the comment of Ralph "Sonny' Baker yesterday.

"If they're saying bad things about us, then we must be doing the right thing."

Malaria Warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Malaria—widely prevalent among U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam—may also be a danger to American civilians, says the Army surgeon general. Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton said he has asked the American Medical Association to publish an article warning civilian doctors of the possibility that discharged troops may be spreading the disease.

GRAPE PICKER PICKETS IN SAN RAFAEL

Marin Friends of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee picketed late yesterday in front of Paul's Liquors on Tamalpais Avenus in San Rafael—not against the store but against Schenley Distillers, owners of vineyards near Delano against which unionized grape pickers are striking. Paul's, local distributor for Schenley, removed Schenley wine brands from the shelves in deference to the protest. Carrying the signs are (from left) Archibald D. CHRISTMAS IN VIET NAM

Star Shines On A Mountain Top; Coffins Silence Airport Throng

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Americans brought a little bit of home and a little bit of Christmas to war zones in Viet Nam today. But it was difficult. America's fighting men celebrated with a turkey leg in one hand and a rifle at the ready in the other. Instead of the snow and crisp cold of the United States, they had a tropical sun and dirt and dust. . . . and death. United Press International correspondents spread throughout the country to spend Christmas with the GI's. Here is their team report.)

U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The airport terminal at Da Nang was jammed. And it was noisy. In the crowd of Marines waiting to fly to Saigon, a couple of dozen transistor radios blared Christmas carols.

"Merry Christmas, lardhead," one beefy sergeant yelled.

"And a slap-happy one to you, too," his buddy yelled back. Both were full of cheer.

Just, then, five vans drove up to the terminal. Quickly, efficiently, almost deliberately, the men in the trucks got out, walked briskly around back and opened the doors.

"What's that?" one of the celebrating servicemen asked.

He pointed at the first of the pine boxes being taken from the vans and stacked on the airport runway in the blazing sun. The boxes were waiting for the plane, too.

The Americans in the terminal turned and looked at the boxes, 25 of them in all. One by one, the Marines clicked off the radios, and the Christmas music died in the building. The happy din of holiday travelers jabbering about celebrations to come lapsed into silence.

Elsewhere around the country, the grimness of the war was being shucked off for a few hours, or for a day. Some military men celebrated Christmas today because they will be on duty tomorrow in defensive the Viet Cong pulls a double-cross and violates its announced 12-hour cease fire from 7 p.m. Christmas Eve until 7 a.m. Christmas Day. The Americans and South Vietnamese have pledged not to fire except in self defense for 30 hours starting at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Hundreds of thousands of cards and letters were read by soldiers in the field, from families and friends and from people who just wrote to "My friend, a soldier in Viet Nam."

Like the one from George W. Mullins, a 6th grade student at St. Mary's Mission parochial school, Balboa, Canal Zone. It was sent to a sailor in the 7th fleet.

"I hope you have a chance to have a very happy Christmas and a happy new year and a very good Christmas dinner," George wrote.

"We here in the Canal Zone sure appreciate what you and the rest of the fellows are doing for ous (sic) over there.

"You should know Garry Jones, who is in the Navy over there too. Please tell him to send me a letter . . . I would be verry (sic) happy to hear from you and write you some more. Joke: What's round and high in the middle. It is Ohio. Please send the name of your ship. Good luck, George Mullins III."

Hundreds of thousands of letters like this were sent to the servicemen in Viet Nam.

The flood of mail has made things difficult for Sgt. Jacob H. Deavors, 55, of Pixley, California. He is superintendent of Detachment 19 of the Ninth Aero Post Office in Saigon.

"My guys have been working from early morning until late at night," he said. "People just hand us a sandwich. The mail is still stacked up, and we'll be sorting it and sending it out all night, I guess. We've handled literally thousands of letters and packages in the past few days."

Throughout the land, Marines, airmen, soldiers and in some cases sailors shared their Christmas with the Vietnamese. In almost every section of the country, American units have adopted nearby orphanages.

In Vung Tau, for instance, members of three U.S. Army air mobile companies, the 73rd, 61st and 54th Aviation Companies, made a merry-go-round out an Army helicopter shaft and gave it to the orphanage run by Sister Camille, 75, the mother superior of Bethenie Institute.

Then about 50 of the men went to the school with cookies and cakes and candy and gave the kids a party. They sang songs and danced.

"They're great," said one of the American sergeants. "You just want to pick them up and carry them home."

One of the more unusual yuletide displays in Viet Nam is on a mountaintop. To the west of the U.S. Army's First Air Calvary Division camp at An Khe is a high jungle-covered hill called Hon Cong Mountain.

The cavalrymen cut the top off and set in a helipad for an observation post. It gave the men of the Eighth Engineer Battalion an idea. They constructed a huge 12-foot diameter star, studded it with lights and lowered it in place with a giant Chinook helicopter.

Last night the star blazed from the hilltop like a star on the top of a giant Christmas tree. Loudspeakers wafted Christmas carols throughout the sprawling tent city compound in the highlands where the 15,000 men of the division live.

Actual Christmas trees are impossible to find in Viet Nam.

Lt. Joseph Beeman of Philadelphia, Pa., wrote home several weeks ago and told his father, Archibald Beeman, about it.

So his father wrapped up a 12-foot high Canadian spruce and air-mailed it. The postage came to $174. But it was flown around the world and once in Viet Nam the Red Cross helped get it to the cavalry officer still alive and fresh. It has been set up in the Officers Club of the Second Battalion, 12th Cavalry.

Havana Using Women Police

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Traffic violators will not only have to contend with women traffic cops in Havana, but apparently with well prepared ones at that.

According to Havana radio last night, a group of 170 women received diplomas as traffic cops after six months of training.

The training, according to the broadcast monitored here, specialized in traffic problems, practice police work, criminology, socialist law, gymnastics, and army infantry tactics.

$1,000 Gone From Hub Gas Station

More than $1,000 vanished from the safe of the Terrible Herbst gasoline station at 400 Red Hill Avenue, San Anselmo, John H. Kerley of Bakersfield, manager of the Terrible Herbst chain of service stations, reported to San Anselmo police yesterday.

Kerley told police he was called to the station Wednesday by a gasoline truck driver who arrived and found the station locked. Kerley said he broke in through a back window and found the office safe open and empty.

Temporary manager of the station, Charles K. Thompson of 1364 Grand Avenue, Apt. 7, San Rafael, told police he locked his keys in the station the night before and did not open it Wednesday because he had no extra kay.

Police found no sign of forced entry except where Kerley said he let himself in. Readings of the station pumps indicated receipts of $1,082.08 should be in the safe, police said.

Commission voted to urge the state legislature to set aside $4 million to buy the ranch and nearby properites for a state park.

Until these facts became public, Kaufman said, the church trustees had planned a study on the best use of the land. He said the church has "wide humanitarian objectives and would probably be very sympathetic" to the state and county plans, but trustees have not had the chance to discuss them yet.

Kaufman said the First Christian Church is not connected with the Unitarian-Universalist Church of which Adlai Stevenson was a member.

The group headed by John Fell Stevenson bought the land from Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Brazil last year for $1.9 million.

Prison Inmates Will Cheer Sick Children With Gifts

Stone walls cannot imprison the Christmas spirit.

A very sick little girl in Hayward and 27 children in San Francisco General Hospital will have evidence of that tomorrow morning.

Among their gifts will be toys and other hand-crafted products made wiithin the walls of San Quentin by the inmates.

Twenty-seven model cars, made by inmates who belong to a model car club within the prison, will be taken by a volunteer this evening to San Francisco General Hospital, to be distributed to children there.

An employee will haul a variety of prison-made toys and handcraft products to Hayward for the Christmas of 7-year-old Laurie Ramirez.

Both projects were the inmates' own ideas.

The project to provide Christmas gifts for Laurie was started three months ago by a dozen prisoners who belong to a religious discussion group. They were told the girl was incurably ill, and vowed to brighten her last Christmas.

Their own Christmas was brightened yesterday with word that Laurie's illness has been diagnosed and she can be cured.

That, according to Associate Warden James W. Park, spurred the prisoners to greater efforts for the Hayward girl.

"They were even more dedicated to the project when they learned that Laurie would have an opportunity to live and enjoy their gifts," he said.

The drab prison cells will be a little brighter tomorrow with the glow of the spirit of Christmas giving.

Grants Pass, Medford and Ashland took the injured to hospitals in surrounding communities. Private cars and taxis helped out.

A spokesman at the Rogue Valley Memorial Hospital reported that 18 to 20 injured had arrived from the crash. The Sacred Heart Hospital in Medford and the Josephine General at Grants Pass reported 11 more injured.

Among the injured at Sacred Heart was driver Joseph Bailey of Battleground, Wash. The extent of his injuries were not revealed, pending X-ray.

Police said the accident was the worst of a chain of some 40 mishaps that occurred on the "black ice," created when rain falls and partially freezes on the highway.

State Patrol Officer Charles Conway said that when he arrived shortly before 1 a.m. "injured were lying in the bus, outside the bus and on the highway. Ambulances were taking them away as fast as they could."

"The civil defense had set up a spotlight and the beam cut through the rain. This was really a nasty one—the worst traffic accident I ever saw. In fact, it looked more like a plane crash."

Bailey told state police he was traveling about 45 miles per hour when, without warning, the bus began to skid. He attempted to correct the skid, he said, but the steering did not respond, then the bus went off the highway and rolled over.

Here is the list of the dead on the bus:

Mrs. Lynton C. Spink, Longview, Wash.

Donald McGrath, Astoria, Ore.

Alfred C. Villagomez, Daly City, Calif.

Albert A. Lewis, Rolling Hills, Calif.

Sharon Lee Barton, St. Helens, Ore.

Albert P. James, San Francisco.

Jerry Dimbat, 17, 611 Meadow Lane, Concord, Calif

Five unidentified women.

The injured include the following Californians:

Orville John, 9695 El Camino Real, Atascadero, treated and released.

Robert Moore, 21, 3420 Duke St., Claremont, a Coastguardman, fair condition at Josephine General Hospital, Grants Pass.

Charles Marloe, Oroville, treated and released.

Robin Cox, 1735 Vinet St., Berkeley, satisfactory condition at Rogue Valley Hospital, Medford.

Two Residents Report Thefts

Two residents of an apartment house at 21 First Avenue, Corte Madera, complained to police yesterday that someone entered their rooms, taking $75 from one and a $14 traveling case from the other.

Both James C. Warren, who lost the money, and John M. Williams said the thefts occurred sometime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

was confined only to a prohibition against initiating any new offensive actions. Disengagements from conflict or defense against any obvious threat were clearly within the discretion of field commanders obliged to protect and preserve their men.

All branches of the Allied forces were keyed up, however, to observe what happens at the end of the Viet Cong moratorium while the American truce still was to be in effect for another 17 hours.

U.S. officials in Washington expected the truce to hold for the first 12 hours. They hoped the Communists would prolong it until Christmas midnight. But they believed the war would resume in full violence after that.

Thief Erases Merry Christmas

A burglar yesterday took the spirit out of Christmas for a San Rafael resident.

He entered the home of Sharon Ann Ramerino at 25A Warner Court, and removed all the Christmas presents from under the tree.

Taken, according to San Rafael police, were an $85 handknitted Italian sweater, four pairs of slacks worth $40, two decanters of wine, and gifts, now unknown, from friends left under the tree.

Police said the thief entered between 2:30 and 11:30 p.m., but added there was no sign a door or window had been forced open.

he was going to carry her away in his waiting sedan.

But the 5-year-old sister of the infant didn't like this idea and she chased after the President, tugging at his trouser leg.

"If that's the way you feel about it..." exclaimed Johnson with mock seriousness, then handed the baby back to the mother, the wife of the Rev. Carl Taylor, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Nearly one in every six inhabitants of Johnson City—population 611—was on hand for the occasion.

When the singers had completed their concert, the Johnsons heard the Rev. Mr. Taylor announce:

"Merry Christmas to the presidential family from all of us in Johnson City."

Mrs. Johnson rose from the porch swing and, clapping her hands, said: "Oh, we thank you. That was so lovely."

Within minutes, Mrs. Johnson announced that hot chocolate and cookies would be served to everyone. Luci began pouring the chocolate and the First Lady made her way through the group with cookie trays. Lynda passed a holiday - decorated wicker basket filled with candies.

Fire In Mail Box Is Believed Set

Fire, believed to have been deliberately set, broke out in a U.S. mail box at Santa Rosa and Bulkley avenues in Sausalito, burning a mail bag inside the box but not damaging three Christmas letters inside the bag.

Sausalito fire chief Charles E. Masten said the fire at 6:35 p.m. yesterday was possibly caused by a cigarette butt. The letters were the only contents of the bag, he said.

Body Found Dead In Parked Car

The body of Gerald Conrad Ellis, 45, a retired technical sergeant from the Air Force who recently moved to Marin from Indiana, was found in his car at 8:51 p.m. yesterday.

The engine was turned on and a hose from the exhaust had been stuck through the left rear window.

The car was parked near the San Rafael Police pistol range at Irene and Madera streets. It was discovered by Edmund Henry of 515 D Street, San Rafael. He called police, who in turn called the fire department for a resuscitator, but Ellis was dead.

In the car with Ellis, who lived at 1306 Leafwood Drive, Apt. 8, Novato, were a note to his wife and a shotgun and shells. The gun had not been recently fired, police said. Ellis' wife, Audrey, told police her husband often became depressed when he drank.

A native of Nebraska, Ellis is survived by his wife; five sons, Paul Ellis of Fort Knox, Ky., and John, Robert, Richard and Bradley Ellis of San Rafael; his mother, Mrs. Christine Ellis of Santa Clara, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Henningsen of Santa Clara.

Funeral arrangements and autopsy were pending today at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

Rear-End Crash Causes Bruises

Elizabeth Stuart, 30, of 6 Magdalena Court, Mill Valley, suffered bruised legs and a cut forehead when the car in which she was a passenger crashed into the rear of another on highway 101 at 2:45 a.m. today, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said her husband, Robert A. Stuart, 33, was southbound, just south of the Corte Madera interchange, when he moved from the middle lane to the slow lane and struck a car driven by Annabelle Bettencourt, 34, of Half Moon Bay, who was backing up. Mrs. Stuart was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Greenbrae Youngster Injured In Collision

Dixon Bradford Giles, 13, of 5 Corte Toluma, Greenbrae, suffered a bruised lip and nose at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday when the bicycle he was riding ran into a car on the entrance road of Greenbrae Lanes, 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said the boy was northbound in the wrong lane when he hit an oncoming car driven by Joseph O. Kenney, 47, of 311 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, and was thrown to the pavement. He was treated by the family physician.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Of King Cotton In San Rafael Story Making Rounds Of Sale

There's a persistent rumor making the rounds that King Cotton, San Rafael, will be taken over by James Bigelow et al of Sam's Anchor Cafe in Tiburon.

All signs point to this as having its basis in fact — at least lease negotiations are in progress as a result of the combined ministrations of C. D. (Cub) Redmond of Redmond Realty and Harry Abras of Timmer Realty. It's possible a meeting of the minds will bring about a reopening of the Francisco Boulevard drive-in by the second week of January.

In this event I'd say you can look for some of Sam's well known dishes to make their appearance at King Cotton — certainly Sam's big hamburger; possibly the eggs Benedict and whatever else chef Woody Frazier decides should go over well in San Rafael. He'll probably supervise the operation.

WE GAVE some holiday activities over Christmas and New Year's last week. More follows today and much of this I have been taking just as it comes in. There are bound to be some omissions, considering how many restaurants there are in the county—but I hope to get those next Friday.

THERE WILL BE plenty of dancing at the Ark in Sausalito New Year's Eve — both upstairs and downstairs. Champagne dinner that night $10 per person with all the usual favors. Gil Cardona will play on the lower deck. Upper deck will have recorded music or switch Gil's group into the stereo system. There's a good dance floor there and separate bar. Reservations advised.

ALIOTO'S ARBORDALE — Open both Christmas and New Year's Eve. Maggie Perkins at the piano.

ONDINE, Sausalito, closed yesterday and will not open again until Monday. Open New Year's Eve; closed New Year's Day and open the following Sunday.

THE SEVEN SEAS in Sausalito, serving lunches and dinners since last February, has expanded its menu lately—thanks to new chef Bill Crofut who grew up in the restaurant business. Paul and Della De Moss will be open here tomorrow for Christmas dinner — also New Year's Eve. Specializes in seafoods — but you can get a New York steak there, too.

EL BORRO, Tiburon—Closed tonight and tomorrow, but open both Sunday and Monday clear through New Year's Eve. Then it closes for an eight-day refurbishing period. New carpet and a few other things. Pedro Salas and his guitar may be there New Year's Eve.

KAPPIE'S in Tiburon is closed for vacation and renovating. Ernest and Rose Kaplan are taking a holiday in the southland and should be ready to reopen about Jan. 12.

I'VE ALREADY MENTIONED the gala New Year's Eve party planned at Tiburon Tommie's Mai Tai ($15 per person for everything, including dinner, libations, favors and dancing). Also open for Christmas dinner tomorrow. Make early reservations for New Year's.

GREGORY'S on Paradise Drive, Corte Madera — Closed tomorrow and Sunday and Monday, but open New Year's Eve with the regular menu. No change in prices.

LONDONER FISH AND CHIPS on Red Hill Avenue, San Anselmo has a service New Year's Eve for stay-at-home parties. Ted Wood will deliver minimum orders of eight or more servings up to 11 p.m. Fish and chips or other specialties. Call for details — the Londoner Fish and Chips on the Miralce Mile—not the restaurant in downtown San Anselmo.

Ted has received his wine and beer license and will now go ahead making arrangements for his pub here, taking over the premises next door. This should be open the 10th or 12th of January.

RUBINI'S in Fairfax is taking reservations for its annual New Year's Eve champagne party, but is closed after tonight until next Wednesday. That popular musical duo Lowell Hawk at the piano and Frank Stitt at the organ will provide the entertainment New Year's.

OAK TREE INN, San Geronimo (formerly De La Montaya's), recently taken over by Dee and Raymond Brunal, will be closed tomorrow—but open New Year's Eve. It's highly likely there will be music.

There's a new chef here — Carlo Givoni. That's an Italian name, but he was raised in France and learned that country's culinary secrets. Watch for new menu innovations.

BILL AND ADOLPH'S WEST END VILLA, San Rafael. Open Christmas and New Year's Eve. Not sure what New Year's entertainment there will be.

THE BLACK FOREST in downtown San Rafael is closing tomorrow and through all of next week, including New Year's. Meta and Bob Kringe are taking a holiday. Open again Monday, Jan. 3.

SHORTLY AFTER the first of the year the Civic Center Coffee Shop will probably start to serve dinners three nights a week — about Jan. 6 or 7. Exact plans are still undetermined, though you may have noticed the improvements here. There will be a new name for the place — Taverna Yasou. Idea is to serve Greek gourmet dinners Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Meanwhile it's still on a daytime schedule. Plans called for it to feature "Greek Fling" champagne cocktails today and next Friday until closing time.

MARIO BRENTA is turning the big banquet room at Dominic's, San Rafael, into a regular night club New Year's Eve.

Price of $17 per couple includes complimentary hors d'oeuvres from 8 to 9 p.m., de luxe dinner and a bottle of wine for every four people. Dancing from 9 to 1 to the music of the five-piece Marin County Rhythmaires. Make arrangements for tickets ahead of time.

LA PETITE AUBERGE, San Rafael, is closed tomorrow through Monday. Open New Year's Eve — but all booked up from 9 p.m. through the midnight hour. Early dinner period closes by 9 p.m. Closed New Year's Day.

LE CHALET BASQUE, Santa Venetia — open tomorrow and Sunday as usual. Closed Monday. Open New Year's Eve, New Year's Day and Sunday. Regular dinner menu.

SAN RAFAEL JOE'S is open tonight and definitely will be open New Year's Eve, with Jean Denning at the organ and other entertainment, but Hector and Nancy Rubini and Guido and Teresa Farina and staff will get four holidays this season. Closing tomorrow and Sunday and also Saturday and Sunday next weekend.

NERO'S ROOM, Ignacio, will have its regular New Year's Eve affair with Frank Kelly and group playing for dancing in the atrium and champagne dinner from 9 p.m. (Make reservations.) Regular menu before 8:30. Closed tomorrow but open Sunday and New Year's Day and the following Sunday.

CLOUD 5, Novato — closed tomorrow and Sunday, but open New Year's Eve when activities center in the Cloud Room upstairs. Dance music furnished by Ruth Overly at the organ and Don Flash on drums. Probably closed New Year's Day — the restaurant, anyway.

THE HILLTOP, Novato, is closed tonight and tomorrow. New Year's Eve there's a champagne dinner from 9 p.m. Regular menu served up to that time. Dancing from 9 p.m.

About Feb. 5, the Hilltop will close its food facilities, do some remodeling and make this strictly a music, dance and cocktail place on weekends with live music, utilizing the large dining area.

THE LODGE, Novato, is closed tomorrow except for the coffee shop (open about six hours). Big plans for New Year's Eve.

Tino Granucci's Orchestra will play in the upstairs banquet room where steak and champagne dinners will be served from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. with all the favors. Regular menu will be served downstairs and music will be furnished here by Gordon Tucker and a new organ should be installed by then — and Von Marchand at the piano. Von plays regularly Wednesday and Thursday nights and Sundays from 4 p.m. Gordon usually plays the rest of the week.

SPIROS' RED VEST, Novato —closed tomorrow and Sunday and possibly Saturday and Sunday of next week. Sometime between these closings you should drop by for a glimpse of the "upside-down Christmas tree" over the piano bar.

Parable Has Meaning At Christmas

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Once upon a time, there was a man who looked upon Christmas as a lot of humbug.

He wasn't a Scrooge. He was a kind and decent person, generous to his family, upright in all his dealings with other men.

But he didn't believe all that stuff about incarnation which churches proclaim at Christmas. And he was too honest to pretend that he did.

"I am truly sorry to distress you," he told his wife, who was a faithful churchgoer. "But I simply cannot understand this claim that God became man. It doesn't make any sense to me."

On Christmas Eve, his wife and children went to church for the midnight service. He declined to accompany them.

"I'd feel like a hypocrite," he explained. "I'd rather stay at home. But I'll wait up for you."

Shortly after his family drove away in the car, snow began to fall. He went to the window and watched the flurries getting heavier and heavier.

"If we must have Christmas," he thought, "it's nice to have a white one."

A few minutes later, he was startled by a thudding sound. It was quickly followed by another, then another.

When he went to the front door to investigate, he found a flock of birds huddled miserably in the snow. They had been caught in the storm, and in a desperate search for shelter had tried to fly through his window.

"I can't let these poor creatures lie there and freeze," he thought. "But how can I help them?"

Then he remembered the barn where the childrens' pony was stabled. It would provide a warm shelter.

He put on his coat and galoshes and tramped through the deepening snow to the barn. He opened the door wide and turned on a light.

But the birds didn't come in.

"Food will bring them in," he thought. So he hurried back to the house for bread crumbs, which he sprinkled on the snow to make a trail into the barn.

To his dismay, the birds ignored the bread crumbs and continued to flop around helplessly in the snow.

He tried shooing them into the barn by walking around and waving his arms. They scattered in every direction—except into the warm, lighted barn.

"They find me a strange and terrifying creature," he said to himself, "and I can't seem to think of any way to let them know they can trust me.

"If only I could be a bird myself for a few minutes, perhaps I could lead them to safety . . ."

Just at that moment, the church bells began to ring.

He stood silently for a while, listening to the bells pealing the glad tidings of Christmas.

Then he sank to his knees in the snow.

"Now I do understand," he whispered. "Now I see why you had to do it."

SEVENTH CANDLE

The seventh candle, of the eight in the menorah, will be lighted tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gottesman, Greenbrae, as part of the celebration of Chanukah. The "festival of lights" commemorates the reconquest of Jerusalem in 168 B.C. and cleansing of the Temple which had been defiled by the Syrians. The Talmud tells of the Maccabees finding a flask of oil sufficient to light the holy lamps for only one day—but it miraculously lasted for eight days. Watching the candle lighting at sunset will be Michael Jon (left), Leslie Ann and Jimmy. Chanukah gifts for children are piled about the menorah and in front of Michael Jon is the four sided "dreidel," a traditional top. A sip of wine and taste of the cookies will close the ceremony.

Bagpipes, Tolling Bells, Prayers Denote Christmas In Bethlehem

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BETHLEHEM, Jordan (AP) — In this little hilltop town where Christianity began, Christmas comes with the brassy blare of military bands, the clattering hoofs of prancing Arab stallions and the solemn music of hymns and chants.

And beneath the stone floor of the oldest church in the world, an olive wood doll of the infant Jesus lies in the manger where Christ was born.

The cave, which tradition says was the stable of Mary and Joseph, still exists — under the massive Church of the Nativity — but Christmas Eve in the Bethlehem of today bears little resemblance to the quiet night when wondering shepherds heard "glad tidings of great joy."

The candle-lit stable is now sheathed with marble and hung with rich brocades, a policeman stands guard inside, and thousands of tourists and pilgrims crowd the town for the pageantry of Christmas in the Holy Land.

This year no tourists will be told, like Joseph and Mary, that "there is no room at the inn," for Jordan has added 15 new hotels to handle the crush. The tourist trade is Jordan's main industry, and 29,753 visitors converged on the Holy Land last year in the month of December.

The day starts with the joyous pealing of bells and the call of prayers from a mosque on Manger Square, for almost half of Bethlehem's 20,000 townspeople are Moslems. At midday begins the most colorful of the Christmas Eve ceremonies.

Led by five lancers mounted on horseback, the elderly, bearded Patriarch of Jerusalem steps from his car beneath Bethlehem's Christmas tree, a live, tilting umbrella pine decorated with Japanese lanterns, an electric star and a portrait of King Hussein I of Jordan. From its lower branches a loudspeaker wafts carols over the heads of the police and desert troops who hold back the crowds in the big square.

Donning an ermine cloak and crimson hat, the patriarch follows singing priests through the tiny door—built that way in the Middle Ages to prevent infidel horsemen from riding inside — of the basilica of the nativity.

A carnival atmosphere reigns in the square, with the popping of firecrackers, the music of a Jordanian army and bagpipe band, and brisk business in the souvenir shops, while solemn rites take place in the incense-laden twilight of the 1,600-year-old church.

In nearby Shepherds Field, where the angel announced the birth of Christ, worshippers gather in the chilly late afternoon to sing carols. The field, owned by the YMCA, is fenced now and no sheep are allowed.

While crowds shiver in the square, the patriarch returns for midnight Mass in the 84-year-old Church of St. Catherine, part of the nativity basilica.

So great are the crowds that tickets are needed for admission to the midnight Mass.

In the past, the three faiths that share the nativity church — Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Armenian — have chosen Christmas Eve to vent their jealousies, with priests brawling in the grotto of Christ's birth or throwing bottles at each other on the roof.

That is why, for decades, a Moslem policeman has been posted inside the stable, where a 14-pointed silver star marks taxis jostling past the donkeys the site of the manger. The visit of Pope Paul VI two years ago however, did much to heal the ill-will among the sects, and the presence of the policeman has become more symbolic than functional.

And when the ceremonies in the grotto end and the crowds have left, Bethlehem prepares to start the festivities all over again. For Chrismas comes three times a year in the holy town. The Orthodox and Armenian sects celebrate the birth of Jesus in January.

Congregation Gets Church

Members of the San Rafael congregation of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will worship in their own church Sunday after more than 10 years in rented quarters.

The church at 375 Calle Arboleda, Novato, has been purchased from the American Baptist congregation. The Latter Day Saints congregation has used the Labor Temple in San Rafael for services.

High Priest Sylvester R. Coleman, missionary supervisor for the San Francisco Bay Stake area, will be guest speaker at the service beginning at 9:45 a.m. The church also will house classes for children and youths and prayer services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays.

Elder George Warner, pastor of the congregation, soon will be replaced by Elder Velton Crownover. Warner, in the Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base, is to be transferred to France.

Colored Yarn Scraps Make Ideal Decorative Touches

By EUNICE FARMER

Here is a good idea to play around with during the holidays. Use your leftover scraps of colored yarn and make knitted sleeves for a wool jumper dress. The sleeves will be knitted from a sweater pattern, using rectangles of colored yarn knitted down the center of a white sleeve to form diamond shapes. Set the sleeves into a jumper just as you would set in regular sleeves.

Complete the garment by knitting a 2-inch wide strip of bias to bind the neckline of the jumper. This will look like a very expensive dress and I know you will love it.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER: Mrs P. Roth, Evanston, Ill., wins a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following idea.

"Do not discard plaid wool blankets used on your children's beds. Instead, make ponchos, which are so very popular with the small fry since the "Sound of Music" made them famous.

"Cut the blanket into a square, cutting off the fringe or hem. Fold into a triangle and make a slit for the head. Insert a 7-inch Zipper in front. Bind the neck edges with wool braid. Use a skein of heavy yarn for fringe for all the outer edges. Fringe should be about 7 inches long and very close together for a heavy look.

"If you have any leftover yarn, make a yarn pompon and tie it to the zipper. Just think, it won't cost a cent; just a few hours' time and your children will love it."

(Since there is very little machine stitching on this garment, it would be a nice thing to make during the holidays when you are taking it a little easy.)

I guess I'm just one of many women who wonder just how long it will be before the skirts drop down in length again. I have just finished a winter coat but must admit that I did worry when completing the hem in case I would have to let it down and wouldn't have the material to do it with. I decided to make a skirt out of the same material, then if worse comes to worse, I will still have a walking suit.

Mrs. J. H.

Dear Mrs. J.H.:

There is always the possibility that the length of skirts will change and if they do, it will be a drastic one. Skirts always seem to inch up shorter and shorter, and then pow, they drop about 15 inches. So you see, even if you did leave a hem, it wouldn't be long enough. Your idea of the extra skirt is a great one. At least you would have some fabric left that matches and that could probably be used in some clever way. Your walking suit idea sounds great!

Population Pressure Fanning Forest Fires

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A deputy state forester said there is an "almost perfect correlation" between population increase and the incidence of forest fires over the past 30 years and many of them could be prevented.

Howard E. Moore told a recent meeting of the watershed fire council in Elsinore that fires nowadays are stopped at an average of 45 acres each, where they used to average burning 150 acres.

The Division of Forestry, at the request of a legislative committee, has developed a five-year plan of fire prevention. It is based on the fact that 3,000 forest fires a year occur on state protected lands and this increases about 120 fires a year.

Moore said more than 92 per cent of these are man caused and studies indicate that one-half to two-thirds of the man-caused fires could be prevented —three or four lives, $6 or $7 million in improved property, $500,000 in emergency funds, and untold millions in resources each year.

The annual cost of this fire prevention program would be $6.5 million. It would involve 524 positions in the Division of Forestry and 355 positions for contracting agencies, amounting to more than one million man-hours of work a year in fire prevention - education and law administration.

Teen-Agers Cited For Thievery

Corte Madera police yesterday cited three Greenbrae boys, two aged 15 and another 14, on charges of shoplifting a bottle of perfume and a lady's purse from the Montgomery Ward and Co. store and two neckties from Smith's Men's Store in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

The boys were stopped as they left the Ward store by chief security officer Ronald Guerra, who said he saw one of them steal a bottle of perfume. He found the other merchandise on them.

There are big things in store for Marin area theatergoers this holiday season:

FAIRFAX THEATER

Well it's here, and there's no doubt it's as great as everyone has been saying.

"My Fair Lady' is outstanding in almost every category available to a motion picture.

For instance, the cast: Rex Harrison is a perfect Prof. Henry Higgins — the irascible speech expert who transforms Cockney flower girl Eliza (Audrey Hepburn) into an aristocrat, by teaching her to speak like one.

The inimitable Stanley Holloway is here too — as Eliza's freeloading father.

Though there was some dispute about her getting the role, Miss Hepburn gives the most stunning performance of her career.

All the charm and enthusiasm of the Lerner-Loewe musical is here — not to mention all the beloved melodies.

The photography is at once brillant and mellow, the music as scintillating as ever.

A wonderful show for all ages.

LARK THEATER

Marcello Mastroianni is at his dashing best in the brand new sex farce "Casanova '70," now showing.

Mastroianni is a NATO officer who discovers — after several disastrous atempts — that he cannot make love effectively unless danger, or more specifically anihilation, is imminent.

With the crazy theme music in the background, our hero embarks on what must be some of the nuttiest love affairs ever filmed.

It's all in fun, or rather satire, and never becomes tired or tiring.

Adult entertainment.

SEQUOIA THEATER

Taut, edge-of-the-seat drama is coupled with fine acting in "The Cincinnati Kid," now on screen.

At times very similar to "The Hustler," the film depicts the attempt of an ambitious professional gambler to defeat the reigning king.

Steve McQueen is the poker player of the title; the legendary undefeated champion is Edward G. Robinson. Their marathon contest is the show's gripping climax.

Sure to be one of the big hits of the year.

RAFAEL THEATER

Now on the screen is Walt Disney's latest — a combination of comedy, suspense and romance.

"That Darn Cat!" is well acted, directed and written — and should provide two hours of fun for kids and grownups alike.

It seems that the wandering Siamese of the title gets into an apartment where two bank-robbers are holding a bank teller as hostage. This lady, by devious means, sends the cat for help.

Hayley Mills, cat owner first class, interprets the situation and calls in bright young FBI agent Dean Jones.

Dorothy Provine plays Hayley's older sister—who eventually bewitches Jones.

Great fun.

TAMALPAIS THEATER

Now on screen is "Boeing Boeing," a romantic comedy in the wildest sense.

Tony Curtis and Jerry Lewis play rival newspapermen in Paris. To say they're on the prowl is to put it conservatively.

Dany Saval, Christine Schmidtmer and Suzanna Leigh are featured as airline hostesses, all three engaged to Curtis. He has a system where one beauty is in town while the other two are flying around the world dreaming of him. All is perfectly timed. But then the airlines switch to jets, and the film moves into high gear.

101 DRIVE-IN

Elvis Presley's flock of fans won't want to miss his latest film: "Harum Scarum,' opening Sunday.

This time Elvis is an American movie star, performing in the Near East. His prowess in judo gets him involved in local political rivalries.

He also manages to get involved with Mary Ann Mobley, beautiful daughter of a noble king.

As always, there's plenty of Elvis-style rock and roll songs.

NOVATO THEATER

The Oscar - winning "Mary Poppins" is coming in Sunday, starring Julie Andrews and Dick Van Dyke in a truly enchanting story.

A delight for the whole family.

TIBURON PLAYHOUSE

Jane Fonda and Lee Marvin star in in the funniest Western to come along in quite awhile, "Cat Ballou," opening Sunday.

Every Western cliche imaginable gets a thorough trouncing, and there's no respect for anyone or anything as Cat and the gang pull one irreverent shenanigan after another.

Special Call To Sacramento To Parallel Budget Study

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The 1966 special session of the Legislature could be called at the same date as the convening of the regular budget session, on Feb. 7, or it might be called a week or two earlier.

Frank Mesple', legislative secretary to Gov. Edmund G. Brown, said the decision probably would be made at a high level conference of legislative leaders and the governor in Palm Springs on Dec. 29-30.

The big thing to be decided, if possible, is if there is any area of agreement on a tax program for the session, Mesple' said. In addition, it's expected that there will be a rough idea of the total budget needs by the time of the Palm Springs meeting, to indicate how much new revenue might be needed.

The revenue gap for the 1966-67 budget—the amount of new taxes needed to finance the next fiscal year—has been estimated at anywhere between $200 and $300 million.

Mesple' said there is a possibility the special session might be called on Jan. 24 or Jan. 31, if it seemed worthwhile.

In any event, it's expected there will be no legislative recess this year. Under the constitution, the budget session meets on the first Monday in February in even - numbered years, spends several days to receive a budget and then recesses to permit financial committees to study the budget. No matter when the special session is called in 1966, it's expected the lawmakers will remain in Sacramento in the special session, during the budget session recess.

Driver Suffers Cuts In Two-Car Crash

John Gulbransen, 17, of 81 Via Navarro, Greenbrae, suffered a cut right hand and face scrapes when the car he was driving was hit broadside in the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard - Wolf Grade Road intersection at 8:30 p.m. yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said Bobby Joe Lile, 33, of 338 Bolinas Avenue, Fairfax, driving down Wolf Grade, crashed into Gulbransen's car. Gulbransen was treated at Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco. Lile was unhurt.

Scouts' Good Deed

CAMILLUS, N.Y. (AP) — A Boy Scout troop's good deed is leaving Scoutmaster William Benz knee-deep in Christmas wrapping paper. The scouts exchanged and opened gifts at a meeting, then agreed to send their presents to an orphanage in nearby Syracuse. They also left Benz to rewrap all of the gifts.

Today is Friday, Dec. 24, the 358th day of 1965 with seven to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter; the morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter; the evening stars are Venus, Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

American author and lecturer on human relations, Dale Carnegie, was born on this day in 1888.

On this day in history:

In 1814, a treaty of peace was signed between the United States and Great Britain at Ghent, Belgium, bringing an end to the war of 1812.

In 1871, Verdi's opera "Aida" premiered in Cairo, Egypt.

In 1943, President Franklin Roosevelt announced the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the commander-in-chief of allied forces in the planned invasion of Europe.

In 1951, the United Nations proclaimed the North African nation of Libya free and independent.

A thought for the day—The prophet Isaiah: "And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a branch shall grow out of his roots: And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If Errors Rang Bells, Earmuffs Would Be Necessary For Bridge

This would be a noisy world to live in if a bell rang every time we made a mistake.

Most of us would have to wear earmuffs permanently, especially at the bridge table.

For example, the bell would toll in the hand shown today.

Opening lead — ♣ 3

South won the first trick with the ace of clubs, drew two rounds of trumps and led a low diamond.

West won with the nine of diamonds and led the eight of hearts through dummy.

Declarer put up dummy's ten and won with the queen when East played the jack.

South continued with the ace of diamonds and a low diamond, losing again to West.

Back came another heart, and East took two heart tricks to defeat the contract.

Did you hear the bell ring?

Who made the mistake — and when?

EARLY MISTAKE

The bell rang for South when he played the ace of clubs at the first trick.

The correct play is to let East win the first trick.

East returns a diamond, and South puts up the ace and cashes the ace of clubs to discard a diamond from dummy.

Then South gives up a diamond.

ALTERNATIVE

West can lead just one heart through dummy.

South wins with the queen of hearts, ruffs a diamond in dummy and draws trumps with the ace and king.

His last diamond is good, so he discards a heart from dummy on it, thus losing only one club, one diamond and one heart instead of two diamonds and two hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ A J 10 9 7 6
♥ K 10 2
♦ 7 6 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four spades.

Since you have 8 points in high cards, you know that the combined count is 24 to 26 points.

Your six-card suit and your singleton should make up for any slight deficiency in high cards.

Instruction to Land Buyers

First see the land which thou intend'st to buy
Within the seller's title clearly lye,

And that no woman to it doth lay claime
By dowry, joynture, or some other name,

That may incumber, know if bond or fee
The Tenure stand, and that for each feoffee

It be released, that th' sellers be soe old.
That he may lawful sell, thou lawful hold.

Have special care that it not mortgaged lye,
Nor be entailed upon posterity.

Then if it stand in statute bound or noe,
Be well advised what quitt rent out must goe,

What custome service hath been done of old
By those who formerly the same did hold.

And if a wedded woman put to sale
Deal not with her unless she bring her male,

For she doth under covert barren goe,
Although sometimes some traffique soe we know

Thy bargain made and all this be done,
Have special care to make thy charter run

To thee, thy heirs, executors' assigns,
For that beyond they life securely binds,

These things foreknow and done, you may prevent,
Those things rash buyers many times repent,

And yet when you have done all you can,
If youle be sure, deal with an honest man.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

How The Mind Makes Decisions Depends On One's Mental Health

VAN DELLEN

Decisions, decisions, decisions sounds much better than conflicts, conflicts, conflicts even though both may get on our nerves when unresolved. According to Webster, a conflict is emotional tension resulting from incompatible inner needs. It takes place when instinct urges one course but experience tells us that the consequences of that action are undesirable.

INSTINCTS, largely hereditary and unalterable, represent most of our natural impulses and drives. Many emotional problems are based upon hidden conflicts that develop when we cannot cope with "what comes naturally and what is right or best for self, family, community, etc." The brains of most of us are cluttered with such feelings, but some persons find ways of handling the emotional tension that is generated by this turmoil.

Psychiatrists use the word sublimation when the hidden conflicts are repressed by transbidden urge to a socially valubidden urge to as ocially valuable activity. The aggressive man becomes active in community affairs often related to some of his conflicts. The childless husband becomes interested in boys' clubs or scouting. Those with marital problems become "joiners" and keep busy attending meetings.

OVERCOMPENSATION is another mechanism. The reformed alcoholic goes out of his way to discourage others from drinking; those who doubt their sexual ability become Don Juans. Displacement is a third method of repressing hidden tensions. The victim's natural impulses are directed against another object that resembles the object of the impulse. The best example is the child who sticks pins in her doll after a new baby arrives. The foreman who takes it out on his men after a spat with his wife is a more common reaction.

Projection, a fourth manifestation applies to those who shift their feelings of failure or guilt to other people or things. The mediocre worker blames his tools, and the young executive who is not promoted blames his immediate superior instead of his own lack of ability.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

SOUR STOMACH

C. C. A. writes: What could bring on sour stomach every night after supper?

REPLY

There are 101 causes of indigestion, varying from disturbances of the gall bladder to mother-in-law trouble. Why not have your problem thoroughly investigated, including X-ray studies?

PAINLESS ULCER

B. M. writes: Could a person have ulcer without pain?

REPLY

Yes. Furthermore, when stomach ulcers are treated, distress often disappears within a few days even though the lesion remains open for several weeks thereafter.

PANCREAS

E. T. writes: What else does the pancreas do besides make insulin?

REPLY

This organ secretes important digestive enzymes directly into the intestine.

BUCK FEVER

Mrs. O. writes: All my life (I'm now 60) I've had phobia about deer and moose. Pictures of these animals scare me and stuffed heads terrify me. Is there any way to overcome this fear?

REPLY

It is easier to avoid the animals except when the Elks or Moose hold a convention in your city.

LOW METABOLISM

T. T. writes: My metabolism is minus 30. Could this low reading cause me to have several colds a year?

REPLY

This is possible but unlikely because many have several colds a year even though the thyroid is normal and they are otherwise healthy. Colds are caused by viruses and not a low metabolism.

BEEF AND PRESSURE

H. J. writes: Is rare steak or roast beef bad for high blood pressure or a heart condition?

REPLY

Beef of any kind will not aggravate heart disease or high blood pressure unless these conditions are associated with certain types of kidney disease. Cooking alters the taste but not the basic chemical constituents. Years ago "red meat" was thought to be bad for persons with hypertension.

NOT QUALIFIED

M. P. writes: Can a person with a vast knowledge of psychology diagnose his own psychosis?

REPLY

No, because most psychotics are not in contact with reality and have little or no insight as to what is going on. Even psychiatrists who become psychotic cannot help themselves.

DIZZINESS AND EXERCISE

B. N. writes: Is exercise of any value in treating labyrinthitis?

REPLY

Labyrinthitis is a common cause of dizziness, ringing of the ears, and nausea. When such symptoms are present, the victim feels better when lying still. Exercise aggravates the symptoms.

STOMACH ACHE

Mrs. C. writes: Is there such a thing as a stomach that is too small?

REPLY

No. Some persons have lost up to 75 per cent of the stomach through surgery and continue to live normal lives.

COLOR BLINDNESS

Mrs. E. writes: My son was turned down by the Navy for color blindness. Is there anything he can do to cure the condition before he applies to the Air Force?

REPLY

No. A disturbance of this kind usually is hereditary and, to my knowledge, there is no cure. Attempts to teach color appreciation has not been successful.

COCCYGODYNIA

H. J. writes: Can anything be done to ease tenderness at the extreme tip of the spine?

REPLY

If this is coccygodynia, or sore coccyx, relief is obtained by various measures such as hot baths and sitting on an inflated rubber ring. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this topic.

UNATTRACTIVE HANDS

R. E. writes: Some women have nice hands, but mine are red and ugly. I do the average housework.

REPLY

Women with nice hands protect them with gloves and apply vream or lubricating lotions. Some find silicone products helpful as protectives.

LESSENING DRYNESS

R. T. writes: How can humidity in the home be raised without expensive equipment?

REPLY

The easiest ways to increase humidity are to put pans of water on the radiators, keep the steam kettle going in the kitchen, or turn on the shower to full hot in the bathroom. If you have an electric hot plate, place a pan of water on it and keep it boiling. There are commercial humidifiers that are inexpensive.

DRIPPING SECRETION

Mrs. A. writes: Why are so many people bothered with post-nasal drip?

REPLY

Most of us live in dirty cities and are forced to inhale irritating dusts and chemicals. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this condition.

Today's Health Hint—Aerosol cans may explode when punctured.

San Rafael Due Aquatic Park Help

A state recreation official will visit San Rafael in January to aid the city in applying for a grant to build an aquatic park.

San Rafael Recreation Director Joseph D. Rodota, said Russell W. Porter, coordinator of the state Division of Recreation's grant program, will come to the city Jan. 4 or 5 to confer with Rodota, City Mgr. Dan E. Anderson and acting City Planner Charles J. Linthicum.

He also will attend the Jan 5 meeting of the park and recreation commission, Rodota said.

Rodota said he talked briefly last week in Sacramento with Porter, who once held Rodota's job in San Rafael. The conversation did not get into details, but Rodota said he was "most encouraged" when Porter told him the city would not have to supply detailed plans to apply for a state grant.

Drunk Driving, Assault Charged

A highway patrolman followed up on a hit-run driver in Sleepy Hollow yesterday and arrested him on charges of beating his 75-year-old mother and drunken driving.

The patrol said a pickup truck driven by John E. Wooll, 40, of 1110 Butterfield Road, crashed into a porch of the home of Jack H. Meister at 1040 Butterfield Road at 4:55 p.m.

Patrolman J. L. Smith, called to investigate found the truck at Wool's home. Entering, he reported, he found Wooll hitting his mother, Mrs. Helen Wooll, with a towel.

Wooll was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for face cuts suffered in the crash and booked into county jail on charges of drunken driving and assault and battery.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Farm System Good For Entertainment

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Early one evening recently, with not much to do at the end of a brief vacation, I noticed that I had an invitation to an "old-fashioned Christmas party" at a place called Ledbetter's near the UCLA campus. Noticing further that the proprietor was listed as Randy Sparks, formerly the guiding light of television's New Christy Ministrels, I decided to look in.

It was chiefly a matter of curiosity. I knew that Sparks had not been with the New Christy Minstrels for some time, and that their decline in sharpness and quality had shown it, and I wondered what he was doing now. What he is doing now—and Ledbetter's is an important part of it—is the kind of thing that should interest network entertainment executives enough to pick up a phone in New York, or wherever they are, every few days, and call Sparks and say, "Hello, Randy, old kid, old kid —what have you got for us today?"

What Sparks has got—and what the networks should have developed in a much more major sense long ago—is a farm system, something like baseball's, but with his own special brand of entertainers, generally lumped as folksinging groups, but actually with a far wider-ranging talent. For each of his up-and-coming groups, there seems to be another right behind, on the way, but not quite as developed.

Ledbetter's is a sort of old-fashioned club in style, but to Sparks it is also a kind of rehearsal hall for his groups, where they can play before the public and make mistakes without doing this in front of millions on television while they are still developing. This fills an important need, for entertainers nowadays wail that there are few places to learn, and they are right.

Thus, the night that I was at Ledbetter's, I caught a very polished group called "The Back Porch Majority," which I had seen on NBC-TV's "Tonight" show and thought was a exactly the same about after seeing the act in person. This at least as good, and was moving up in the farm system.

In short, Sparks has found a bright, intelligent, logical way to run a business that is notoriously at loose ends, and although it is on a relatively small scale, video could well take notice. His groups are clean and extraordinarily vivacious, and brushing up occasionally at Ledbetter's gives them the edge. He is one smart showman.

Hearing Slated In Theft Case

Preliminary hearing for Richard Lee Wagner, 19, charged with the Dec. 19 burglary of Lagunitas Grocery Store, has been set for 9:30 p.m. on Jan. 4 in Marin Municipal Court.

Another suspect, Sheila Jo Leppik, 18, is scheduled to enter plea on the same charge at 1:30 p.m. Monday. No complaint was issued against a third person arrested, Charles James Stephens, 20, of Railroad Avenue, Woodacre.

Stephens and Wagner were arrested by sheriff's officers for questioning in a Dec. 4 burglary of the Forest Knolls weekend home of Peter R. Hansen of San Francisco. However, Wagner and Miss Leppik, both of Forest Knolls, were charged with the grocery store breakin.

They are free on their own recognizance.

School Bid Higher Than Estimate

Three bids for an addition to the gymnasium at San Rafael's Davidson School were opened by school officials yesterday, and the apparent low bid was more than $17,000 above the architect's estimate made in May.

Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte said the low bid of $146,437 was submitted by Herrero Brothers, Inc., of San Francisco. Other bids were by Ira Coburn of San Francisco, $149,174, and Ideal Construction Co. of Novato, $159,890.

Only $120,000 was set aside in this year's budget for the work, Condrotte said.

Condrotte declined to predict whether he would recommend awarding of contract or urge the San Rafael Board of Education to throw out the bids at its Jan. 11 meeting. He said he would review the bids to see if any part of the work can be left out to cut the cost.

Detective Again Hit By Burglars

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — For the second time in less than a week, thieves broke into the home of Cecil Stowers.

Burglars took gold cuff links, a radio, an electric guitar and a hedge trimmer yesterday. The loss was estimated at $138.

Earlier this week, items valued at $1,300 were reported stolen. Both times the thieves broke the glass on a basement door to gain entry.

Stowers is a detective on the Kansas City, Kan., police force.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

Young Widow Has A Trying Time

By FRANK FARRARA

(Last of a series)

When a girl quits high school to get married at the age of 16 and then finds herself a widow with three children at the age of 23, she has a job just getting a job.

After the death of her husband in an automobile crash Oct. 6, 1963, Mrs. Dale Eugene Camden of 242 Kent Avenue, Kentfield, learned to her dismay that she was "unemployable."

She decided she would return to school, and started at the College of Marin after passing high school equivalency testing.

"I am going to get some kind of work," she vowed. "My object is to be employable."

With three young children to support, she found there were hardly any jobs she was qualified to take.

Mrs. Camden said she is taking some office courses, such as typing, business machines and shorthand, and some data processing courses.

"Actually, I want to go into law enforcement, but I'm only 5 foot 2½."

She hopes that she can combine her data processing work with a career in law enforcement.

The three children, Lora-Ellen, 5, Dale Eugene Jr., 4, and John Herbert, 3, have been told their father is dead, she said.

"They've accepted the fact," she said. "You can't undo it. You have to accept it and enjoy what you had. Sometimes we get out the pictures and they look at Daddy."

After her husband's death, Mrs. Camden and her children moved in with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lax.

"My father is very close to Lora, and she looks up to him," she said.

"We pay them room and board. I get social security which comes to about $297 a month." The social security payments cover her and the children, she explained.

Speaking of her early school days, she said: "I wanted to be a botanist, but my hay fever was too bad. I probably would have gone into natural sciences."

Mrs. Camden said she began to become interested in law enforcement work while attending judo classes. "I find judo a great tension reliever," she said. "I hope to have my brown belt by my 24th birthday."

Thinking back to the accident that killed her husband, she said, "He was tired, up all day Friday and driving on Saturday."

Camden was killed when his car slammed into an oak tree on Wolfe Grade just above Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. The California Highway Patrol estimated that he had been traveling about 25 miles an hour.

"He was near home, and he probably relaxed," Mrs. Camden said.

Boy Scouts Will Plant Trees This Yule Season

The Christmas season finds Marin County Boy Scouts pulling a switch on the usual holiday tree routine. Instead of cutting them down, they'll be planting them.

It's thes tart of a conservation and beautification program called "Operation Scout Tree," according to Paul Y. Dunn, executive of the Marin Scout Council.

On Wednesday, on a Fort Baker hillside in the Marin Headlands, visible from Vista Point, Boy Scouts will set out 1,800 one-year-old trees that in time will become a scenic forest grove.

The planting will be on a five-acre hillside owned by the Sixth Army, which is cooperating in the planting project along with other public and private agencies in the Bay Area. Site preparation work will be done by the Scouts Monday.

After the trees are planted, the Boy Scouts will follow a two-year program of watering and maintenance.

Most of the trees will be pines, with a scattering of gum species and a special selection of coast redwoods.

Beauty Hath Rank

Judi Woodmansee, "Miss Marin County 1965," has been named to the board of directors of the California Beauties Assn. The association was formed to unite past and current delegates to the annual California Beauty Pageant.

Larkspur Coed Helps East Oakland Pupils

Lexie Sifford of Larkspur, a University of California student, is helping culturally deprived children in East Oakland as a tutor.

She tutors children at a neighborhood center after her classes and stays with them until their parents return from work. Miss Sifford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Sifford Jr. of 14 College Court, was graduated from Redwood High School and is a sophomore at the university.

Workers will take away the ladder and boards so that the first services can be held in the new Episcopal Church in Ignacio on Christmas Eve and Day. Brodie Is Surprised With Comeback Of Year Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Credit the whole team, not just me," declared San Francisco quarterback John Brodie, the man voted Comeback Player of the Year in the National Football League.

The 30-year-old forward passing ace added he was "pleased but surprised" at the honor accorded by The Associated Press.

Actually, Brodie's comeback started last year. After the 1962 season, he suffered a broken arm in an automobile accident and missed 11 games in 1963 when the arm was rebroken early in the season.

Although the 49ers finished last in the Western Division in 1964, Brodie hit 193 passes in 391 throws for 2,498 yards and 14 touchdowns. Both the number of throws and number of completions were team records.

This past season he completed 242, a league record, of 391 for 3,112 yards and 30 touchdowns.

"I had great protection," the 10-year pro veteran said. "Just look at the record. At one stretch I was thrown for a loss just once in four games."

The 49ers posted a 7-6-1 record, finishing fourth. When the Green Bay Packers and Baltimore Colts clash on Sunday for the division title, the game might be a tribute to the 49er quarterback.

Last Sunday he completed 26 of 34 throws for a tremendous 76.5 percentage and three touchdowns as the 49ers battled Green Bay to a 24-24 tie and deadlocked the Packers and Colts in the regular season standings.

In that one, the Green Bay defenders tossed him just once for a loss of two yards.

Although he had George Mira in the wings awaiting a chance, Coach Jack Christiansen said at the season's start that Brodie was his quarterback, and the former Stanford star gave him some tremendous performances.

On Oct. 28 he fired five touchdown passes to beat Minnesota 45-24 and he must have gained personal satisfaction a few weeks later.

At Kezar Stadium, where fans have ridden him without mercy on several occasions, they booed him early in the fourth quarter when the Los Angeles Rams led 27-13.

Brodie promptly marshalled his forces, hit two touchdown passes and then brought the club into position for the winning field goal.

It could be his "Comeback" honor actually could be recognition of a player who has come into his own as a star.

Tommy McDonald, flanker for Los Angeles, was second to Brodie in the balloting by 42 newsmen in the NFL cities. Brodie had 12 votes and McDonald seven. John David Crow of San Francisco and Rudy Bukich of Chicago each had four.

Amos Marsh of Detroit had three votes. Green Bay's Jerry Kramer and Philadelphia's Pete Retzlaff each had two and the Bears as a team received one. Seven panel members did not vote in this category.

FOR WESTERN TITLE

Packers Vs Colts

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Beating the Baltimore Colts twice in one season was tough enough but beating them a third time will be the most difficult feat of all, says Coach Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers.

The Colts and Packers meet in a playoff here Sunday to determine the National Football League's Western Conference champion. It will be televised on CBS, Channel 5, 11 a.m. PST.

"It's pretty hard to beat a team three times in a season. I don't care who they are," Lombardi said.

The last time the two teams met, the Packers humiliated Baltimore, 42-27.

Lombardi was confident the Packers would be up for the game but noted that the proud Colts will have the added incentive of revenge.

NEW COACH—Jim Pittman, chief assistant coach at Texas, has signed a five-year contract to coach the Green Wave of Tulane University. Terms of the contract were unrevealed. (AP Wirephoto)

Lombardi also indicated he would welcome it if the Packers faced the same kind of blitzing tactics the Colts used last Saturday in beating Los Angeles, 20-17.

"Twenty-five times," said Lombardi who apparently counted the time the Colts sent linebackers or defensive backs crashing through the Ram line. "That's more than half the time blizting."

Lombardi said the popular belief that the blitz bothers the passer is unfounded. He said it could affect the running game. In fact, Lombardi said, the blitz gives the passer an advantage by removing a defender from the secondary.

Ray Nitschke remained the Packer's only doubtful starter Thursday although he took part in drills for the first time this week. Nitschke was still limping from a pulled hamstring and Lombardi said he would not start Sunday unless his limp disappears.

USF Whips St. Louis; Injuns Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Erwin Mueller, University of San Francisco's starting center, played against St. Louis University's Billikens last night despite an injured ankle but it hardly seemed necessary.

Mueller threw in 16 points as the Dons beat the Billikens 87-69 and all the other four USF starters also hit in double figures.

St. Louis got within two points late in the game but then the Dons rallied for 10 quick points and the contest.

Joe Ellis got 22 points for USF and Rich Parks 20 for St. Louis.

In other last games before the Christmas holidays, Stanford thumped Louisiana State, 91-69, Santa Clara edged California, 75-73, and Tulsa thumped St. Mary's, 82-60.

Stanford used a three - inch height advantage in the front line to overpower Louisiana State.

The visiting Tigers nearly wiped out a 44-35 Stanford lead, creeping to within one point, 46-45, two minutes into the second half.

But the Indians in three minutes shot ahead 61-51, and coasted from there.

Stanford's Art Harris and Jack Gilbert led their team with 17 points each.

Harry Heroman of LSU topped all scorers with 18.

Eric Paulson scored 22 points in pacing Santa Clara's victory over California.

North Meets South In Shrine Grid Game

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of all-star games, showcases for some of the nation's top individual collegiate football talent, serve as appetizers on Christmas Day, for next week's major bowl games.

Six All Americas will be in action, three on each side, when the North plays the South in Miami. The other is the Blue-Gray, matching seniors from above and below the Mason-Dixon line, in Montgomery, Ala. Both games are tomorrow afternoon.

Each is scheduled for national television. ABC will handle the North-South, with kickoff set for 1:30 p.m., PST. CBS has the Blue-Gray game, with kickoff at 1 p.m., PST.

Those should serve to whet the nation's television appetite for the following week's main course, including the Rose, Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Gator Bowls.

The North-South Shrine Game always has been a wide open, free scoring affair built on gambling, explosive offenses. And the 18th annual game in Miami Christmas Day shapes up as another in the series.

Playing a key role in such a forecast is the presence on the South's team of Bill Anderson and Howard Twilley, the combination that broke all the passing and receiving records at Tulsa this past season.

The South is coached by Tulsa's Glenn Dobbs, who also will have running back Rodger Bird of Kentucky and wingback George Pearce of William and Mary in the offensive line-up.

He also has two fierce linebackers, Tommy Nobis of Texas and Ed Weisacosky of Miami. Nobis, Weisacosky and Twilley were All America choices.

North Coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame counters with two All Americas from his own team, guard Dick Arrington and defensive halfback Nick Rassas, and Prudue tackle Karl Singer.

He will open with either Ken Lucas of Pittsburgh or Don Unverferth of Ohio State at quarterback. Sam Price of Illinois will be at half, Dave McNaughton of Penn State at full and Jim Todd of Ball State at wingback.

The South leads in the series 10-6, with two ties. The North won last year's game 37-30 on a touchdown pass by Notre Dame's Jack Snow in the last five seconds.

East-West Stars Begin Drills For Dec. 31 Game

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett is mixing practice and financial negotiations while he awaits the Shrine football game here Dec. 31.

The Southern California halfback joined the rest of the West squad in its first workout yesterday at Stanford, while the East was starting practice at Santa Clara.

Later he and his attorney discussed negotiations with teams in both professional leagues. He was drafted in the second round by the Los Angeles Rams and 20th by the Kansas City Chiefs. He won't sign a contract until USC completes its baseball season, when the Pittsburgh Pirates are expected to make a strong pitch to get him to make a career of that sport.

Meanwhile, a pair of quarterbacks showed their West teammates yesterday that Garrett wasn't the only offensive punch in camp.

Paul Stein of Air Force and Tod Hullin of Washington completed 15 of 17 passes in a practice session, with end Gary Garrison of San Diego State and flanker Ben Hawkins of Arizona making outstanding catches.

East coach Ben Schwartzwalder put his team through two no-contact workouts, with the emphasis on offense.

Bills' Lou Saban Is Named AFL Coach Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills was named Coach of the Year in the American Football League Thursday in a poll of the league's players.

The award marked the second straight year Saban had been honored by the league's players.

The players also picked San Diego's Paul Lowe as Player of the Year and New York's Joe Namath as Rookie of the Year.

Lowe, who set a league rushing record of 1,121 yards, drew 104 votes to 68 for teammate Lance Alworth.

Namath polled 114 votes to 27 for fullback Gene Foster of San Diego.

The poll was conducted by The Sporting News.

Kids Cage Tourney Winds Up

Champions were crowned yesterday in the Youth Basketball Tournament at San Rafael High School, after a total exceeding 500 boys had participated in the four-day program co-sponsored by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department and the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Laurel Dell Celtics won the fourth grade title by downing the San Pedro Bombers 6-2, as Steve D'Ambra scored four points. Craig Saunders tallied the Bombers' two, as they couldn's penetrate the Celtics' famed defense.

Mark Aman's 13 points sparked the Gallinas Lakers to a 21-6 win over the Laurel Dell Gophers and the fifth grade title, while the Glenwood Dons won the sixth grade crown with a 13-6 triumph over the San Pedro Marlins. Dirk Gonslosser led the winners with eight, while Chick Watt scored four for the Marlins.

Craig Hecht scored eight to lead the Davidson Panthers to a 21-15 win over the Santa Venetia Titans for the seventh grade championship, and the eighth grade crown went to San Jose Junior High, 40-26 winner over the Davidson Golds. David Perron led San Jose with 14.

San Rafael Nine Takes Time Off

The Litchfield Palmsmen of San Rafael, leading the San Francisco Triple-A winter semi-pro baseball league with a 6-0 mark, have the next two weekends off and they might well take time to contemplate the blessing that is good pitching.

Their pitching staff of Ron Cole, Bob DeRosa and Chuck Murray has allowed just four runs and 13 hits in the six games, four of which were shutouts. With pitching like that manager Joe Anselmo's club may consider giving up half their times at bat in the interest of speeding up the games.

This idea won't draw huzzahs from Jess Jacinto, who is stroking the ball at a .461 clip. Bob Frati is hitting .397 and Ron Blum and Don Lauters are at .380. The team average is a whopping .327.

L.A. Scrooge Play: Svare Out Of Job On Christmas Eve

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Christmas in reverse came early for young Harland Svare and today the Los Angeles Rams were looking for their eighth head coach since 1947.

President Daniel F. Reeves, expressing personal regret, said Svare's contract would not be renewed for 1966 with the western cellar dweller in the National Football League.

The announcement, not entirely unexpected, was made yesterday, and promptly triggered the usual speculations on a successor to Svare.

There have been recurring rumors that John McKay of the University of Southern California is under consideration. Whether McKay is considering the matter is not known.

McKay, be it known, was never a man to duck a challenge.

Adding much spice to the talk was this:

Halfback Mike Garrett, a McKay product, All-America and Heisman Trophy winner, is the No. One draft choice of the Rams. Garrett has not signed with the Rams nor the Kansas City Chiefs Football League, who hold draft rights in the American Football League.

A so-called package deal involving McKay and Garrett, whom McKay calls the greatest football player he ever saw, is not an unreasonable conjecture.

Other names kicked around, all well known in pro circles, include George Wilson, late of the Detroit Lions; George Allen, an assistant with the Chicago Bears, formerly a Ram aide, and Buddy Parker, most recently with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Svare, handsome 35-year-old bachelor, issued a statement through Jack Teele, the Rams publicity director and a close personal friend.

In effect, Svare noted the philosophy of the pros, football or baseball: It isn't how you coach, but if you win.

In the Rams' case, it has been lose and lose and lose for more than a decade.

A prepared statement from Reeves read:

"It has been decided not to renew Harland Svare's contract for the 1966 season.

"We have several persons in mind as a possible replacement but no definite decision has been reached. It would be premature to disclose the names of these persons.

"The decision to replace Harland was a most difficult one.

"While there were many mitigating circumstances causing the Rams' losing record, it is felt that a fresh approach is necessary."

For the record, it may be noted that there was a warm personal relation between Svare and Reeves, the majority stockholder of the club.

Svare dictated a statement, relayed by Teele, which said:

"I'm very disappointed that we couldn't have won more football games. I have no regrets about the experience. I thoroughly enjoyed it.

"I thought we made some progress, but it's the nature of professional football that you must win.

"I have the highest respect for Dan Reeves and the Rams' organization, and I want to wish the team success.

"I don't think it will be too much longer before the Rams become a winner."

Chargers Vs. Bills For AFL Championship

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback John Hadl of the San Diego Chargers has a special reason to try to impress Buffalo quarterback Jack Kemp when the two meet in the American Football League championship game Sunday.

Kemp, the league's No. 4 passer, made the all pro team and was voted the league's most valuable player by an AP panel.

Hadl was merely the league's No. 1 passer.

He completed 174 passes out of 347 attempts for a .501 percentage, 2,798 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Kemp, on the other hand, completed 179 out of 391 for a .458 percentage, 2,368 yards and 10 touchdowns.

While Hadl was nailing down the passing title, the Chargers racked up an unprecedented sweep of all important team statistical categories.

The Chargers were one touchdown favorites to win the championship from the Bills as San Diego coach Sid Gillman announced that rookie Gene Foster will replace Keith Lincoln as starting fullback.

Lincoln hurt his knee Dec. 12 and has been slowed since then.

"I'll play," Lincoln said yesterday, "but I don't know how much."

Gillman also declined to predict how much he'll use Lincoln.

The Chargers consider themselves lucky to have the 220-pound Foster ready to step in as a trained replacement for the injured Lincoln.

Buffalo coach Lou Saban indicated that he will give rookie Bob Smith plenty of work at the halfback slot.

Smith appears to have taken over from veteran Bill Joe at the position, although Saban said that Joe "will get as much work as anybody."

San Diego beat Buffalo 34-2 in their first encounter of the season. The second game ended in a 20-20 tie.

It's Survival Of Fittest

SIDELINES

By ED RANDOL

Survival of the fittest. That's what this Sunday's playoff game between the Green Bay Packers and the Baltimore Colts amounts to. And with the Western Conference NFL title at stake, it would seem that the cards are stacked in favor of the Packers.

The key to any pro attack is the quarterback, and the Colts go into this one stripped bare. When regular Johnny Unitas was sidelined by injury the Colt's number two man, Gary Cuozzo, stepped in to fill the breach admirably. Unitas is considered tops of all the pro teams, and Cuozzo is rated the best backup man in the game.

When Cuozzo went out with a shoulder separation, Coach Don Shula had to dig into the record book to find a couple of men who had done some quarterbacking in college and came up with Tom Matte and Bobby Boyd. Both are great competitors but not as quarterbacks. Boyd, in fact, hasn't even operated with the offense as a Colt.

Matte's come-through performance against the Los Angeles Rams put the Colts into the division tie that necessitates the extra game. If the game goes according to form the Colts may wish that they had lost down in smogland, but hope springs eternal.

You can't win without scoring, and scoring is mighty tough when your quarterback is inept at passing. It figures that the Packers will move their league-leading pass defense up tight to shut off the running game, figuring any passes Matte may throw can't hurt too much.

So, if you were in Shula's shoes, what would you do? The answer is pretty obvious: Start with sweeps and then try to catch the drawn-up defense napping by having any or ALL the backs lob the ball into the Packer secondary on an option basis. Any pro can throw a fair enough pass even if he be no Unitas.

Such heroic measures may or may not work, but you can be sure the Colts will go down fighting. Very few experts gave them a chance against the Rams and they managed that one. Chances are good that the Packers will be pretty confident going into this game, perhaps too confident.

Weather reports out of Wisconsin indicate cold, freezing weather. Icy fingers don't hold passes too well, so this may turn into an old-fashioned, ground-fighting, low-scoring affair.

Now that I've talked myself into believing the Colts have a chance, I'll go on record with my idea of the final score. That would be Green Bay 38 to 10. I want to see the Packers against the Cleveland Browns on January 2.

Merry Christmas!

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Scribe Has Tip For Anglers On These Cold And Icy Mornings

STEVENS

So you are hoping to try out that new reel, rod, or other fishing accessories Santa is going to leave for you. If you are warmblooded and are willing to brave the arctic blasts on one of the steelhead rivers, you may (note I say you MAY) do yourself some good on the lower Russian, the area near the mouth of the Gualala, Garcia, Noya, Ten Mile and the Navarro, or in the main Eel as well as the South Fork of the Eel. At this writing the above streams are nearly in a GO condition, but the plain truth is that to date the results have been very very slim pickings.

AS STATED in other columns, before you make the trek to any stream you should phone a local (and dependable) on-the-spot party. The last report I have is of Tuesday. A light rain had fallen and seems to have enticed a goodly number of steelies into the streams near their mouths. A light rain will help somewhat; a hard rain will kill chances.

And that's that for steelhead with just one tip—these frigid mornings will unquestionably ice up the guides of your rod—even freeze the line on your reel. Should you hook a fish when ice has formed in the guides of your reel, you will be out of luck, until the guide is cleared. The modus operandi under such conditions is to dunk the entire rod, even the reel, into the water. That will clear the reel and the guides.

NOW FOR A look-see at the local bass picture. Fishing for stripers in the San Pablo and Suisun bays is strictly a case of "some do, but others don't." Results are spotty, but fish are being taken in the upper San Pablo and the middle and lower Suisun Bay, and some mighty nice stripers have been taken. Just learned that a south county angler, Chet Anderson, hooked and landed his dream fish. Said lunker weighed in (on accurate scales) at 40 pounds, eight ounces. Cheers for Chet, right?

The latest report from up the Klamath, the Happy Camp region is on hand. Jim Roads reports river in good shape, lots of fish in most areas; weather clear and cold, but warming after old Sol starts shining. Jim says: "I believe steelhead can be taken now on flies. Best bets are, 1/8-ounce red-tipped Little Jewel and Little Cleo, fresh roe and nightcrawlers. Fish are averaging four pounds with a few going to seven pounds or better. Present conditions should prevail for several weeks."

TOO BAD that the gunning set didn't get much hunting in the experimental six-county late season. Many of the areas were closed to hunting because of crops still unharvested, but the season is still open—will be until the day after Christmas. If you have gained permission from a land owner to hunt his acres, that's fine; you may get some last-minute pheasant hunting. Hope so, anyhow.

A dedicated angler living on my block informed me he uses a pocket warmer and alternates his hands while fishing. Nifty, eh? You can pick up a pocket heater in most sporting goods stores.

Color Line Broken For Blue-Gray Tilt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — If you believe in the law of averages, put your support behind the South to win tomorrow's Blue-Gray football game.

But if you think the outcome of the Christmas Day encounter will be decided by the caliber of the players, it might be a different story.

The rival squads of college seniors from above and below the Mason-Dixon Line are evenly matched.

Negroes will be in the line-up for the first time since the intersectional clash began more than two decades ago. And because the color barriers have fallen, the game will be televised nationally for the first time since 1962.

NBC dropped the telecast because of the policy against using Negro players, and for two years it was broadcast over an independent regional network.

Tomorrow's game will be carried nationally by CBS. The kickoff is at 1 p.m. PST.

The Southern all-stars have won 15 of the 26 Blue-Gray contests, the Northerners 11. And with two exceptions — in 1945 and 1959 — the Rebels have triumphed in every off-numbered year.

Consequently, if the law of averages prevails, it's the South's turn again this year. The Yankees won last year 10-6.

The Northern squad has two Negroes on its defensive team, 225-pound end Jim Long of Purdue and 248-pound Iowa tackle Bill Briggs.

When the Southerners have the ball a Florida A&M Negro, Eugene Thomas, will be in the backfield. On defense, the Rebels will use Thomas' teammate from Tallahassee, Johnny Holmes, at tackle.

The head coach for the Grays, Bill Elias of Navy, will be counting heavily on Texas A&I's Little All-America quarterback Randy Johnson, along with hard-running Mike Dennis of Ole Miss.

Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue, directing the Yankee strategy, has Fred Custardo of Illinois and Sonny Stowers of Army among his backfield performers.

Drake Loses Game And A Player

The Drake High School "B" basketball team lost a game and a player yesterday in the final day's action of the Jefferson "B" tourney in Daly City.

In the second quarter of Drake's 55-28 loss to San Mateo, top Pirate scorer Curry Miller fell and broke his left arm. He will be out for the season. Earlier this season, the only returning starter from last year, leg in an auto accident and was also lost for the season.

Drake had won their game Wednesday 41-30 over Oceana as Miller scored 14 and Bob Girvin and Dave Alvarado added nine each.

Casper's In Lucky Field

Bill Casper, 34-year-old golf pro representing Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club of San Rafael, has entered the 1966 Lucky International Golf Tourney to be held Jan. 24-30 at San Francisco's Harding Park.

Casper had a most successful season on the pro tour this year, winning the Bob Hope Classic in Palm Springs, the Western Open in Chicago and the Insurance City Open in Hartford, Conn. The Lucky title has eluded him in the five years it has been held. This time the purse will be $50,000.

Terra Linda Wins

The Terra Linda varsity basketball team thumped its Alumni squad with a 30-point third quarter last night and waltzed to a 71-44 victory before a crowd estimated by coach George Starn to be about 700 at the high school.

West End Quint Wins Cage Tilt

Denny Untermann scored 31 points yesterday to lead West End Nursery past the Huskers 87-41 in Adult C League action in San Rafael. Ron Pedersen and Fred Hilton each had 12 for the losers. Scotto's won the other C game by forfeit over the Do Goods.

Mike Wroblewski hit 20 as the Bus Stoppers downed Fox Petroleum Co. 48-37. Tom Corbett had 13 for Fox in the B game. In the other B tilt Ron Blum's 23 points sqarked Brandon Tires to a close 66-62 win over the Mill Valley Boys Club.

Drake Wins In 'B' Tourney

Drake High School's Class B cagers were playing San Mateo's "B" team today for the consolation title of the Jefferson Lightweight tournament going on in Daly City.

The Pirate babes whipped Oceana 41-30 yesterday to gain a berth in the finals today. Jim Miller led the Drake scoring yesterday with 14 points.

Marin 'Cats Blow Lead, Lose 47-29

Marin Catholic's cagers blew a 21-17 halftime lead yesterday when they managed only eight points in the second half to fall to Mission High of San Francisco, 47-29.

The Wildcats were outscored 11-1 in the third quarter and 19-7 in the final stanza. Wildcat fouling had much to do with their defeat, as Mission made 11 free throws to Marin's five, the Bears having many more opportunities from the charity stripe.

The main cog in the Mission offense was 6-6 center Hiram Peterson, who at 16 years of age is still a bit uncoordinated but worked easily around the basket for 17 points against the rather short Wildcats. Marin center Bob Lombardi, 6-2, accumulated four fouls in the first half trying to guard Peterson. Bruce Taylor hit eight for eight from the foulline for Mission, which only brought five players.

Mike Lasater and Ches Bornia led Marin with 10 each. The Wildcats play next at home against St. Joseph's Tuesday. Tipoff will be at 7 p.m.

Scoring:
Mission	11	6	11	19	—47

A Team Is Available To Help Plan Estates

By ANDREW BALDWIN

Long ago, our courts pointed out that paying the largest tax is not a necessary element of patriotism. All of us know the difference between evading and avoiding taxes.

Our current federal tax laws actually show the way to the postponement of substantial amounts of estate taxes.

While the primary parties in a tax-saving effort are the property owner and his heirs, there is also a supporting staff, and each member can and does make a substantial contribution toward minimizing the tax cost in an estate.

The supporting staff includes the insurance underwriter, the trust officer, the accountant, and the attorney.

The underwriter demonstrates the need for liquidity to pay taxes and expenses and thus forestalls sales of valuable estate property. The accountant in addition to his other functions can be helpful in estimating the property values on which the plans will be based. The trust officer may explain to the property owner the general areas of tax savings and services for those who establish irrevocable trusts and testamentary trusts to reduce successive tax bites. It is the attorney who ties together the many family and tax-saving objectives of the property owner, the contracts provided by the underwriter, and the services of the trust officer's organization — all into an integrated plan suited to the client and the client's heirs.

The property owners' heirs may be primary parties in this tax-saving effort because they can encourage early and informed estate planning, restraining the property owners from making gifts without proper legal and tax advice, drawing holographic wills, or shortcutting the transfer of property by such devices as joint tenancy.

All too frequently the result of no planning at all or planning without competent advice is that the heirs, themselves, pay the penalty through higher, unexpected, and unnecessary outlays of tax money.

As the property owner, you could dispose of some or all of your estate during your lifetime with most interesting tax results. You could make use of gift tax exclusions and exemptions, transfer income-tax responsibility in the property given, pay no estate or gift tax on charitable donations, and if you must pay a gift tax, you would be told that it is much less than the estate tax.

Post-mortem tax planning complements this advance lifetime planning by working out efficiently and economically the various programs designed to save taxes.

Tax returns must be accurate, must be filed promptly, be complete in all respects, and must take advantage of all proper deductions, exemptions, exclusions, credits, options, discounts, and installment payments that the tax law allows, and must avoid all penalties and interest.

Property evaluation is also a must important part of post-mortem tax planning, for on the valuation of the estate, executor, attorney, and appraiser fees are fixed, taxes of all types are assessed, and such values establish the basis for capital gain or loss on later sale. A recently reported estate found the appraiser fixing a value on a farm close to a growing city at $157,000, with federal taxing authorities making an estimate of $897,000. The tax court finally fixed a value of $240,000. As you can see, whatever value would have been accepted would have had an immediate effect on inheritance-tax and federal estate tax costs, depreciation schedules now and capital gains later.

Oldsters May Lose Out On Security Check

About 500 oldsters have been found in Marin County who qualify for new social security benefits who never before have been eligible to receive a social security check.

But there are twice as many in the county who could also receive the benefits if they only could be found and told about the new law, according to an estimate made by Patrick M. Stevens, social security district manager for San Rafael.

The law's feature affects persons previously denied benefits because they had less than six quarters, about 18 months, coverage under social security.

Now men 76 or older, and women 73 or older, may receive $35 a month if they have nine months work covered by social security.

Men 75 years old now need only four quarters, about a year, and 74-year-olds need five quarters. Women now 72 need four quarters, and women who will be 72 next year may qualify on their birthdays if they have five quarters work.

In addition, if a husband worked long enough to qualify, a wife may be entitled to $17.50 a month when they are 72, and some widows will be eligible for $35 when they are 72.

Stevens said anyone who believes he may be eligible should contact the nearest social security office for more information.

Boy Can't Hide Fiery Pastime

SAN JOSE (UPI)—A 6-year-old boy tried to hide a fire under his bed. It didn't work.

Fire investigators said the lad admitted he set fire to some papers while playing with matches Wednesday. Trying to hide the evidence, he slid it under the bed and went into the living room to watch television with his five brothers and sisters.

An older brother smelled smoke and called firemen who extinguished the flames after two bedrooms and a bath had been destroyed.

Economist Sees Less Growth In Next Year

NEW YORK — One of the nation's top airline economists predicts that it will be difficult in 1966 to match the 1965 growth of about 5 per cent in the economy and 16 per cent in the airline industry.

George P. Hitchings, vice president for economic research and financial relations of American Airlines, said in a yearend review that the most likely prospect is a growth moderately less than these amounts, but still well above average.

Pork Prices Likely To Fall Next Spring

This means farmers definitely have started expanding swine production, which would cut the retail price of pork.

SELMA PROJECT

Ex-Tam Teacher Helps Hospital

A former Tamalpais High School teacher who went to Selma, Ala., for the Selma to Montgomery march last spring, is now director of the Selma Hospital Fund Committee.

Maxwell A. Hull (known as "Mac") of 81 Rollingwood Drive, San Rafael, gave up a planned trip to Europe for graduate study to work for Good Samaritan Hospital in Selma.

Hull said he "fell in love with the work being done at the Good Samaritan Hospital" when he was in Selma and "decided then that something should be done to bring this great positive story to the attention of my fellow westerners."

Good Samaritan Hospital, with a patient load 99 per cent Negro, serves a six-county area and has grown from a store-front clinic dispensing out-patient care to a complete medical complex.

Hull, operating out of headquarters in San Francisco, travels to major metropolitan areas throughout the west to outline the hospital's needs and tell of the work being done there.

The hospital was established in 1943-44 by the Fathers of St. Edmund, a Catholic order, dedicated to serving the Negro poor in the South.

In 1947 Good Samaritan constructed an 85-bed, two-story hospital, the first such facility for Negroes in Dallas County. In 1950 a school of licensed practical nursing for Negroes was opened, ad in 1957, the hospital established a 26-bed nursing home.

The greatest expansion came last Christmas when a four-story, modern facility was opened. It is the tallest building in Selma and the second largest employer in the community, and its sole support comes from donations.

Unruh Warns Of Wrath If Speakr Battle Arises

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, has told members of the Assembly he will consider it a person affront for anyone to carry on any active or open campaigning for the speakership job.

Rumor has it that Unruh will seek election to one of the new State Senate districts in Los Angeles County next year, leaving his present powerful job vacant. Rumor also has it that Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, is Unruh's handpicked successor.

However, Assemblyman Carlos Bee, D-Hayward, speaker pro tempore for the past seven years, also is seeking the speakership and has been attempting to line up support.

Unruh is expected to announce his political intentions at a testimonial and fund-raising dinner in his honor in Los Angeles on Jan. 13. Meanwhile, he has sent letters to all members.

"I would like all of my colleagues to know that I have made no decision with references to my own plans nor have I made any announcement about them," Unruh said.

Unruh said he felt it was perfectly natural and proper for members to discuss their views of the situation and their preferences.

"I do not, however, believe members ought to sign or make pledges or publish lists of supporters in advance of any opening in the position of speaker of the Assembly," he said. "Being the occupant of that position, for as long as my colleagues will tolerate me, I must regard active and open campaigning for the position as a personal affront."

Unruh said things might be changing rapidly, back and forth, in the next few weeks and members should refrain from becoming publicly committed. He said it was uncertain what the 1967 session would hold until the 20 to 28 new assemblymen take their seats.

Assessment Plan Gains Backing

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District board voted Tuesday to set up an assessment district to finance sewers for the Harbor Point development on Strawberry Point, secretary Alfred O. Pratesi reported.

The board learned from the district's attorney, Sherrod Davis, that easement deeds have been obtained from four Strawberry residents for a sewer main across their property from Harbor Point to the Salt Works Canal pumping station. Negotiations with a fifth resident are continuing, Davis reported.

The board discussed retirement benefits and a hospital plan for district employees but took no action.

Chris-Craft Gets Senior Debt Aid

NEW YORK — Chris-Craft Industries, Inc., has announced that it has completed negotiations with a group of institutional lenders for refinancing senior indebtedness of the bay area company and its boating and television subsidiaries.

The resulting $19 million senior note of the parent company is due in 1984 with sinking fund payments commencing after three years.

On the basis of current estimates the company's earnings for the year ending Dec. 31 should approximate $2 per share. This compares with $1.37 earned in the prior year, in both cases after adjustment for the 5 per cent stock dividend payable Dec. 30.

'Peace On Earth' Is Wish For Every Day Of Year

The message of "Peace" and "Goodwill" may sound like cruel mockery in a time of strife and suffering.

Instead of peace, we think in terms of a huge network of anti-missile defense. Instead of goodwill, we look to intercontinental ballistic missiles with nuclear warheads.

But the ageless message bearing the words "peace" and "goodwill" is still mankind's only hope for ultimate survival.

"Peace on earth; goodwill to men." The message is being repeated between individuals and among nations.

The exchange will be accompanied this year with gratitude, sorrow, prayer and hope.

Gratitude to the thousands of men and women who face strife in its most brutal form in far-flung corners of the world, so that the rest of us can live in peace and in comfort.

Sorrow, which only the loved ones can really feel, for those who have given their all.

Hearts go out to the suffering, with a fervent prayer for their quick recovery.

And most of all, we all look forward to the day when peace and goodwill become more than just whispered hopes in a world bristling with arms and animosities.

We join peoples of all nations in expressing those hopes, as Pope John XXIII did in his encyclical "Pacem in Terris":

"May He banish from the hearts of men whatever might endanger peace, may He transform them into witnesses of truth, justice, and brotherly love.

"May He enlighten the rulers of peoples so that in addition to their solicitude for the proper welfare of their citizens, they may guarantee and defend the great gift of peace.

"Finally, may Christ enkindle the wills of all, so that they may overcome the barriers that divide, cherish the bonds of mutual charity, understand others, and pardon those who have done them wrong. By virtue of His action, may all peoples of the earth become as brothers, and may the most longed-for peace blossom forth and reign always between them. . . ."

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

DIKE HELD BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Teen-agers saved the flood-threatened town of Stillwater, Minn., by building and manning the dike that protected the downtown district.

Many towns, in fact, throughout the Midwest, were safeguarded from the rampaging rivers by young people from hundreds of colleges and high schools.

They hurried out after classes to the swollen riverbanks, often working throughout the night living on potato chips, coffee, ice cream and candy bars.

One night at the dike, when new bags arrived to be filled with sand, the call was issued for volunteers. "Within 15 minutes," the town's mayor exclaimed, "they passed the word and 200 kids were on the dike."

Persons, young or old, who respond to an emergency situation show the enormous and scarcely tapped resources God has put in them.

Seek to provide incentives and outlets for those who want to do more for humanity on a long-term and continuing basis.

MARIN POLITICAL VIEWS

The Lure Of Mistletoe Banishes Animosities Of Political Life

By WAT TAKESHITA

Takeshita

Even politics seems to take a holiday this time of year.

You make the rounds of holiday parties and find partisans from both ends of the political spectrum toasting each other in the good old holiday spirit.

Inside, they may be shooting daggers at each other, but outwardly it's peace and goodwill to all.

It's all very heartwarming, especially the spirits.

Sure, the talk sometimes turns to politics, but comments that normally bite have been softened at the edges.

THIS IS THE one season when Dr. Gaylord Parkinson's 11th Commandment is at its glory. "Thou shalt not speak ill of other Republicans" is extended to include all "good Democrats," especially if he's the host dispensing drinks from behind the bar.

But when the year-end daze is over, and the new year rolls around, the differences will come back into focus. And this is how it will look:

ON JAN. 4, actor Ronald Reagan is scheduled to announce his long-awaited decision — to run for governor.

(Our part-time staff member, young Glen Becker, almost had a "scoop" on this item about Reagan's Jan. 4 announcement. Becker, a student at University of California, writes a column for the Daily Californian. As early as Thursday, Dec. 9, he had the information and tapped out his column, for Monday (Dec. 13) publication. But during that weekend the information leaked out of Southern California).

But our boy Becker had it first!

Former U.S. Attorney and crime buster Laughlin Waters is very much in the running for Republican nomination for governor.

But political pundits in the Bay Area foresee a congealing of the moderates around George Christopher of San Francisco. It could well be that the race will narrow down to Reagan vs. Christopher for the Republican nomination.

BILL WEISSICH, who headed the county's campaign for Barry Goldwater last year, is not likely to be the county chairman for Reagan in the coming campaign.

For one thing, his law practice is keeping Weissich hopping, and he has been court-appointed to defend a young man in the re-trial of a murder case in Fairfield. (He was convicted the first time around). And that trial should be coming up during the height of the primary campaign.

THE NATIONAL Beautification Act got such a boost from Mrs. Lyndon Johnson that it was called "Lady Bird's bill."

California, not to be outdone, has scheduled a "Governor's Conference on California Beauty" in Los Angeles on Jan. 11 and 12. And guess who's heading the state-wide citizens' advisory committee? It's California's "Lady Bird," Mrs. Edmund G. Brown.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

We All Can Help Human Rights

Editor, Independent-Journal:

It is with considerable hope that I have read the conclusions of the Marin Symposium on human rights. Here in Marin there is a chance reason may prevail.

By the account in the I-J, most of the 160 attendees seemed ready to reconsider the popular idealistic obsession that in human affairs you can accomplish more with persuasion. For years conservatives have tried to get across the point that you can't force people to love each other. Dr. Joseph L. White, the Negro psychologist who participated in the symposium said, as Sen. Barry Goldwater said last year—the solution to the problems of racial discrimination lies in changing the hearts and minds of men.

I agree with the conclusions of the symposium. The answer to the question "What can we do?" is "Whatever we can"—each as individuals.

Some positive actions we can take include:

1. Use all that money and energy wasted in demonstrations to motivate Negroes to continue their education.

2. Encourage self improvement. Not one major civil rights leader says "Don't flunk out." They coax the very children who need education the most out of the classrooms and into the streets.

3. Build Negro businesses. Why do Negroes let their money go out of Negro hands? Negro businessmen now loudly complain that Negro organizations bypass their restaurants and services just so they can say "we are integrated."

4. Build racial pride in Negro history and traditions.

5. Forget that fright peddling . . . point out the good in people instead of the bad.

6. Publicize positive actions.

Where and when can we as individuals do some of these things? We can start today in our civic clubs, our bridge clubs, business, P-TA's, political organizations . . .

Right Action From Thought

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The following is quoted from Walter Lippman's column:

"I found that the most sophisticated South Americans feel that Washington is so preoccupied with its black and white anti-communism that it is not putting its mind seriously on solving the problems which generate communism. 'What your people do not understand,' said an official who has wrestled with our delegation at the Rio conference, 'is that in Latin America communism is not the supreme evil you say it is but the only alternative in case we fail to ovecome what we regard as the supreme evils of poverty and despair.' "

In other words the people of Latin America are embracing communism; because what we have to offer, is not very effective.

The following quote is from Henry George's "Social Problems" written in New York in 1883.

"Whoever, laying aside prejudice and self-interest, will honestly and carefully make up his own mind as to the causes and the cure of the social evils that are so apparent, does, in that, the most important thing in his power toward their removal.

"Social reform is not to be secured by noise and shouting; by complaints and denunciation; by the formation of parties, or the making of revolutions; but the awakening of thought and the progress of ideas. Until there be correct thought, there cannot be right action; and when there is correct thought, right action will follow. Power is always in the hands of the people. What oppresses the people is their own ignorance, their own short-sighted selfishness."

Each individual approaches the Truth by independent means.

You Can Be Glad For Flag Wavers

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In reply to Mr. Kerss' letter of 20 December, I state that I too am getting a little tired —nay, absolutely tired of this type drivel that flows forth from the pens of those who would look down on people who do wave the American flag.

Specifically I take issue with the statement: "We condemned Hitler's Germans of crimes against humanity. But we are as guilty today." Where does the guilt lie? I suppose it is all right for the Viet Cong to murder a whole South Vietnamese village or possibly just a few of its leaders. It's A-okay for Uncle Ho's boys to stroll through Laos, a nonbelligerent, en route to South Viet Nam where these playful fellows toss a few grenades at innocent civilians . . . But if the United States drops bombs on the North or if the GIs use tear gas to flush out the Viet Cong, then this becomes American atrocities in your eyes.

If we write off Viet Nam and pull out we may wake up to find the maps changing. China could extend from the Russian border to the southern tip of what was once India (a sovereign state now) to the bottom of Korea (remember that place?) . . .

I, for one, believe it when China says that war with the United States is inevitable, so I'm for conducting it on our terms for a change. No more Pearl Harbors for me.

One more thing, Mr. Kerss, I do not happen to be too old or decrepit to fight. I'm not a school dropout, hoodlum or bum. In fact I have spent the last fifteen years "putting up" in the Air Force while you, no doubt, have been tending the home fires of Mill Valley. Be glad there are flag wavers in this country. It helps keep a red star from flying over the capital in Washington.

PLAYWRIGHT Sam Behrman, intent upon acquiring a new rug for his study, encountered one Armenian merchant who gave him a ten-minute lecture on the superior qualities of all the floor-coverings in his emporium. Seeking to stem the flow of eloquence, Behrman exclaimed reverently, "Mr. Kabvotzian, you certainly know the rug business." Mr. Kabvotzian replied, "Mister, I know the business so well that rugs are afraid of me!!"

GOP Watchdogs Must Be Nice While Watching Poverty War

WASHINGTON—The Republican Party faces a dilemma from which it urgently needs to free itself.

If the GOP keeps a sharp and exposing eye on the muddles and scandals churned up by the anti-poverty program, it runs the risk of being punished by the same public it is trying to serve.

ENOUGH HAS gone wrong at the edges of the anti-poverty administration to warn that shoddy abuses are lurking at its heels.

This is the very point at which the Republican dilemma is acute:

There will be a strong public demand to keep the anti-poverty administration on its toes and to expose scandal and mismanagement wherever they show their face.

But there will be a sharp adverse public reaction if the investigating Republicans leave any impression that they are hostile to the purposes of the anti-poverty program, or are exposing its mistakes to hamper it rather than to help it.

This is why Rep. Charles E. Goodell of New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy and Planning Committee, is doing his party—and the public—a good service by circulating to the entire GOP membership this twin admonition: (1) Watch for abuses and wrong-doing in the administration of the anti-poverty program; (2) support it strongly every time you speak out against its shortcomings.

Goodell feels — and many agree with him—that the anti-poverty program rests upon such a loosely drawn law, creating a loose administration, that "abuses and scandals are almost inevitable."

HIS VIEW finds support from one of the strong friends of the program, the National Committee for an Effective Congress, which warns that, with all the new programs burgeoning in Washington, it will "take a miracle to avoid the development of at least one politically damaging scandal."

But Goodell does not want to see the GOP make the mistake of simply charging out with all spears at the ready against abuse and scandal, and simultaneously leave the impression that they are aiming at the poor.

"It is imperative," he is telling his colleagues, that they show "they are in favor of helping the poor"—in actions as well as in words.

Because of the GOP minority position in Congress, which enables the Democrats to turn down everything until they are ready to act, the Republican record doesn't get the attention it deserves. On anti-poverty measures, it is a constructive and forehanded record.

AS FAR BACK AS 1961, the Republicans sponsored an amendment to the Juvenile Delinquency Act to set up a head start program. They also sponsored a pilot job corps proposal in 1963. These measures were opposed by the administration at the time.

Take another example. In the 1965 poverty debate the Republicans offered an amendment to require involving of the poor at policy level, but it was opposed by nearly all the Democrats on the Labor and Education Committee. Committee Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N. Y., who has lately been trumpeting his plea that the poor ought to participate, rejected the amendment on the ground it was unnecessary.

The House Republican Anti-Poverty Committee, led by Rep. Albert Quie of Minnesota, is doing well in pushing for adequate representation of the poor on local community action boards. This is not the road to riots and chaos; it is the road away from them.

INVOLVEMENT of the poor in the poverty program needs conservative support and it is getting it in Goodell's ardent plea to his fellow Republicans.

Public Service Camps For War Objectors?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — "Civilian public service camps" for conscientious objectors may soon be put into operation for the first time since World War II.

On orders of President Johnson, the Defense Department is making a survey of a number of "surplus" military installations for possible use as camps for conscientious objectors.

Selective Service records indicate there already are more than 5,000.

Most of them are filling out their draft service working in state hospitals and mental institutions under supervision of local draft boards. Several hundred others who were inducted in the Army but whose religious beliefs bar their bearing arms are serving in military hospitals and other noncombatant capacities.

REPORTS FROM state Selective Service headquarters indicate draft boards are rapidly exhausting places to assign conscientious objectors.

With Vet Nam troop requirements and casualties running higher than originally planned, Pentagon chiefs now believe monthly draft calls will have to be considerably increased early next year.

Increased draft calls will unquestionably mean more conscientious objectors. That will require expanded measures and facilities to handle them. Whether they will be put into special World War II-type camps is still not definitely decided. But preparations are being made for that contingency.

Also under study is assigning conscientious objectors to "civic action" work in the anti-poverty program.

WAR FLASHES—Since Congress adjourned several months ago, more than 100 members have visited Viet Nam, and another 50 are expected there before the legislators reconvene in January. A large number of the lawmakers plan to make verbal and written reports on what they saw and what they think about it.

Sen. Ernest Gruening, D. Alaska, who did not go to Viet Nam, is planning to offer what may be the most explosive proposal—a bill to bar sending draftees to the war zone. To force action on his measure, Gruening is considering offering it as an amendment to a pending administration bill. The issue is certain to precipitate a bitter wrangle.

The leftist-led Students for a Democratic Society are preparing to expand their anti-Viet Nam agitating to high schools and junior colleges. The SDS will send university students to pre-draft-age schools to distribute literature and stage anti-war meetings.

INSIDE THE MAFIA—Samuel Giancana is still in jail; Thomas Luchese remains in serious condition from a physical breakdown he suffered in July; Murry ("The Camel") Humphreys is dead; and Angelo Bruno is showing signs of becoming more uneasy every day.

These men have at least two things in common—they are (or were) top leaders in the organized underworld, and they have the FBI to thank (or blame) for their ill fate.

Giancana, reputed member of La Cosa Nostra's ruling "Commission" as boss of the Chicago "family," has been in jail since June for refusing to answer questions by a federal grand jury after being granted immunity from prosecution.

Mount Tam Resident Remembers Too Much To Welcome Christmas

There is a man who lives in a former coachman's cottage on Mount Tamalpais who says he no longer celebrates Christmas. He is Benny Kisban, hermit.

BORN IN BUDAPEST, Hungary, he lived many years in Transylvania. His father was Lutheran, his mother Catholic and the custom in Hungary was for male children to follow their father's religion and females their mother's. Kisban is a Lutheran.

"I was always a firm anti-communist," said Kisban. "But my God came under the hands of the communists." He attributes his strong moral character to his religious upbringing.

"I don't drink, don't smoke and don't go to the woman," he says. He has no car.

Asked about Christmas in Hungary, he said that as a child he celebrated the Sixth of December, the so-called name day of Nicolaus. "The child cleaned his shoes nicely, polished them and put them in the window. The story was that Santa Claus came during the night, and filled the shoes of the good children with candies and, for the bad ones, brought a switch."

EVERYTHING was done for the children and almost secretly. The family bought a Christmas tree and put it in a room which was separate and lockable. When the children were in bed, the grownups decorated the tree.

"All the gifts were put below the tree. On Christmas Eve they illuminated the tree with candles. The whole family went before the tree and prayed and sang carols and distributed gifts, the wife for the husband and the husband for the wife. Then came the Christmas dinner and later the neighbors might come in. At midnight the Catholics went to church and, earlier, the Protestants went to their church.

Kisban remembers that before World War I Hungarians had a white Christmas with snow. After the war they began to get a "black Christmas," which he said means no snow but either rain or mud.

"I lost all my mood about the holidays because my native country's capital, Budapest, was encircled by the communists in 1944 during Christmas Eve. My mother was killed by bombing during the seige. So Christmas is a very sad remembrance for Hungarians from 1944."

Kisban said he has no friends now, lives "like a hermit." He said, "I do nothing." He has only his books, his classical music on radio and he loves nature.

Kisban was a pharmacist until he came to the U. S. at 47, why, because his degree was not recognized, he could not become a pharmacist. He worked gardening, picking oranges, washing dishes, "at everything."

HE LIVES a Thoreau-like existence in his redwood hut with only oven heat on $65 a month, except for rent. He is a vegetarian using honey for sweetening, buys remnants to make cushions, patches his clothing which he buys at rummage sales, sleeps in a sleeping bag on a cot and wishes for a real bed which he can't afford, goes for long walks on the mountain and, on New Year's Day, will be 64. "I was born in Budapest before sunrise," he says, "when all the people of New Year's Day were illuminated. I plan to die in Mill Valley."

A Sausalito "lunch mother" reports a bush caught fire the other day at Bayside School. "The bush broke into flames but wasn't consumed. This is terribly, terribly Biblical. This was the sign that the Lord gave to Moses."

SHE SAID THIS is spoken of in Exodus 3, verse 2: "And the Angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: And he looked and behold the bush burned with fire and the bush was not consumed."

John Milton Hagen, Mill Valley poet, song writer and author, said he once escorted the late W. Somerset Maugham around San Francisco. Hagen describes the famed story teller as a man with cutting wit and "a very sharp, black eye."

Florence Packard reports that a squirrel caught a cat at her house on Walnut Avenue. The cat had been coming onto her deck, pulling open the dog food sack and eating the food.

The squirrel, Buster, thinks this is his territory, said Florence. The other day Buster was on the deck and the cat rolled up the stairs. Buster came down a redwood tree after the cat, batting the cat. "The cat has never returned," said Florence.

Merry Christmas.

Prison Employees Due To Retire

Three San Quentin Prison employees will retire on New Year's Day after having been employed 11 to 20 years at the institution.

Dix C. Garland, 70, of 69 Wood Lane, Fairfax, will retire from his duties as storekeeper after having worked for 11 years at the prison. His wife, Helen, retired in May from her job as a stenographer after having been employed for 14 years at the prison.

Retiring correctional officers Francis McNeil, 65, of 27 Mountain View Avenue, Mill Valley, and Clemens J. Rennier, 65, who resides in San Quentin Village, have been employed at the institution since 1945.

True Thoughts Behind Flowery Diplomacy Can Be Fascinating

WASHINGTON—When Washington receives a head of state, many flowery words are exchanged, and since they are spoken in a diplomatic tongue, one cannot be sure what each party is really saying.

BY A NEW method of extra-sensory perception I was able to record not only the words but the thoughts of the principals involved.

The dialogue was between the President of Enchilada and a very high U.S. government official. Their thoughts are in (bold type).

The President of Enchilada spoke first. "I bring you warm greetings from my country and my people. I am happy to set foot on the great and wonderful United States and I am deeply moved by the overwhelming reception I have received today."

(This is a reception? I had more troops greet me in Zambia.)

"The United States is happy to welcome the leader of the free people of Enchilada. No one admires more than we the great strides you have made in your country and the great contributions you have made for peace and prosperity in our time."

(I wonder how much dough he's going to ask for?)

"We are a small country with many problems besetting us. We look to you, the most powerful nation on the face of the earth, to lend your full support to resolving the differences between us and the aggresive Upper Tamale over our legitimate rights to the Vale of Chili."

(This is your last chance. If you don't give us the planes and rockets we want, we know someone who will.)

"I have visited your country and I love your people. I even met one of your sheepherders. I know we can work together. We both want the same things, so we must find peaceful solutions to all problems and that is the task I have set above all others. We desire to help you."

(But if you play footsie with Red China once more, it's curtains for you and your crummy friends.)

"Your country and your people have been most generous in coming to the aid of little Enchilada and I would be the first to admit it. My people look to you for hope and encouragement in the dark days that lie ahead. All we ask is your understanding."

(And for you to stay the hell out of Upper Tamale. We would have had them licked if it hadn't been for the tanks and arms you sent them.)

"The United States is deeply grieved by the tragic events that have taken place between our two dearest friends, Enchilada and Upper Tamale. We must bind the wounds and sit down and talk out our differences. For the only ones who will gain by this dispute are the Communists."

(You'd think they would have something better to do than to fight over a useless piece of real estate.)

"My hopes and prayers have always been to live with our neighbors. We will pursue every avenue of peace, no matter how difficult or how trying these negotiations will be."

(Give me three squadrons of B-52s and I'll settle the Upper Tamale problem overnight.)

"But in exchange for our support, Mr. President, we hope you will support us in our endeavors in Southeast Asia where we are trying to find a just solution to a very difficult situation."

(A lot you care about what's happening in Viet Nam.)

"The United States problems are our problems."

(You should have gotten out of Viet Nam long ago.)

"I assure you, Mr. President, we will always be brothers, for the things that bind us far outweigh the things that pull us apart."

(I hope he finishes soon so I can get a nap before that damn state dinner.)

"You have said the words that have been on my lips."

(Boy, would I like to get a nap before that damn state dinner.)

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Marin Officials' Statements In Recent Sessions Recalled

FUSSELMAN

SOME QUOTES from the supervisors' meeting Tuesday, and other quotes:—The chairman, addressing the supervisor from Ross Valley, "That's a form of blackmail that I resent"—and then later, "Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds." The Ross Valley man took exception and insisted that the chairman's statement be entered in the minutes and that it was "completely discourteous" and petty. The chairman replied that the Ross Valley man was being childish.

The meeting Tuesday, Dec. 14 produced, among other things, this: The supervisor from District One, while debating whether to hire a coordinator for the school department to carry on with the job training program and, who was to be paid $13,750 per year (only $2,277 of which was being requested from county funds)—"The fact of the matter is that the county schools office is down the drain. I don't think we should build in programs just to forestall that." He is reported to have gone on to say that when the county schools office is no longer needed it would be "a happy day for taxpayers."

It might be well to call his attention to some things the administrator said in a speech at a meeting of the North Coast section of the California Supervisors Assn., in February of this year:

He pointed out the relevance of our need for a revision of the California State Constitution. With a word of warning he advised that in the San Francisco Bay area the monster of urban political planners known as metro or regional government was with us . . . In his opinion, "many of the functions now discharged by counties will be transferred to regional government where they can less expensively and best be carried out!" (I am copying the above from the official publication.)

YOU HAVE JUST had occasion to pay your tax bills, so supose we consider these comments of the two men. It looks like the old story of the glass house and the throwing of stones.

The man from District One is slated to be chairman, come the first of the year. He has been a strong advocate of the administrator type of activity. He was one of those instrumental in paying the administrator $21,000 a year and with furnishing him with several assistants at some $13,000 (plus) besides a total staff of 15 or more.

Now he has moved to pay a salary of $15,600 a year (which was $2,500 more than was set up in the budget) for a man to head up a department of economic development to improve the tax base of the county.

Note that the statement was not to relieve the taxpayer. A larger base permits a greater escalation of spending.

WHEN HE FIRST was appointed to the board, he promoted $12,500 of county funds to sweeten up a fund with some developers to have an economic survey made by the Stanford Research people. I went along with him but was considerably disappointed with the result. I was not the only one who felt that way, either.

He was reported as saying he has some changes to propose in the conduct of the meetings and is not sure the other members of the board will agree to these. He kept trying to have the agenda we changed "to shorten the meetings". He finally succeeded the first of the year. Last Friday I mentioned the late adjournment hours as compared with 4:30, formerly. Well, Tuesday they adjourned at 7:45.

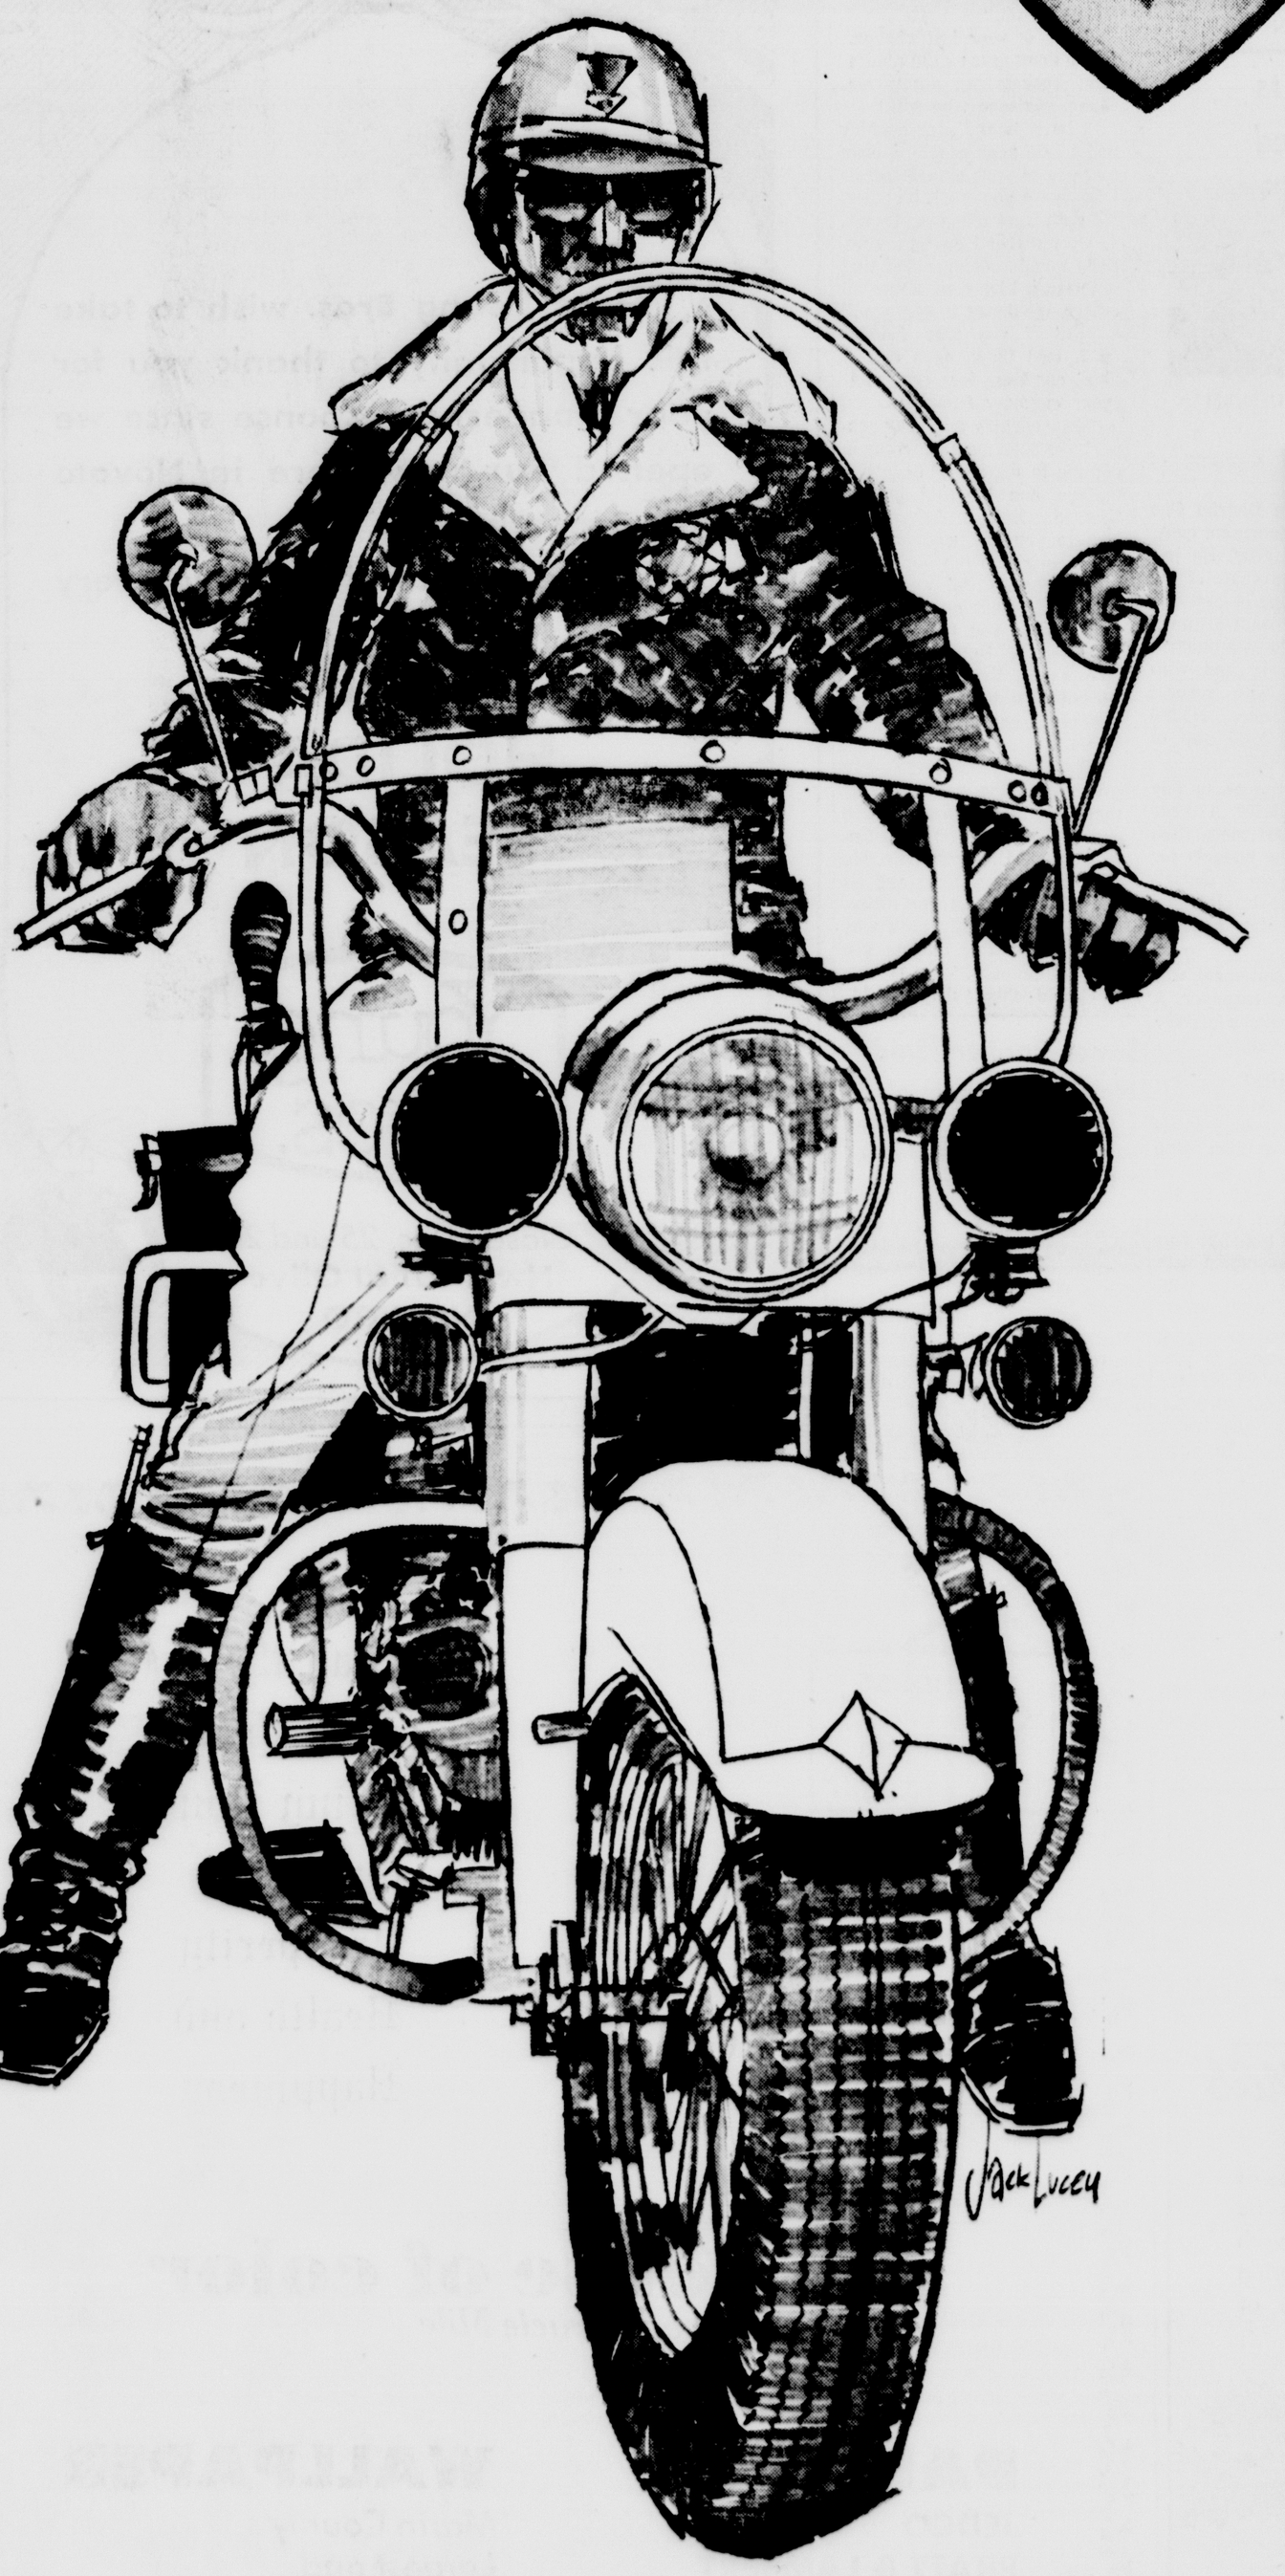
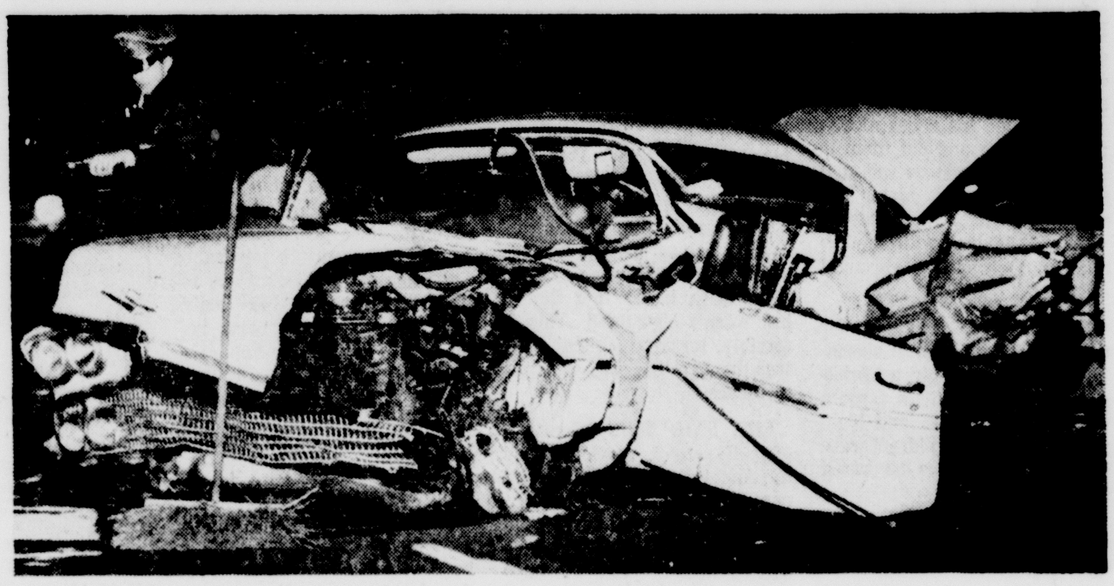
CALIFORNIA HIGHWAY PATROL

URGES YOU TO DRIVE SAFELY THIS HOLIDAY SEASON



Don't let an accident mar your holidays! Drive with caution and courtesy. The California Highway Patrol will be out in force to help keep traffic moving without incident or accident. Help them help you. It may save your life and that of others . . . especially now when holiday traffic is thick with danger.



3 DEAD! Car ran off roadway, struck bridge abutment just north of San Rafael. During 1965, to date, 29 persons have been killed in traffic accidents in Marin—mostly due to negligence.

4 DEAD! In this head-on collision, one vehicle was on the wrong side of the roadway. A regard for traffic laws and the other fellow can prevent most accidents. Resolve to drive carefully.

5 DEAD! In this head-on smash-up, on San Rafael overpass, one vehicle crossed the divider on a curve. The economic loss of accidents like this in Marin runs to $6,000,000 each year . . . much less the loss of life!

The California Highway Patrol and other law enforcement agencies can only help you if you help yourself. Don't challenge other cars—challenge yourself to be an expert, law-abiding driver! That could be the best New Year's resolution you'll ever make.

A MINISTER SAYS

'Christmas Is Contemporary'

(Editor's Note: It is the custom of the Marin Magazine to invite a member of the clergy to present a message of his choice to our readers at Christmas and again at Easter time. Rev. Don Schilling of the St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, Marin City, has chosen as his theme: "Christmas Is Contemporary.")

By REV. DON SCHILLING

At this time in history when increasingly within our world and nation we find class pitted against class and race against race the Christmas event takes on special significance.

For not only does it speak of a gospel which God makes freely available to all men, but it points further to a Lord who spent most of his earthly life trying to deliver the poor and oppressed peoples from their unjust plight. On both accounts the Christmas event speaks uniquely to our time. Let us first consider the relevance of a gospel which is for all men.

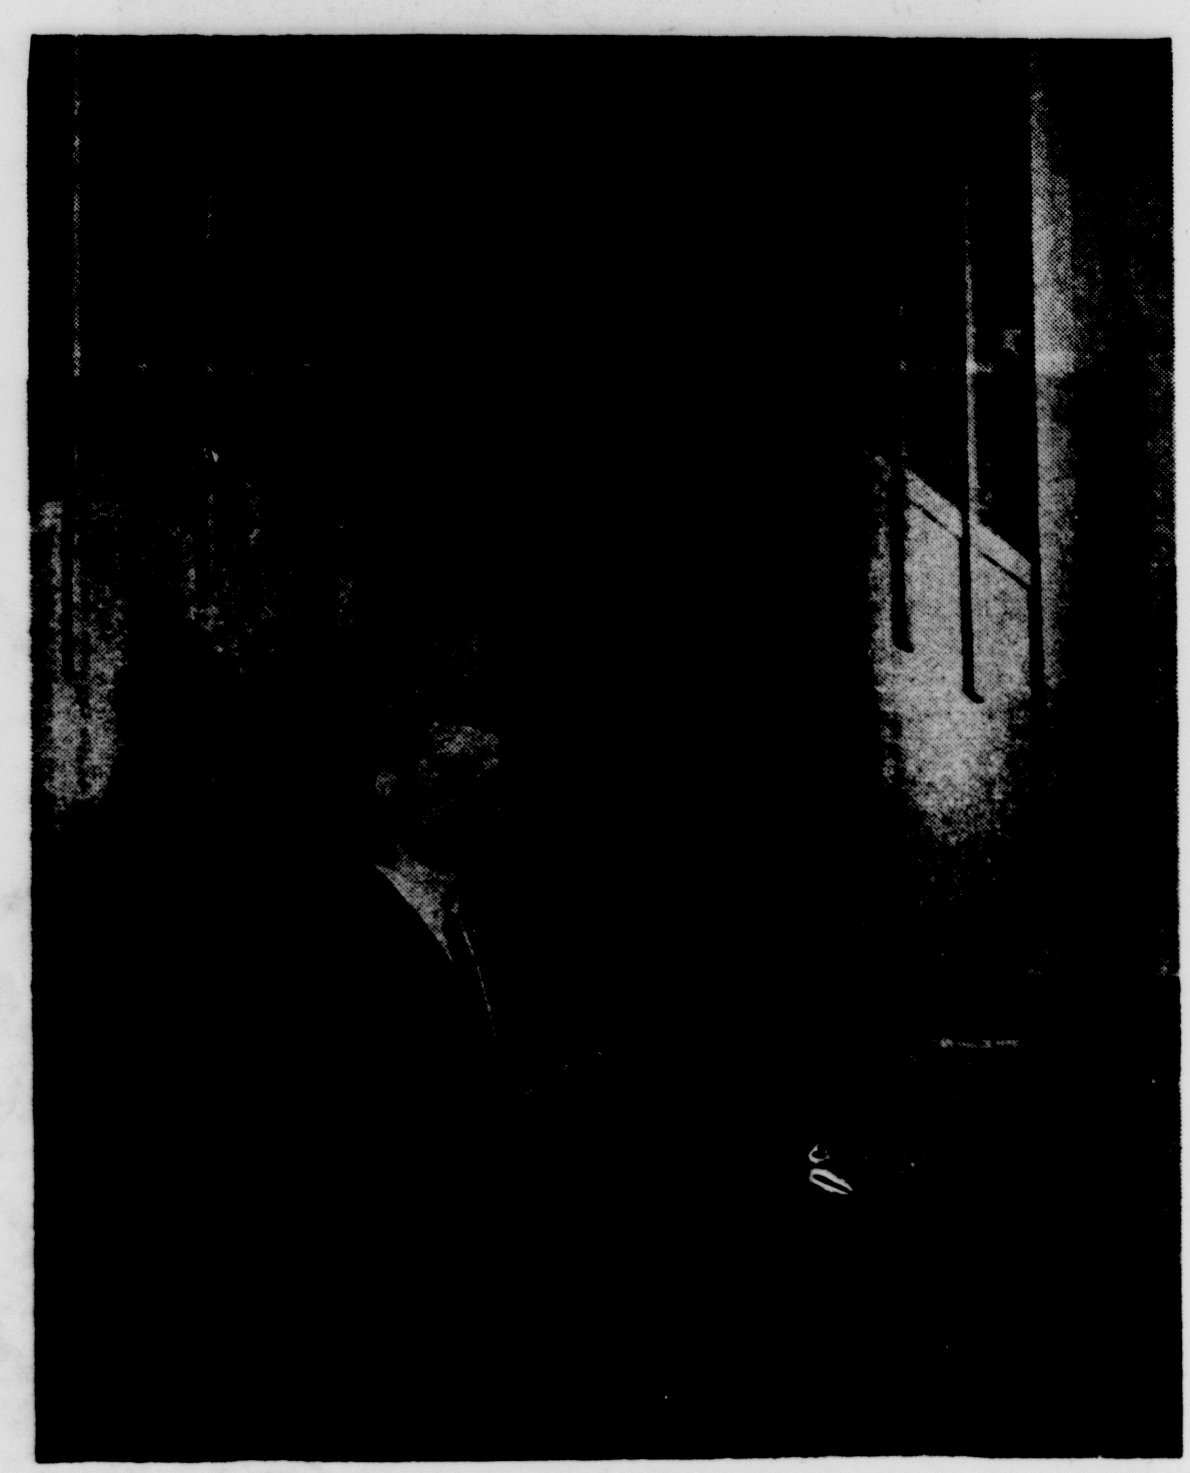
This point seems almost too obvious. The birth of Jesus at Bethlehem was made known both to simple shepherds of Judea and to wise men from far away regions; thus, signifying that Jesus had come for all people — for his own countrymen and others—for rich and poor alike. The truth here seems apparent enough. Yet in real life experience it was not apparent in Jesus' day, nor is it apparent today.

WHEN JESUS walked the earth and in the years immediately following, Jewish Christians would never have agreed that God had any use for every man. Jewish Christians of that period refused to accept the idea that their God was also God of the Gentiles. To them it seemed incredible, even blasphemous, that every man could be presented to God, that God actually wanted every man regardless of his condition, race, or class. In fact it wasn't until Paul was led to God to become a special missionary to the Gentiles that this narrow form of provincial theology began to be expanded.

So in Colossians we find Paul writing of what he describes as "the mystery hidden for ages and generations but now made manifest," namely, that the gospel was not only for Jews but for all men everywhere. Yet, today, some 2,000 years hence, the world is still faltering in its struggle to face up to the real life ramifications of that basic truth.

Recently President Lyndon B. Johnson declared a widely supported national day of prayer. Some have seen this as an attempt to win God over to the side of the United States in the war in Viet Nam.

Surely, it is true that theology which implies that God is a God of non-communist peoples only, or that everything our country does is right and everything another does is wrong, is erroneous. The Christmas event excludes belief in this kind of God and nullifies this kind of praying. Nationalistic theology is not Christian theology, and Christians can no longer afford the luxury of thinking of God in such provincial terms. The birth of Jesus in Bethlehem changed all that. God is the God of all mankind.



REV. DON SCHILLING has served the congregation of St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City for the past three years, coming there from Sacramento where he was director of a large settlement house in a community predominantly of Mexican ancestry and also on the staff of a large Presbyterian Church. Reverend Schilling is seen here in the sanctuary of the just completed new St. Andrew Church where he is co-pastor.

OF COURSE, the same holds true regarding the various classes and races of people within our own land. The ethnic and socio-economic makeup of our churches and communities shows that we have not yet taken seriously the God who loves and binds together the whole of society. We have failed to see Paul's discovery that God's love, in belonging to all, decisively cuts through the traditional injustices, hostilities and walls of separation that continue to keep us apart.

This leads me to my second point: Namely, that the Christmas event points to a Lord who speaks uniquely to our time for the simple reason that He spent most of His time delivering the poor and oppressed peoples of His day from their unjust plight. While His ministry was to loving salvation equally to all men, His birth in a lowly stable was indicative of His identification with low status people.

In fact, His quote from the prophet Isaiah one later day in the synagogue in Nazareth was actually to set the tone for His entire ministry: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has annointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed . . . " (Luke 4:18).

Yet again we find the unfortunate situation wherein neither the early church nor the church today has been able to accept or approximate Christ's identification with low status people.

IN THE EARLY church there was a strong group called Gnostics who didn't even believe that it was possible for the unsophisticated and uneducated to have enough knowledge of God to obtain salvation. The Gnostic believed rather than such knowledge was so involved and elaborate and difficult that only the spiritual elite could master it. Only the aristocratic few were wise enough to have full access to God.

It seems incomprehensible to us that intelligent Christian people could have been so narrow and stupid, doesn't it? But really, are we much different today? The answer is an unequivocal "no." For when one begins to talk in terms of the way most of today's educated, status-quo oriented, governmental bureaucrats deal with the poor of our own country, the parallel becomes altogether too clear.

In the first place, the poor person in our society is systematically denied (though usually unconsciously) the most basic God-given right that we have: Namely, the right to have something to say about his own life. He is kept voiceless and powerless and prevented from, in any significant way, shaping his own lot. His most crucial decisions are all made for him by someone who neither understands his needs nor has his best interests at heart. And if he is apathetic it is little wonder. For he is boxed in and unable to see any way out.

HE HAS LONG since come to know full well that few people in authority pay any attention to his grievances beyond merely giving lip service to them. Furthermore, when he attempts to organize his power (his only weapon) in order to be able to deal across the bargaining table as an equal, he is put down, being labeled a threat to the status quo and the public safety. Meanwhile all kinds of special public services, including much of the present anti-poverty program, are planned outside his community and continue to be imposed upon him, and the vicious circle starts over again.

Of course, the basic problem is similar to that of the Gnostics of old. The Gnostics felt that low status people were incapable of significantly knowing God. Today far too many people continue to believe that the poor are incapable of being trusted with the God-given business of shaping their own lives. Yet, ironically enough, Jesus hung on the cross in part because He insisted upon protecting that right.

Yes, then, the Christmas event does take on special significance for us this year. By speaking to us of a gospel which is for all men, and by pointing us to a Lord who established genuine identification with the poor, we see that by following Him we find great joy and hope both for ourselves and for our troubled world.

THE COVER of the 1965 Christmas card, mailed by the National Lutheran Council to servicemen with a personal note from the hometown pastor, depicts the birth of Christ. The 12-page "card," really a small booklet, enables the serviceman to hold his own private devotional on Christmas, no matter where he might be.

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

Some good listening for the holidays:

BEETHOVEN: Hammerklavier Sonata (No. 29); Sonata in A Flat (No. 31)—Charles Rosen, piano—Epic BC 1300 Stereo:

Considering the popularity of the massive "Hammerklavier" sonata, one would think there might be as many different recordings of it as say, the Moonlight or the Appassionata. Such is not the case, and the only performance in stereo worth hearing before the release of this new Epic lp was the one by Rudolf Kempff on DGG.

Of course there are the complete collections of all 32 sonatas, in mono only, by Schnabel, Backhaus, Gieseking and Kempff.

Rosen has a direct and skillful manner in both the "Hammerklavier" and the amiable "Sonata in A Flat Major," and the stereo provides a worthwhile argument for solo instrument reproduction via two channels of sound.

BRUCKNER: Symphony No. 4 in E Flat "Romantic"—Philharmonia Orchestra/Otto Klemperer—Angel Stereo S 36245:

If a listener were to be introduced to the world of Bruckner for the first time, I would use this symphony for a start. It is rich, expansive, flowing, and fully justifies the "Romantic" subtitle.

It best illustrates the unhurried pace of musical development which is so different from the rush of modern day life and which is one of the major reasons for the great value of this music today.

Before this new Angel lp, the Bruno Walter performance on Columbia held top place on my shelf. However, Klemperer's monumental style is so perfectly suited to Bruckner, and the Angel stereo is so rich and dynamic that this one has my vote now. In addition, it is complete on one disc whereas the Walter album also included some filler Wagner selections and took up two discs.

POULENC: Sextet for Piano and Winds; Trio for Piano, Oboe, and Bassoon; Flute Sonata—Jacques Fevrier, piano/Michel Debost, flute/Paris Wind Quartet—Angel Stereo S 36261:

The most popular chamber work by the French composer, the Sextet, or Sextour, is available in three other stereo versions. All are excellent and respectful of the airy and witty quality of this piece, but for Poulenc fans my choice would now go to this Angel lp for it includes on the second side the only recording of the transparent little "Trio for Piano, Oboe, and Bassoon" and the only stereo recording of the simple and melodic "Flute and Piano Sonata." Also, the sound is rich and natural in the Angel tradition.

PIANO MUSIC OF ALKAN: Le Festin D'Esope; Barcarolle; Quasi-Faust; Symphonie excerpts — Raymond Lewenthal, piano—RCA Victor Stereo LSC-2815:

Launching long-ignored composers by recordings devoted entirely to their music is not a frequent happening in today's recorded music world, and when a conservative major label does it, it is even more amazing.

Pianist Raymond Lewenthal is behind this unusual project—he has long had a fascination for offbeat piano music, such as late Scriabin, which he recorded for the Westminster label some years ago.

Charles-Valentin Alkan was born in 1813 in Paris and in his youth was a precocious pianist. Late in his life he began composing astonishing works such as those heard on this stereo disc. They are ferociously difficult and full of bizarre and imaginative effects. The best description I could come up with is that if Liszt had lived 30 years longer and come under the influence of late Scriabin, this is what he might have composed. But Alkan is original, he truly doesn't sound like anyone else.

Lewenthal's complete and intriguing notes reproduce some of the actual music and it is enough to make Webern, Boulez, etc., look easy.

ORGAN MUSIC OF THE BACH FAMILY, Works of C.P.E. BACH, J. B. BACH, J. M. BACH, J. C. BACH, W. F. BACH, and J. S. BACH — Carl Weinrich, organist — RCA Victor Stereo:

The amazing Bach family of musicians spread its influence across European musical life for two centuries. All 52 of them did honor to the name of Bach and many were just as well known, if not more so, than old J. S. during their lifetimes.

Most of them served as organists at one time or another, and it is natural that works for the king of instruments exist for most of them.

Carl Weinrich has selected 11 of them here to show the similarities and differences in the Bach styles. He records on the organ of the General Theological Seminary in New York City, and the Dynagroove reproduction should stand as a model of perfect recording of Baroque organ music.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

THAT SLENDER TREE

A fir grew on a great hill where,
Caressed by winds and bathed in air,
A warm soft cloak of green to wear,
He stood straight up—his way of prayer
To God who rules the friendly hills.

We cut him down, this young fir tree,
And crucified him, merrily:
We nailed him to a board in glee,
Then stood him up for all to see,
Within four walls full strange to him.

Each day he flooded that great room
With aromatic sweet perfume,
Heedless of pain, or of his doom,
Until whole forests seemed to bloom
With odors sweet and needles green.

Alas! Too soon he faded, died—
That slender tree we crucified.
All of himself he gave: a tide
Of hillsweet fragrance, deep and wide,
Flowed out of him. Twelfth Night he died.
We burned him then; the golden flame

Sang as it blazed: "In His dear name
We live to give, and dying, live.
Who gives his all—fir, man or thorn—
In him anew, the Christ is born."

THE CHRISTMAS ROAD

Let there be candlelight
upon this Christmas night,
let there be scent of pine,
a creche, and mantle shrine—
the scene of Mary's plight
travail in lonely fright,
with Joseph standing by
to wait the Christ-child's cry.
Let there be bells to ring
and angel choirs to sing.
Let ways of love increase
the Christmas roads to Peace!

HAPPY HOLIDAY

Greetings from us in this mountainy town
Whose one side tips up as the other tilts down,
Where canyons sweep up till they peak in a crest
To catch the last glows of day's end in the west,
Where evergreens tiptoe to dizzying heights
And shimmer and dance in star-lighted nights,
Where a ruby-crowned kinglet ruffles a frown
And a brown towhee thinks he is Governor Brown—
Gay greetings to you, from this mountainy town.

Christmas In Marin County 100 Years Ago

Journal Files Tell Story Of Observance Of 1865

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

What was Christmas like in Marin County 100 years ago?

One way to answer that question is to search the files of the Marin Journal, one of the Independent - Journal's parent papers.

The Journal was a weekly in 1865.

And, one week before Christmas, there was to be found in its pages no full-page advertisements on behalf of glamorous gifts.

MORRIS HYMAN had a one column ad that itemized his stock: Drygoods, groceries, boots and shoes, clothing, hats, caps, tobacco, cigars, perfumery and patent medicines.

The stores advertised sewing machines—the Singer, and the Wheeler and Wilson.

A San Francisco concern offered the most elegance in the way of possible holiday presents—gold spectacles and powerful opera glasses.

Nowhere was there a mention of toys.

THE READER was, however, notified that he could send for a catalog of stereoscope views of California, including Yosemite scenes, snow-covered mountains, redwood forests and green valleys.

There was an invitation to the public to attend a Christmas ball at the Marin Hotel in San Rafael. Tickets cost $2.

Beyond this information, we will have to fill in the gaps.

IT IS SAFE to say that, despite the advertisements, not many people in Marin County could then go into San Francisco to do their shopping. It took a full day to make that trip from San Rafael and back. The San Rafael Stage Line would carry passengers to San Quentin Point where they would board the steamer, the Clinton.

Only the well-to-do could afford the cost of the trip and the loss of a full-day from their work.

Many Marinites of the time, of course, were residents of ranches in the remote areas of the county. There were few roads.

PERHAPS ONCE a week, a rancher would transport his family to the general merchandise stores in such towns as Tomales, Point Reyes, Marshall and Bolinas. There the wife would buy drygoods at from two to four bits a yard, and perhaps a yard or two of ribbon or lace. Rolls of butter and pails of eggs would be traded for such staples as flour and sugar.

And if it was just before Christmas, very likely she would buy some "store candy." There were no fancy-wrapped boxes then. But the candy was a treat savored by the children.

The rancher would whittle whistles for the small boys, and make wagons, always painted red, for the older ones.

THE MOTHER would make rag dolls and dresses for the girls, and knit mittens and socks.

There was always much excitement on Christmas Eve when the youngsters hung their stockings for Santa to fill. Next morning the children were up before dawn to get their stockings.

In them would be the 'bought-en" candy, perhaps a few marbles, sometimes jacks and a ball. Oranges were scarce then, and only the children of the wealthy found them in their stockings.

Sometimes the family would have a Christmas tree, felled near the house. The children had fun decorating it, making strands of popcorn and paper garland. Small candles would be clamped to the branches. When lit, these sent out a golden glow, and the parlor was perfumed with the fragrance of the candles and the pungent odor of the tree.

JUST WHAT presents were exchanged by the grownups, we can only conjecture.

Most likely, the gifts would be something practical. If it could be afforded, the wife might get a new stove or a sewing machine. Or if money was more than usually plentiful, a bottle of perfume.

Certainly there was no glamorous lingerie among her gifts. The women wore high-necked, long-sleeved nightgowns.

She might present her husband with a handmade nightshirt, or perhaps a plug of chewing tobacco.

THE FAMILY always went to church on Christmas morning, sometimes driving miles for the services.

And there were the usual farm chores—the feeding and milking of the cows, etc.—that went on Christmas Day, the same as any other day.

Accustomed as the ranch woman was to preparing three big meals a day for her family and the hands, the Christmas dinner had to be something special.

There might not be a turkey to carve. But instead there might be a plump chicken or fat goose. Or a suckling pig with an apple in its mouth.

FOR CERTAIN, there would be a huge mound of mashed potatoes, topped by glistening yellow homemade butter. The vegetables, most likely, would be cauliflower or carrots. And to climax the dinner, large pieces of mincemeat pie, or a steamed, fragrant plum pudding with a sauce of butter and sugar, creamed into a soft ball.

Sometimes the rancher and his hands would mark the holiday with a few stiff drinks of whiskey before dinner. This "cocktail hour" was generally held in the barn because the wife seldom approved of strong drink. Perhaps their long hours and heavy work needed such compensation.

Now back to the Marin Journal files of 1865 for its after-the-holidays resume of Christmas festivities of a century ago:

THE EDITOR printed his acknowledgement of and thanks for the turkeys that had been given him by a Major Hughes and J. D. Bullis.

On the other hand, the Journal reported, the Christmas ball at the Marin Hotel had been "a sickly affair" with only eight to ten couples attending. Apparently the advertisement the previous week had not helped.

Otherwise, the newspaper was filled with reports of politics and scattered references to the Civil War. Christmas was forgotten, and Marin was returning to its work-a-day life.

THERE WAS, however, one item that caught my eye. It told how a beautiful young lady had died at a ball. Cause of death: Tight lacing.

Thank heavens, the women of today haven't such hazards.

The Biblical Story In Graphic Art

Marin Sees Work Of Devout Zulu

By DON KEOWN

In sharp contrast to the many colors in the paintings now on display for a group exhibit at the Mary Perry Stone Studio Gallery in San Rafael is a collection of graphics in stark black and white also being shown.

"They just seem to make the whole wall vibrate with their energy" is the way their owner, W. Herbert Gilbert, formerly of Woodacre, now of San Francisco, describes them.

The artist responsible for those graphics also offers a sharp contrast to the painters represented in the show.

The painters are Marin County residents. He lives in faraway South Africa.

HE IS AZARIO MBATHA, a 25-year-old Zulu who received his training in an arts-crafts center sponsored by a Swedish Lutheran mission in Zululand.

The work on display in San Rafael represents the beginning of a gigantic undertaking by the deeply religious young African. He has set out to illustrate the entire Bible.

The completed panels being shown at the Mary Perry Stone Gallery include, appropriate to the season, the Christmas story.

Their owner, Gilbert, says he stumbled on Mbatha's unique work quite by accident.

CANADIAN BORN GILBERT and his wife, Anna, who was born in Kenya, went to Africa in 1960, and starting from the north drove all the way to South Africa except for one "leg" of the journey in Sudan made by barge on the Nile.

They went there because Mrs. Gilbert's father and other relatives were living in South Africa. There, Gilbert, who had taught at the Vancouver, B.C., School of Art, engaged in painting, printmaking and teaching, and for a time managed a banana plantation.

After four years in South Africa, the Gilberts decided to return to North America and made arrangements to immigrate to the United States.

GILBERT SAID THE decision was based partially upon a need for greater artistic stimulation and a desire to be with his American artist friends, and partially upon a distaste for South Africa's apartheid racial policies.

"I couldn't stomach the situation," he says. But he adds that the South African whites are motivated by their particular background and a sincere belief that it is best for all in insisting upon the complete separation of the races.

Preparations for departure were under way when Gilbert "with only 10 minutes on the parking meter" made a hurried visit to a shop in Durban to transact some business. And there, on the walls, hung some of Mbatha's prints.

"HIS SENSE OF design is what excites me—those powerful black and white shapes," he says. "They have something of the same quality of Giotto, or of a Bach fugue, both of whom were also strongly motivated by religion."

Gilbert found himself making purchases for re-sale in the United States, the parking meter outside forgotten.

Since then, Gilbert has had correspondence with the Zulu artist through the Institute of Race Relations, a group of South Africans taking the moderate position on racial matters.

MBATHA, HE ADDS, is immensely excited by the knowledge that his work is now being shown in the United States.

Some of Mbatha's work had already reached Sweden and the East Coast of the United States, but Gilbert's acquisitions represent their introduction to the West Coast.

Gilbert says he is finding that many Americans share his enthusiasm for the prints.

AS HIS CURRENT supply of prints sell, Gilbert expects to import more.

Mbatha, he says, is quite serious about illustrating the complete Biblical story with his linoleum blocks—"apparently he is dedicated to the project."

The prints are modestly priced, averaging from $15 to $30 each.

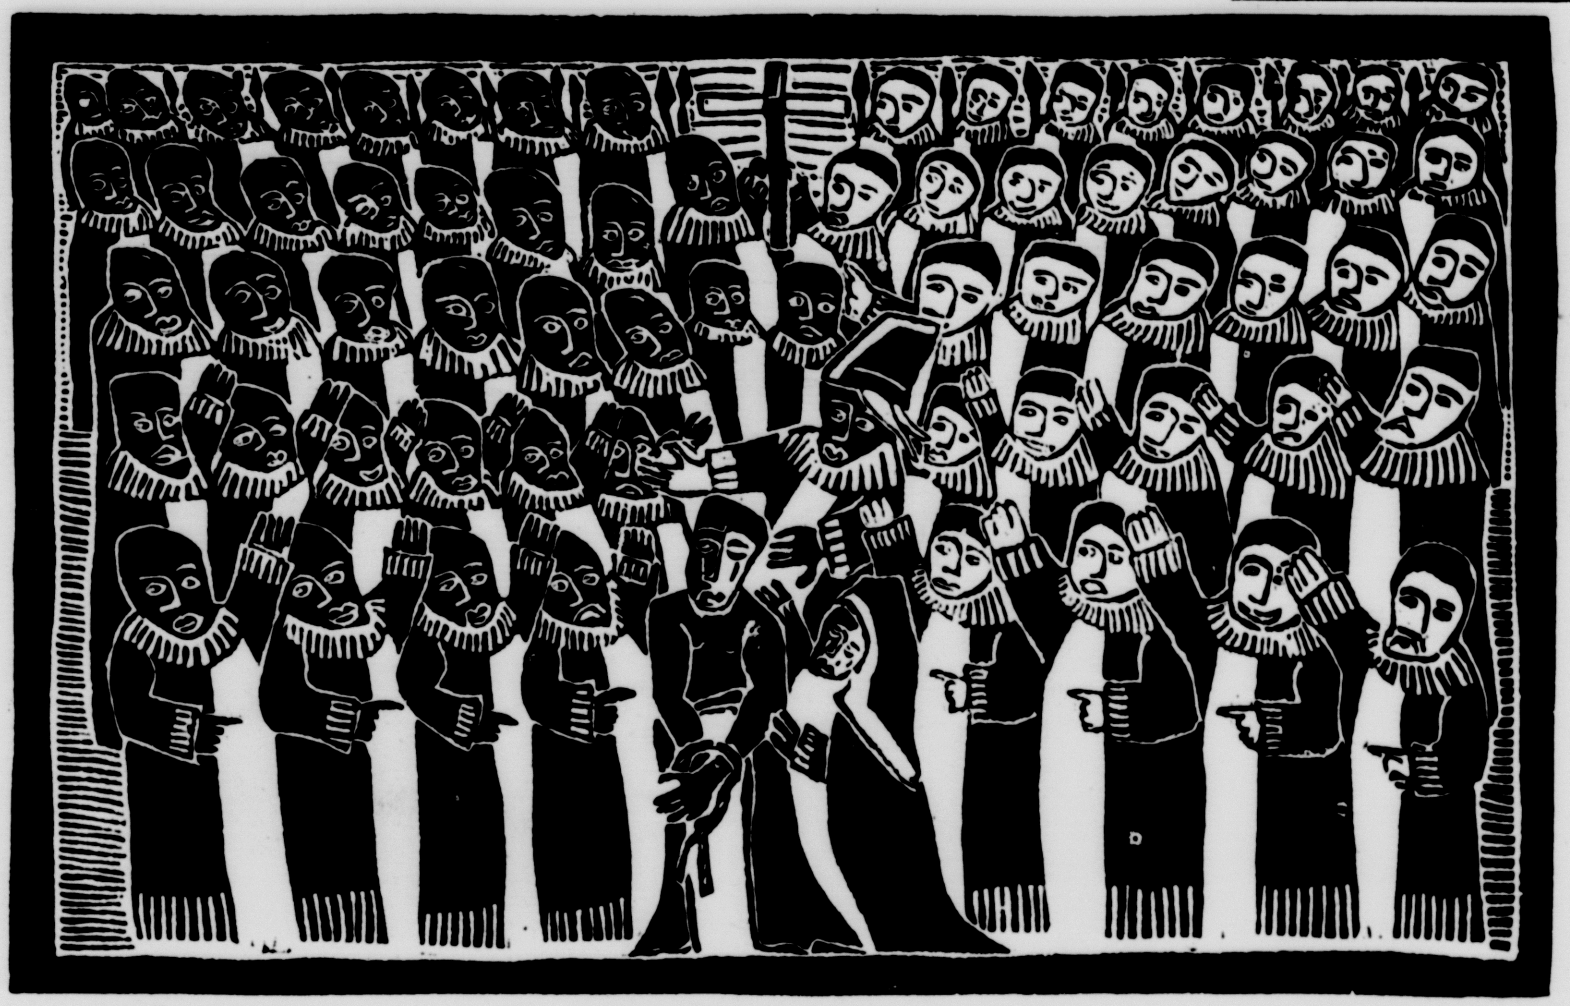
Looking at Mbatha's depiction of the Christmas story, Gilbert comments: "You can just tell that here is a man who accepts and believes deeply in the Christian faith. Only an artist so convinced could do this kind of work."

THE GILBERTS, parents of a 3-year-old daughter, plan to return to Marin County in about a year.

Gilbert, too, has a few of his paintings on exhibit at the Mary Perry Stone Gallery, 100 F Street, San Rafael, which is open to the public on Sundays only, 2 to 5 p.m., or by appointment at other times.

But it is of the striking Biblical pictures by the young man in faraway Zululand that he prefers to talk.

W. HERBERT GILBERT places on the wall the black and white linoleum block print in which the young Zulu artist Azario Mbatha tells the Christmas story. Below is shown a closer view of the panel in which the Holy Family flees to Egypt to escape Herod's wrath. The second print in the photo above tells the tale of Jonah and the Whale and other Old Testament stories. (Independent-Journal photos)



CHRIST'S APPEARANCE before Herod, with Mary weeping in anguish, is depicted by Azario Mbatha of Zululand in this black and white graphic, owned by W. Herbert Gilbert, formerly of Woodacre. Mbatha has set out to illustrate the entire Biblical story in linoleum block prints. Gilbert is introducing his work on the West Coast.

THE FLAGELLATION of Jesus is the subject of this Mbatha print. The young Zulu's work acquired by W. Herbert Gilbert is currently being shown at the Mary Perry Stone Gallery in San Rafael. The gallery at 109 F is open Sundays only, 2 to 5 p.m.

CHRISTMAS TREE DOLLS by the dozens were produced by the busy hands of these three women — Mary Stannard of Novato, Rose Tsuyuki of San Francisco and Margaret Robideaux. The rainbow-hued tulle of the dolls was one many gifts which tuberculosis patients at the Terrace, Ross General Hospital, made this holiday season with the encouragment and assistance of Mrs. Robideaux, who works with and understands TB patients because she was once one herself.

The 'Christmas Angel' Of The Terrace

Peg Robideaux Has Helped Fill Vital Need Of Tuberculosis Patients

After a few days, most hospital patients are eager to return home.

When the hospital is a tuberculosis sanatorium, and the time spent there stretches into months or even years, the patients' most fervent wish upon release is never to return.

Not Mrs. Margaret Robideaux of Trellis Drive, Terra Linda.

Upon leaving a Colorado TB hospital after 18 months of treatment, she vowed someday to return to help those patients whose days merge into one long period of sameness.

YEARS OF traveling around the world with her Army officer husband prevented Mrs. Robideaux from fulfilling her pledge until a year ago. But she has been making up for lost time Since then, she has worked full time as a volunteer at the Terrace, the tuberculosis wing of Ross General Hospital.

"I was a cosmetologist, and my first thought was to try to help the morale of those women who were too ill to do their own hair," she says. She began at Ross by giving shampoos, sets and permanent waves. She also shopped and did personal errands for the patients.

Her goals grew when she discovered how little there was with which the 40 tuberculosis patients at the Terrace could fill their days.

"WHEN I WAS ill, I read until my eyes hurt," Mrs. Robideaux says. "But it's difficult to read full-time even when you enjoy it. Television has the same drawback."

And among the patients at the Terrace are many older people with failing eyesight. There are also patients of Chinese ancestry who do not read or understand English. Sometimes there are small children.

Peg Robideaux began by interesting the patients in several simple crafts, her own hobbies. She brought the necessary materials from her home.

It was an uphill task in the beginning, and she says she never would have continued had it not been for the encouragement and tutelage of Mrs. Corwin Hinshaw, chairman of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn.'s patient services committee. Mrs. Hinshaw has worked steadily for Terrace patients for more than 10 years, during which period numerous less dedicated volunteers came and went — sometimes leaving the entire job on her shoulders.

WHEN MRS. Robideaux came, attracted by an Independent-Journal story about the need for volunteers, Mrs. Hinshaw and Gertrude Kent were sharing the task of running errands for some 35 patients and helping them find boredom-fighting occupations.

Never have there been too many volunteers. The nature of the disease confining patients to the Terrace scares off—although without cause — many volunteer workers.

Modern drug treatment has cut the time an average TB patient remains in the hospital to a little over three months, according to Dr. Robert W. Clarke of the hospital's medical staff.

As soon as their fever drops tuberculosis patients are allowed to wear street clothing and to stroll around the wards. They may have visitors. Still, they are faced with complete disruption of their normal lives, prolonged medication and separation from their families.

Though far from being the hopeless disease described in the romantic novels of the last century, TB still is discouraging.

ATTRACTIVE AND vivacious Margaret Robideaux made friends with the TB patients. She urged them to attempt small needlework projects, wood-burning, copper-hammering, leatherwork or weaving.

By displaying their efforts, she encouraged even reluctant patients to paint and draw.

Received slowly at first, her ideas caught on after a successful Easter party featuring eggs decorated by the patients.

As the patients return to their communities and report her efforts, individuals and organizations are beginning to collect and deliver craft materials to the small workroom at the hospital.

THIS Christmas tree with strikingly different decorations is one result of Mrs. R. J. Robideaux's determination to find interesting and creative projects to occupy the time of tuberculosis patients at the Terrace, Ross General Hospital, especially during the Christmas season. Brilliant with scarlet cardinals and pyracantha berries, it is one of five small yule trees decorated by patients and Mrs. Robideaux for the TB sanitorium. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

UNTIL TUBERCULOSIS inactivated him and put him in the Terrace, Tony Martinez of Richmond had never even handled a paint brush. Now feeling well and energetic, though his illness is not yet arrested, Martinez fills many hours exercising a talent he didn't know he had. Oil-on-black-velvet is one of a half-dozen media combinations he is trying.

SO PROFESSIONAL are his completed leather wallets, key containers and leather-working tools that Harvey Gantt of Berkeley says: "I'm going into the leather business after I get out of here." Finding hobbies to interest hospital-bound men is more difficult than selecting sedentary crafts for women, according to volunteer Peg Robideaux.

Former Tuberculosis Patient Now Helps Today's TB Victims

Peg Robideaux's Own Experience Gives Her Depth Of Understanding

conducting its annual Christmas Seal fund drive to further its efforts on behalf of the sick) and the Independent Order of Foresters have been especially good friends, according to Mrs. Robideaux.

"We accept most anything, because it's bound to come in handy sometime," she says. Yards of colorful tulle received some months ago were made into skirts for dolls and ballet dancers hanging on the Terrace Christmas trees.

Books, puzzles and non-strenuous games are always welcome.

"Not a joiner," Mrs. Robideaux was reluctant to become part of a formal volunteer organization. But the needs of the Terrace patients so impressed her that she joined the Ross Hospital Volunteers for the Terrace and now is overseeing a small corps of volunteer helpers.

THREE RETIRED nurses, Ruth Mason, Ethel Kelsey and Gertrude Kent now shop for the toothpaste, toilet articles and personal wants of the patients. Elizabeth Wietlauf recently joined the enthusiastic cadre and is helping with the crafts program.

Jay Erskine, a Marin County businessman, acts as general handyman on big projects.

More help would be welcome. "We still need someone who can come on Thursdays," Mrs. Robideaux says.

Entertainment for the male patients has been a real puzzler. "But," says Mrs. Robideaux, "things are looking up." A brand new pool table, gift of the Foresters, is her pride and joy.

THE FORESTERS also bought lumber for a workbench she designed and had built. Because there is no room for it inside, it rests on a graveled roof between two wings. With more tools the men being treated at the Ross Terrace will be able to make several things — when weather permits.

The major remaining problem is lack of space. Peg Robideaux spends a big part of her week in a tiny room crammed with materials for her crafts. She lacks shelves and storage facilities, and a tiny table is the only space available for patients who wish to work under direction.

Her big wish is for a central area large enough for group projects, games and tournaments and parties.

"That's the way to fire up enthusiasm," she says. "And it's much better therapy for those who are inclined to closet themselves in their room with their problems."

NOW MOST of the craft work must be done at bedside. A stroll around the wards of the Terrace may reveal a Chinese gentleman painting with oils on velvet, a Liberian exchange student (forced by TB to spend the first few weeks of his stay in a foreign land in an even more foreign hospital) alternately working on leather tooling and studying his chemistry, and an elderly lady making Christmas ornaments.

Mrs. Robideaux staged last October's Halloween celebration in a newly constructed hallway that joins the Terrace to the rest of the hospital. Decorations, costumes and "wonderful pumpkins" carved by the patients made the occasion festive.

Her prized memory is of the Liberian student demonstrating his native dances, with a hospital staff member as his partner.

Tuberculosis is no respecter of persons and both private and county-care patients are admitted to the Terrace. There are housewives and accountants, students and retired businessmen, even an undertaker.

A BIG PART of Mrs. Robideaux's "job"—and an activity much praised by the medical staff—is talking with these people. When the rest period ends at 2 p.m., a steady stream of visitors stops by her headquarters for a little glue, a patch of fabric, or a few sequins—and a friendly chat.

Whether the tuberculosis patients find Peg Robideaux easy to talk with because of her own illness and recovery or whether they are simply caught up in her unflagging enthusiasm is difficult to assess. But the success of her mission is unquestioned.

"I praise Peg Robideaux to the skies," declares head nurse Beulah Peterson. "The difference here in the year she has been with us is amazing."

DR. CLARKE agrees that she is doing a wonderful job. Although more than 5,000 new, active cases of TB are reported in California each year and the beds at Ross Terrace are nearly always filled, it's difficult to find tuberculosis workers, professional or voluntary, he says.

Mrs. Robideaux may be able to look forward to at least one additional helper.

When she entered the Colorado sanatorium as a bride of less than a month, she also said farewell to her husband, who was being shipped to Hawaii on active duty. They were separated for the year and a half she was undergoing TB treatment.

NOW, WHILE she works daily at Ross Terrace, Lt. Col. R.G. Robideaux rests in Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver, recovering from an undiagnosed lung condition that probably resulted from an earlier case of TB.

When he comes home to Marin, chances are he will want to join the ranks of Ross Terrace volunteers.

In the meantime Peg Robideaux carries on with her present corps of helpers. To the TB patients, she's their Christmas angel. But a Christmas angel who works in their behalf the year around.

PROPERLY ARRANGED on an empty plastic bleach bottle, bits of bright felt and a handful of sequins, plus four large corks for feet, produce this irristible piggy bank. Though in the Terrace only two months, Mrs. Pearl Borden of San Francisco is grateful for volunteers' interest in helping her find creative hobbies to fill the hours.

IT WAS AN ESPECIALLY Merry Christmas for the R. B. Robideauxes in Switzerland where this photo was taken. She had recovered from her siege of polio, and they were living in Europe, where he, a lieutenant colonel, served as executive officer of the Heidelberg, Germany, Command from 1959 to 1963. This Christmas season, he is hospitalized, receiving treatment for an ailment that is apparently the aftermath of tuberculosis. And Mrs. Robideaux is working with patients of the TB ward at Ross General Hospital, helping to brighten the holidays for them.

Prison Doc—

THE "CON BOSSES" were gathered in the decorated dining hall of San Quentin Prison for their Christmas Day dinner of 1914 when this photograph was taken. Those were the times when pork, not turkey, was the piece de resistance on the Christmas menu. And an apple was a treat.

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles written especially for the Marin Magazine by Dr. Leo L. Stanley, long-time chief medical officer at San Quentin Prison, recalling events and conditions at the prison in its earlier days. "Christmas in the Clink" is what Dr. Stanley calls this story.)

Early-Day Christmases At San Quentin Recalled

By DR. LEO L. STANLEY

Newspaper accounts of the way convicted criminals spend their Christmases behind bars almost invariably make reference to the inmates' holiday dinner of "salad, turkey with dressing, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie and all the other trimmings."

This could be elaborated upon, but in essence that is what is served in San Quentin Prison, which, along with the other penal institutions under the Department of Corrections, boasts that "the food served our inmates is as good as that served in the armed forces."

It was not always so.

UNDER WARDEN John Hoyle, 1907-1913, the piece de resistance on the Christmas dinner menu was pork.

Turkey in those days was much more expensive than it is today, and the fowl were considered too good for the "cons." But at the prison's pig ranch, some very fine porkers were fattened for the feast day. They were fed on table leavings and some grain. Then the pigs were slaughtered on the ranch, scalded in a huge vat, scraped of hair, cut up and put on ice to await the big feed.

There would also be apple sauce, pound cake, possibly an apple and plenty of "Old Joe" coffee.

WHAT WAS not devoured at the table could be taken, on this special day, back to the cells at "lock-up" time to be eaten later. Ordinarily this taking of "lumps," as the left-overs were called, into the cells was frowned upon for sanitary reasons, since there was no running water in the Old Stone Block. Often times, however, I think that the "boys" of those days were as well satisfied as the modern day inmates, despite their many advantages.

Under Warden Hoyle, a Christmas amnesty was declared each year. On that day lost privileges were restored and the punishment slate wiped clean. Every prisoner could start the new year afresh.

IN THE FIRST year of his administration, Hoyle wanted to permit the prisoners to receive gifts from relatives and friends at Christmas time. But this proposal of the "reform warden" (all wardens, it seems, are referred to as "reform wardens" when they first take over the job) was dropped at the persuasion of Samuel Randolph, captain of the yard.

The experienced Randolph pointed out that opium, morphine, and other contraband had been smuggled into the prison in the past in gift packages. Even the most critical inspection by prison officials failed to discover the "dope." Some of the schemes for getting the stuff into the prison were really ingenious — beneath postage stamps, in hollowed-out books and magazines, in the soles of shoes, etc.

For the women in prison, Christmas had a special significance. There was their annual Christmas show to break the monotony. To refresh my memory, I quote from a passage in my book, "Men at Their Worst":

"THAT NIGHT, with other members of the official family, I watched the women's Christmas show. Clara Phillips, the murderess of her husband's secretary, had emerged from solitary in time to direct it.

"Dorothy Mackay, a one-time Hollywood actress, was in charge of the dramatics. She is dead now, poor girl. She served ten months for failing to report immediately to police that the young actor she loved, Paul Kelley, had killed her husband in a struggle. Dorothy Mackay never took on a tinge of prison psychology, and her friends remained devoted to her.

"Mrs. Peete proved to be the hit of the show. The so-called 'enigma woman' sang a parody of 'My Little Gray Home in the West,' meaning San Quentin, to enthusiastic applause. (After her release from a murder "rap," she committed the same crime again. This time she was sentenced to death and died in the little green gas chamber at her 'little gray home in the West.')"

SNOW ADDED A holiday touch to the grounds of San Quentin Prison at Christmas time, 1914. These inmates got into the spirit of things by making themselves a snowman.

OTHER SKITS by the "girls" were very well done.

Then the curtain lifted upon a religious tableau for which I was totally unprepared. It was a setting in Bethlehem, with the Crib, the Mother and the Angels. There was a hush in the hot little auditorium. The robed women actually had the appearance of angels!

Gun molls, murderesses, thieves, unfortunates, at this moment they knew their divine source. It shone on their white robes and rapt faces.

What they should have been — not what they were — stood revealed in that prison tableau. I found myself sitting there pondering, where, in the making of so many, had the hand of the Potter gone wrong on these few?

UNFORTUNATELY, I learned later from Josephine Jackson, the prison matron, that after gifts had been exchanged among the women, just before lights out, one of the girls, Erna Janoschek, convicted of slaying a baby left in her charge, had reverted to type and in her customary spitful mood had kicked over the Christmas tree "just for the heck of it."

Even that sordid event, however, did not dim my memory of that one inspiring moment I experienced when the curtain first revealed that timeless tableau of the Christmas story.

WOMEN IN PRISON donned a wide assortment of costumes for their roles in their annual Christmas show. It offered them a welcome break in the monotony of prison life. (Photos from the collection of Dr. Leo L. Stanley)

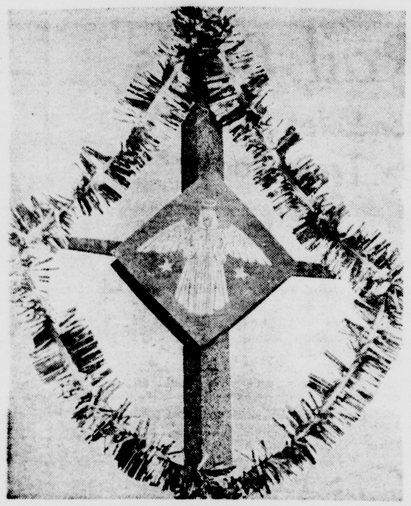
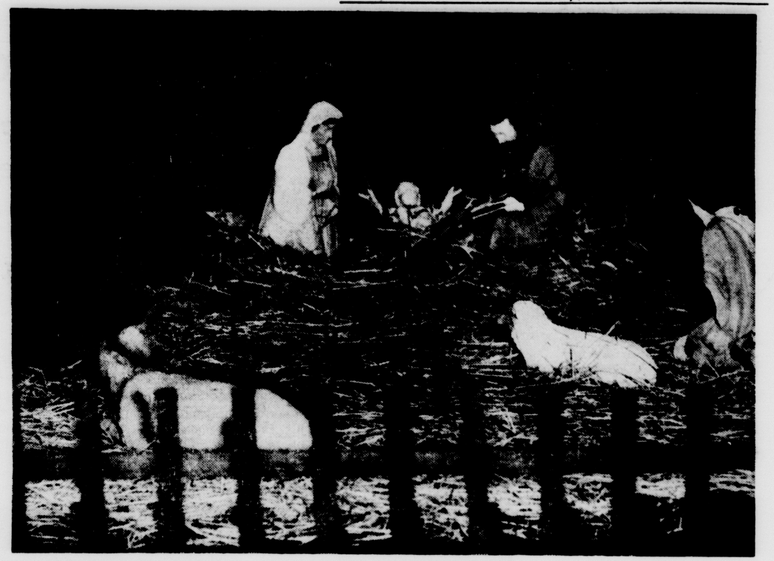
THE CLASSIFIED MARKET PLACE OF MARIN
To Buy And Sell

MARIN'S STREETS, stores and homes have, more than ever this year, taken on a festive appearance during the Christmas season, with glittering bright lights and greenery. The scene above shows the brilliantly lighted front of the Emporium store in the Northgate Shopping Center, San Rafael. Independent-Journal photographer Richard Smith made the rounds of the county with his camera to capture some of Marin's holiday decor for the Marin Magazine.

Marin In Her Christmas Finery



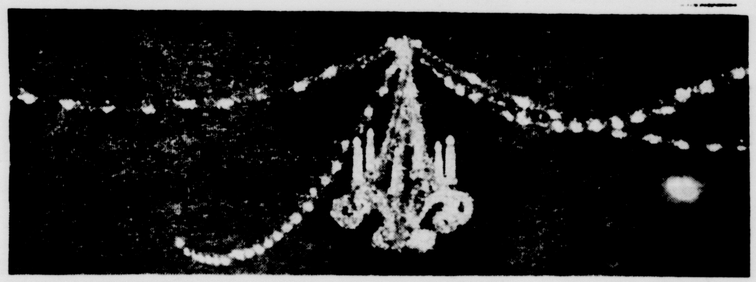
SAUSALITO MIGHT be expected to come up with something artistic, and this caroling angel on a pole decoration fulfills those expectations.



THE RELIGIOUS BASIS of the Christmas holiday has not been overlooked by Marinites. Along with the gaiety, there are also to be seen the Nativity Scenes. This one is at San Anselmo City Hall.

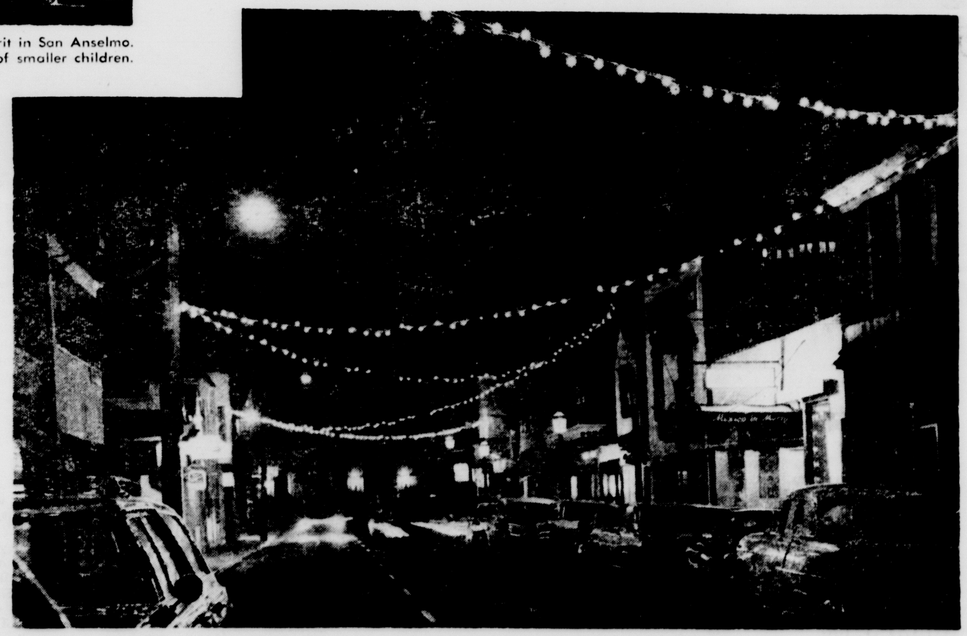
THE YOUNGSTERS at the Northgate Shopping Center have not one but two Christmas trees to admire — the large evergreen before them, and its image in the pool below. The big and decorated tree remains the focal point in many of Marin's Christmas decoration schemes.

SANTA, HIS SLEIGH and his deer, and, of course, a lighted Christmas tree, help spread the holiday spirit in San Anselmo. It's a special favorite of smaller children.

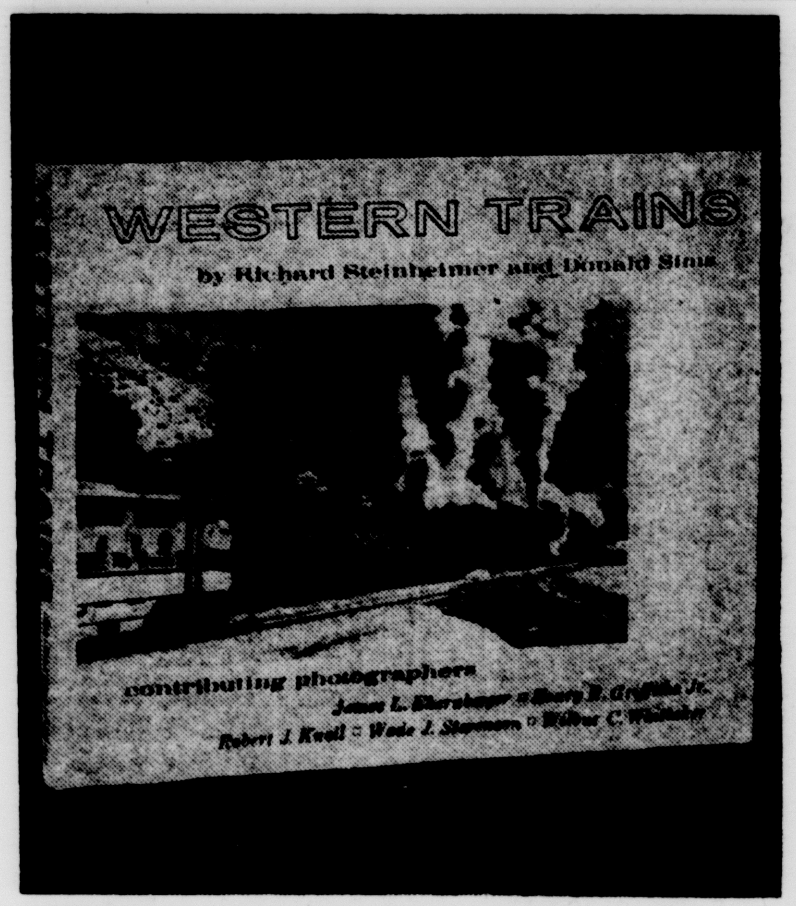


CHRISTMAS CANDELABRA hanging overhead at the intersection of Tunstead and San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo add a gay holiday touch to that city's holiday decor, bright with colored lights.

THE CANDLE, like the tinsel, is a traditional Christmas decoration. Here the two have been combined effectively in the pole decorations at Corte Madera Shopping Center.



STRANDS OF COLORED lights crossing the streets remain the most popular form of outdoor Christmas decor with Marin municipalities. This is Tiburon's Main Street, already colorful with its quaint and interesting shops and restaurants. Throughout the county, thousands of colored bulbs are glowing over streets, in store windows and in homes as Marin marks the most important holiday of the year.



A Treat For Rail Buffs

Marinites Play Major Roles In Dick Steinheimer's New Train Book

WESTERN TRAINS by Richard Steinheimer and Donald Sims, distributed by Golden West Books, 72 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

You have to be a railroad buff to appreciate fully Richard Steinheimer and Donald Sims' "Western Trains." But anyone can enjoy the pictures.

Steinheimer, who achieved wider-than-national esteem for his railroad photos while still photographing and writing news on the Independent-Journal, has put together a collection of beauties in this, his second book. The reproduction is excellent, too.

Sims' text has the proper note of nostalgia that goes with railroad talk, and enough jabber about 2-10-2s, bi-polar electrics, combinations, etc., to show he knows his locomotives.

Adding to Steinheimer's pictures are some by contributing photographers, including Wilbur C. Whittaker of Mill Valley. The book was designed by another Marinite, David A. Strassman of San Anselmo.

Theme of "Western Trains" is that the romance didn't all go out of western railroading when the diesel pushed the steamer off the track. The photos are of modern trains—and old-timers still in use.

The host of railroad buffs, both east and west, should all enjoy this one. The book is distributed by Golden West Books of Post Office Box 8136, San Marino, Calif.

ABOVE, a 50-year-old electric of the Milwaukee Road prepares to move west out of Othello, Wash., in the summer of 1965 in this Dick Steinheimer photo from the new book, "Western Trains." Steinheimer is a former Independent-Journal staff photographer now residing on the Peninsula. It is his second book for rail buffs.

AT LEFT, also from "Western Trains," a photograph by Wilbur C. Whittaker of Mill Valley shows the eastbound San Francisco Overland Limited as it climbs into the Sierra at Emigrant Gap. This was in the colorful era of steam-powered locomotives, a major chapter in the story of motive power evolution as told by the new book.

Cycle As Symbol Of A Mobile Age

By DON KEOWN

A TREASURY OF MOTORCYCLES OF THE WORLD by Floyd Clymer, McGraw-Hill, 238 pages, $8.95.

Like rock 'n' roll music and flashing neon signs, the motorcycle seems an appropriate symbol of the frantic age in which we live, with its noise and its mobility.

In these 1960s there has been a tremendous upsurge of interest in the two-wheelers that continues to gain momentum. It is now estimated that there are more than three million riders in these United States (a third of whom, incidentally, reside in Southern California).

Motorcycling interest cuts across practically every segment of our society, from the black leather jacketed Hells Angels to movie stars and socialites.

With this huge audience in mind, veteran automotive writer Floyd Clymer has put together: "A Treasury of Motorcycles of the World."

It is a collection of articles that range from instructional tips for both novice and experienced riders to reports on the big international competitions. There is considerable history of the cycle, information on the new mechanical developments, special articles on travel and recreation for motorcyclists, statistics on engine performances, a plug for the American Motorcycle Assn., and a great deal more.

Racing records are recorded. More important is the cataloging of the major motorcycle models, past and present, with thumbnail descriptions and illustrations.

But perhaps the chief attraction for the dedicated buff will be the some 500 photographs that Clymer has included, ranging from early-day scenes out of historical archives to present-day action shots.

What the book does not have is organization. All this material is presented in a rather unplanned, slapdash manner. The writing styles vary widely. Material overlaps. Some subjects receive a great deal more space and emphasis than they would seem to merit. Others are slighted or ignored.

Real motorcycling buffs (as distinguished from those whose interest is only occasional and slight) are likely, however, to be greatly impressed by the wealth of information that has been compiled, and will probably not quarrel too seriously with the method of its presentation. They will rejoice at the opportunity to pore over what the publishers assure us is "the first book of its kind." And especially will they savor those photographs.

A CHRISTMAS STORY with appeal the year-around for young readers is Marion Garthwaite's "The Twelfth Night Santons" (Doubleday, $3.25) with illustrations by Winifred Lubell. It is the tale of Pierre the shepherd boy, who longed to learn how to make santons and who, above, watches skilled craftsman Papa Gant at work.

By And About Cole Porter

THE COLE PORTER STORY by Richard G. Hubler, World, 140 pages, $3.75.

COLE PORTER
Respectful treatment

"THE COLE Porter Story" represents an unusual combination of autobiography and biography.

It is part Porter's own version of his life, as told to and recorded by writer Richard G. Hubler in 1954. The original intent was to transform the material into a magazine series. But Porter, at the last minute, stipulated that the information he had provided not be used until after his death.

The remainder of the book is Hubler's own expansion of Porter's account of his early life and career, and his analysis of Porter's peculiar talents and their impact upon the American entertainment and social scenes.

Rather surprisingly, it is the part written by Hubler, rather than the portion recorded from Porter, that is the more interesting.

The "as told by Cole Porter" segment is a rather terse and colorless chronicling of his various shows. Hubler's material adds meat to that skeleton, bringing out not only the personality of Porter himself, but revealing a great deal as well about the more general role of musical comedy in our culture. It is a well-done and perceptive "think piece" about one of our most popular and most pleasant forms of escapism. Nor does it ignore the satirical aspects so often overlooked.

Porter, himself, emerges as a paradox, an individual who enjoyed and played to the hilt the flamboyant playboy role society attributed to him. Yet he was a man who lived with a great deal of physical pain, who was rather retiring inwardly and who was always a serious worker.

Hubler's contention that Porter's music was far superior to his lyrics will provide food for a great deal of thought and some argument.

Rather ironically, the introduction is by Arthur Schwartz, producer of the movie, "Night and Day," based loosely on Porter's life. It was a picture the late composer detested. A considerable number of photos, some of them of questionable value, have been included. It is a small book, and hardly an important one. But it is an interesting one, light and entertaining, yet respectful of its subject matter.

Our Reviewers Report

Two Biographies

ADLAI E. STEVENSON by Stuart Garry Brown, Barron's Woodbury Press, 216 pages, $3.25.

PORTRAIT — ADLAI E. STEVENSON: POLITICIAN, DIPLOMAT, FRIEND by Alden Whitman and The New York Times, Harper & Row, 289 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer, Jr.

These two books, published close on the heels of Stevenson's death, were written differently, one in haste, one at leisure, and for different purposes, but they have a sameness about them because they both lean heavily on their very quotable subject.

Commissioned in 1962, Brown's biography is his second book on Stevenson.

According to the author, who worked with Stevenson in the 1952 campaign, it is intended as an interim biography, not as a definitive work. Within this limited framework it succeeds reasonably well, giving an adequate chronological review of Stevenson's life and accomplishments. Unfortunately, as an analytical and critical biography it fails. It smacks too much of the eulogy.

Whitman's "Portrait" is one of those extremely topical books, put together in haste to take advantage of the sales of the moment. It is a potpourri of parts of Stevenson's speeches, parts of columns of Times' columnists, particularly James Reston and Arthur Krock, tied together by Whitman's commentary. Fortunately, while this is a shallow and expedient approach to anecdotal biography, the bits and pieces used are of such high quality that the work has its rewarding moments.

Both books afford an opportunity for reacquaintance with Stevenson's prose and this is their primary value. They remind the reader of his wit, his courage in talking sense to the electorate and of the integrity which denied him the use of the platitudes, promises and panaceas which are the stock in trade of the ordinary politician.

Either book reminds the reader of the importance of the man who was not ashamed to be dubbed "egghead" when that was a term of suspicion and abuse. This reminder gives strength to all thoughtful men, regardless of their party.

Campus Controversy

REVOLUTION AT BERKELEY: THE CRISIS IN AMERICAN EDUCATION edited by Michael V. Miller and Susan Gilmore, Dial Press, 348 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer, Jr.

"Revolution at Berkeley" is an interesting collection of comments on the Free Speech Movement (FSM) which rocked the Berkeley campus in the fall of 1964.

The editors have included a variety of points of view: Student, faculty, administration and outsider. The picture that emerges, naturally, is colored by the attitudes of the various commentators. This review concentrates on the major areas of general agreement, and leaves the polemics to the individual reader.

Irving Howe's introductory essay is a masterly summing up of some of the major problems confronting higher education in America today, and the relationship of the FSM to these problems.

Howe is followed by the only comment from the administration included in the collection—a long article by Clark Kerr, written before the fact and based on the Godkin Lectures he gave in 1963. President Kerr and the ideas he presents in this and other works is much quoted by many of the contributors, and usually with hostility.

Kerr refers to the university as the keystone of what he calls the "education industry." This "industry" has developed as a result of two major factors: (1) the population explosion at the university level caused by the extension of the mass education concept to the college level, and (2) the reliance of government and industry on the university for their research needs.

Several contributors point out that research has taken precedence over teaching on many campuses at just the time when even more skillful and more numerous teachers are required to deal with a burgeoning student population. The students describe a feeling of "alienation" due to the impersonal nature of life at a large university.

The professors confirm that undergradute students rarely deal with instructors above the teaching assistant level, except in large lecture classes.

Contributions from both faculty and students focus a great deal of hostility on the university administration. It is interesting to note that in his essay, the role which Kerr foresees for the administration in his "multiversity" is one where the " . . . administration serves and stimulates rather than rules the institution . . . flexible all the time."

According to almost every account this ideal describes neither Kerr nor the Berkeley campus administration in the FSM crisis. The administration was rigid and lacked any "feeling" for the student point of view.

Another area of agreement is that the FSM illustrates some real problems current in the education establishment, and that it is not merely the work of a few unrepresentative radicals.

"Revolution at Berkeley" is a provocative case study for anyone seriously concerned with the changing nature of the American university.

A Unique Role

JOHN, THE TRANSITIONAL POPE by Ernesto Balducci, McGraw-Hill, 318 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Italian priest - philospher Ernesto Balducci teaches at the School of Classical Studies in Florence and the School of Philosophy and Theology in Rome. He wrote this book during John XXIII's papacy and draws upon much of his writing through his lifetime, although none of the material from the wealth of manuscripts left after the Pope's death was used for this book.

The complex threads linking the life of Pope John with the wide historical movement which he began are set down by Professor Balducci to reveal their unity and design. Not really for the layman interested mainly in the human details of the Pope, the book includes Pope John's preparedness through the years for his work as cardinal and finally as Pope, and his unique role in guidance toward world peace with the treatise "Pacem en Terris" and a new era for the Church of Rome.

A Saint's Story

PAUL, A MAN WHO CHANGED THE WORLD by Henrietta Buckmaster, McGraw-Hill, 213 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Jean Langham.

Sunday School teachers will appreciate the easily presented material in Miss Buckmaster's book about St. Paul.

She follows his activities from his conversion and Jerusalem, through the pagan cities of Tarsus, Galatia, Thessalonica, etc., and finally to Rome where tradition says he was beheaded at the direction of Nero. It is the first in the new "Men of the Bible" series from McGraw-Hill.

Unfortunately, Miss Buckmaster does not do justice to the character of Paul as he must have been, strong and vibrant.

The colorful pagan country and customs on the other hand are vividly recreated and will probably make more of an impression on the audience Miss Buckmaster will reach than will the zealous missionary who preached the new religion of spiritual love. There is no dialogue of any consequence and the account seems much more like an encyclopedic description than a biography.

Different Worlds

DARK STRANGER by John Iggulden, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 242 pages, $5.50. Review by Richard Lyttle.

The author here has marooned a Negro and a white man on a wild Australian shore to show how different their worlds are.

Though a lawyer, the Negro has the heritage of the bush behind him and at first dominates in the struggle against the elements. The white man, a top public relations flack, is helpless in the wilds, but comes slowly to dominate as the two work closer to civilization.

Though the experience gives the two men a bond for friendship, they part ways at the end when it is shown that the Negro is a man of high principle while the white man is not.

Though the adventure sometimes seems thinly contrived, Iggulden is a novelist who has given much thought to racial relations and all the sociological implications.

The characters are well drawn and seem real even when the plot does not.

THE LATE ambassador to the United Nations and twice Democratic candidate for President, Adlai E. Steveson, is subject of two newly-published biographies reviewed on this page.

Three Variables

SMOKING, HEALTH AND PERSONALITY by H. J. Eysenck, Basic Books, 155 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallador.

Dr. Eysenck (professor at the Institute of Psychiatry, Maudsley Hospital, London) smokes, but he doesn't need a pipe to aid him in throwing up a muddling smoke screen.

What he's really trying to say in this short work is that he fears researchers into the cause of cancer have become too "one-tracked" in their work by emphasizing the relationship between heavy smoking and lung cancer. Eysenck believes there is considerable evidence to warrant the investigation of the relation between personality and cancer.

He states in the beginning: "This book is concerned then with the relationship between three variables: Smoking, disease, particularly lung cancer and coronary thrombosis, and personality. All the evidence to be considered is circumstantial; there is no direct evidence which does not rely on statistical investigation and logical interpretations. These are difficult matters and it is very easy to go wrong."

With the aid of 30 line graphs bar graphs and diagrams, he then proceeds to show us how impossible it is to prove his points.

It takes entirely too much work for the reader to understand what this man is trying to say—he's just not a good writer. But that alone is not sufficient cause to reject a work such as this—if he had presented good evidence to substantiate his arguments. In my estimation, he did not.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE WINDY SIDE OF THE LAW by Sara Woods, Harper & Row, 249 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Sara Woods, who has earned considerable praise for her earlier suspense novels, has written a not very original and rather disappointing one this time.

Peter Hammond, just returned to England from Ceylon, finds himself a victim of amnesia. Thus unable to defend himself against a charge of narcotics smuggling, he turns to his barrister friend Anthony Maitland for assistance. Maitland soon finds himself with the added complication of murder on his hands.

The mystery element is rather thin, and there is very little in the way of deduction. Nor is the suspense sufficient to cause you to overlook those omissions.

"The Windy Side of the Law" will occupy your attention, but it is not up to standard for either Miss Wood or Harper & Row.

For A Super-Fine Finish, Sandpaper Is Still Necessary

The Master Craftsmen Prefer To Do Such Work By Hand

Look at the figures on the millions of dollars worth of power sanders sold every year and you would be convinced that nobody sands by hand anymore.

That is until you look at the figures on the million dollars worth of ordinary hand sandpaper sold every year.

A flawless surface is the basis of a truly fine finish on wood. When using a clear finishing material—varnish, lacquer, shellac, synthetic or whatever—the finest product in the world and the most efficient techniques will not hide a surface that has been improperly prepared. In some cases, the tiniest of scratches will assume gigantic proportions after a clear finish has been applied.

POWER SANDERS are indispensable for anyone who works a lot with wood, especially for the initial sanding. It saves time. It saves labor. And it accomplishes results that the novice could not have hoped for many years ago.

But when it comes to that superfine finish just before the first coat is put on, most master cabinetmakers — and apparently most amateurs — still rely on sanding by hand. A very fine grade of sandpaper also is preferred by the handsanders for the necessary smoothing between coats.

While there are many varieties of abrasive papers available, the principle is always the same—the finer the grit, the less of the wood surface is taken off. And that is what you want in that final sanding and for those between-coats. Only a very light pressure is used in the direction of the grain.

IT IS ONE of the curious things about sanding that most persons, when they first begin this important step in wood finishing, find it difficult to sand in a straight line. This is especially true after the first few minutes of sanding, when it begins to get a little monotonous and the process becomes rather mechanical.

Teachers in woodworking in high schools say they constantly have to remind their students to sand in a straight line since the hand and arm have a tendency to wander off course.

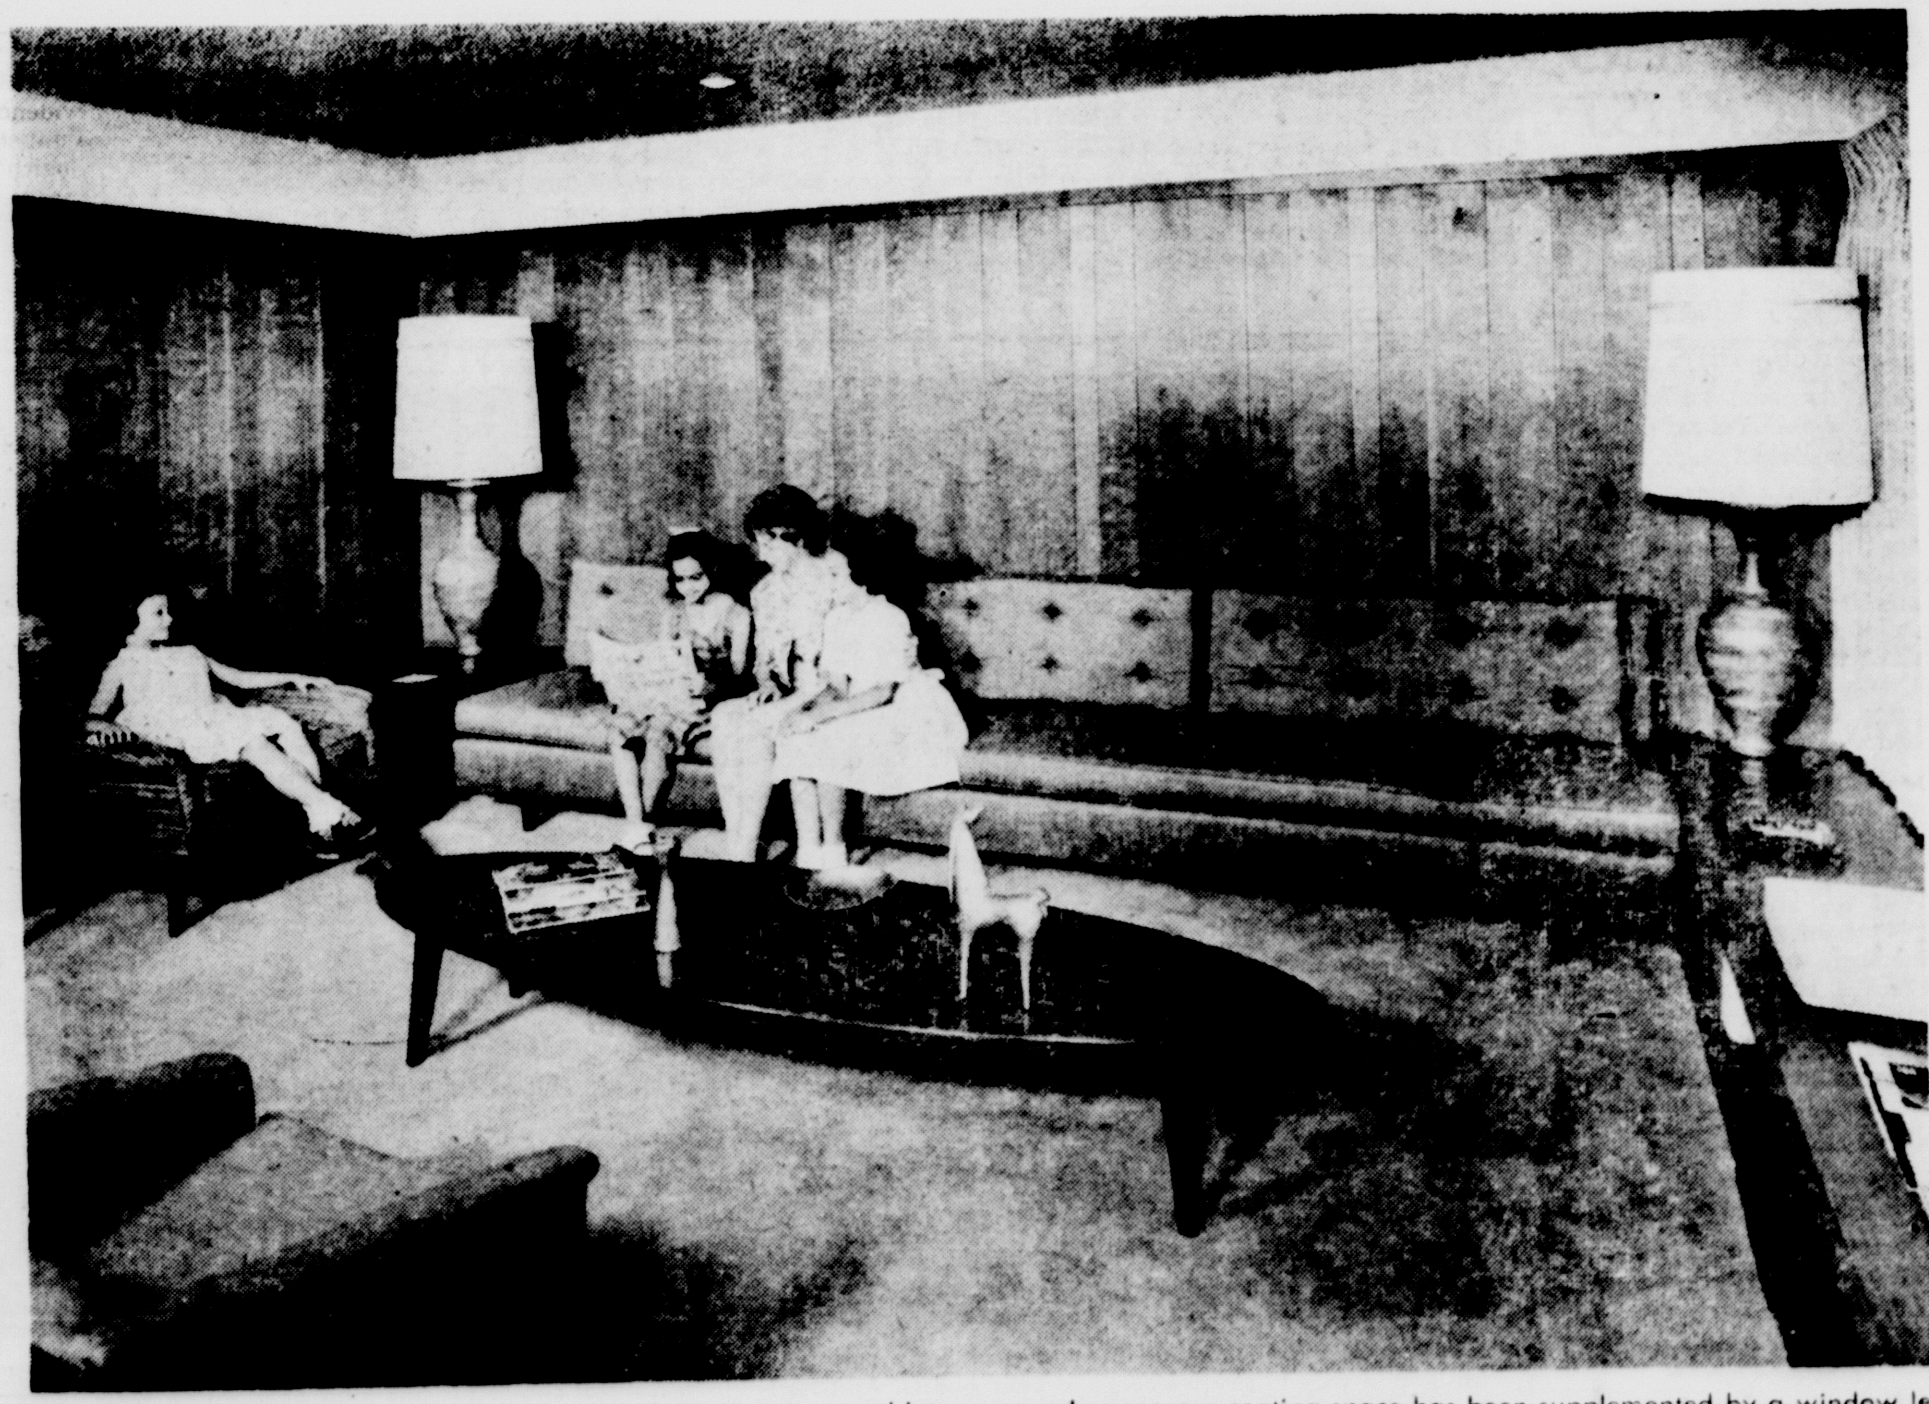
NO SPECIAL TOOLS are required to make this handsome table. And the cobler's bench will add a delightful colonial touch to your home decor. Just send $1 to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Cobbler's Bench Pattern No. 586. The pattern provides a complete list of materials and easy-to-follow directions.



A SHORTAGE OF SPACE and especially of seating for guests is a problem frequently encountered in the home, particularly during this season of entertaining. One solution, and a handsome one is seen here, where already generous seating space has been supplemented by a window ledge built to sitting height. The spice-brown paneling of Douglas fir boards is accented by furnishings in copper tone, white and seafoam.

The Legends Of Christmas Flowers Told

ROSES, LIKE SO many of our most beautiful flowers, have their special Christmas legend. It was, the story says, the gift of the little shepherdess to the new-born Holy Infant lying in his manger.

While thousands of Americans are saying "Merry Christmas" with flowers this year, few may realize that the druids of ancient Britain, who lived 2,000 years ago, believed that mistletoe was sacred to the goddess of love—thus our modern custom of kissing under the mistletoe.

According to legend, when a lad claims his kiss under the mistletoe, he must remove a berry and give it to the grateful maiden. When the last berry is removed from the plant, the mistletoe loses its power and no more kisses may be bestowed beneath it.

It's also said that if a girl is kissed as many times as there are berries, she will be married within a year!

THE USE OF holly as a decoration at Christmas time also can be traced back to antiquity—and many believe that the name is derived from the word "holy." In Germany, where holly is called Christdorn, there is a legend that this thorn was used for the crucifixion crown.

Another tale about holly relates the story of Joseph of Arimathea and eleven of his followers who came to convert some heathens. While preaching to them on Christmas day, he dug his staff into the ground and it immediately burst into life and blossom. A church was dedicated on the spot, and this miraculous thorn of holly continued to grow, blooming always on Christmas Day.

The flower that has become one of the best-known symbols of the Christmas season is the star-shaped poinsettia. So popular in this country are these scarlet-leaved blooms that the Florists' Transworld Delivery Assn. reports wiring more poinsettias than any other holiday floral offering.

THERE ARE ALSO many legends surrounding this Christmas-colored bloom.

One tale relates how a poor Mexican girl was heartbroken because she had nothing of value or beauty to offer the Virgin. In desperation she plucked some scrawny roadside weeds and placed them at the feet of the holy statue. They were immediatly transformed into scarlet brilliance.

The poinsettia plant, brought to this country from Mexico over 125 years ago by Dr. Joel Poinsett, is still called by many "Flor de Noche Buena"—flower of the Holy Night.

Other favorite Christmas flowers have fascinating stories behind them.

Did you know, for instance, that the Christmas daisy is not really a daisy—but an aster? It's a fact. But this is no more unusual than the history of the Christmas rose — which during Greek times was thought to be a remedy for madness.

ACCORDING TO one legend, the rose came to be associated with Christmas on the very night that Christ was born.

A little shepherdess, saddened because she had no gift to offer the Child of Bethlehem, went back to tending her flocks when suddenly an angel appeared. As the angel waved a lily that he carried, the ground was covered with Christmas roses—which the girl joyfully gathered and carried to Christ's manger. The Holy Child turned from the gems and gold of the Magi, reached forth his tiny hands for the blossoms, and smiled as the shepherdess heaped them at His feet.

Whether you've decorated your home with traditional Christmas greens and flowers — or chose roses, poinsettias or holiday bouquets to send loved ones—you can be sure of one thing: Flowers that announce the season's joys bring a glowing delight and a sense of well-being and warmth to all those who come in contact with them — a joyous heritage from the past in honor of the Prince of Peace.

GARDENERS' CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ Check the camellias in bloom now at your nursery and see if they're the ones you've been looking for. Remember that camellias bloom when they're dormant, so you can move or plant them in full bloom safely for instant color.

✔ To keep a poinsettia plant flowering for several weeks, place it in your sunniest window and keep it out of drafts. Water it whenever the soil begins to feel dry to the touch. To increase humidity, place the pot on a saucer filled with pebbles to which water has been added.

✔ Bulbs that may be planted now include amaryllis, anemones, callas, gladiolus and ranunculus.

✔ If you are enjoying a living Christmas tree this year, remember to keep it watered while it's indoors. It will last for many seasons.

A MASS OF FLOWERS that line the walk from spring till fall is one way to say welcome to your guests. And floribunda roses are a good planting for such an edging. The new 1966 All American Rose Selection, Apricot Nectar, is a natural choice for this kind of planting with its continual masses of large, fragrant flowers in a soft apricot shade. There Are Many Festive Plants That Enjoy The Indoors

THIS NEW AND compact poinsettia wtih its brilliant scarlet flowers gives any room a cheerful party look. For long blooming, place your poinsettia in your sunniest window. (Photo courtesy of California Assn. of Nurserymen)

Bring a gaily blooming azalea plant into any room and that room takes on an instant "party look." The same thing happens with potted chrysanthemums, poinsettias or cyclamen.

They're naturally festive plants.

AFRICAN VIOLETS, with their dainty, ruffled flowers sitting primly above neat, low mounds of leaves, create a charming, spring-like mood. Foliage plants such as Dieffenbachia, Zebra Plant, Norfolk Island Pine, or glamorous little palms bring the outdoors in and make spectacular party props as well as family "pets."

There are dozens of decorative plants that enjoy life indoors, and caring for them there is easy if you follow a few simple rules.

Just remember that conditions that are comfortable for people are also healthful for most plants. No plant likes temperatures any warmer than we do; a few like cyclamen like it a bit cooler; and African Violets can live in the same room with people who enjoy a cozy 72 degrees. A drop of 10 degrees in temperatures at night is ideal.

PLANTS NEED light in the daytime, just as people do, but most of them don't enjoy baking in a sunny window. Poinsettias are an exception to this, as they are happy in the direct sun and want to be kept out of drafts.

An azalea, on the other hand, will keep blooming a long time if you give it plenty of daylight but no direct sun.

A dark spot that needs brightening is ideal for many foliage plants such as ferns because they don't much need light to look their best.

House plants get thirstier than the ones outdoors and must be watered regularly. How much watering they should have depends on the individual variety. Dieffenbachia, for instance, should be allowed to dry out between waterings, whereas azaleas, chrysanthemums, and cyclamen should be kept constantly moist. But no matter how much water your house plant likes, don't let excessive water stand around in the saucer underneath.

Giving a house plant an occasional shower bath under the spray at the kitchen sink will clean dust from the foliage and provide a pleasant interval of humidity.

Nurseries have complete selections of the best indoor plants at this time of the year, so make your selection according to your taste and then ask your nurseryman about the specific preferences of your particular plants.

The New Bareroot Fruit Trees Will Be Arriving Soon

"No matter how large, or how small the garden, there are fruit trees tailored to size," says the California Assn. of Nurserymen. It will soon be time to take action.

There are standard fruit trees used by California orchardists, easily adapted to the fairly large backyard, dwarf fruit trees for small gardens and for espalier-ing against walls and fences and combination trees with three or more varieties of the same kind of fruits on one tree.

ABOUT THE first week in January, your nurseryman will probably be receiving stocks of fruit trees from specialist growers. He chooses only those varieties likely to grow well and produce satisfactory crops in your locality.

Some kinds may be in short supply (because of their restricted demand), so it is a good idea to make your selection while his stock is complete.

This is the season for bareroot planting, a handy way to buy, and a handy way to plant. No containers are involved, so precautions must be taken to keep the roots from drying out.

If you can't plant right away, dig a trench large enough to accommodate the roots, set in the trees, backfill with soil, water well and they are all set to keep until you are ready to plant.

ONLY THE LARGEST of the young bareroot orchard trees are selected by the nurseryman for home planting. They are quick to make up into a producing tree. Early planting gives them the chance to put on extra growth during their first season in the garden.

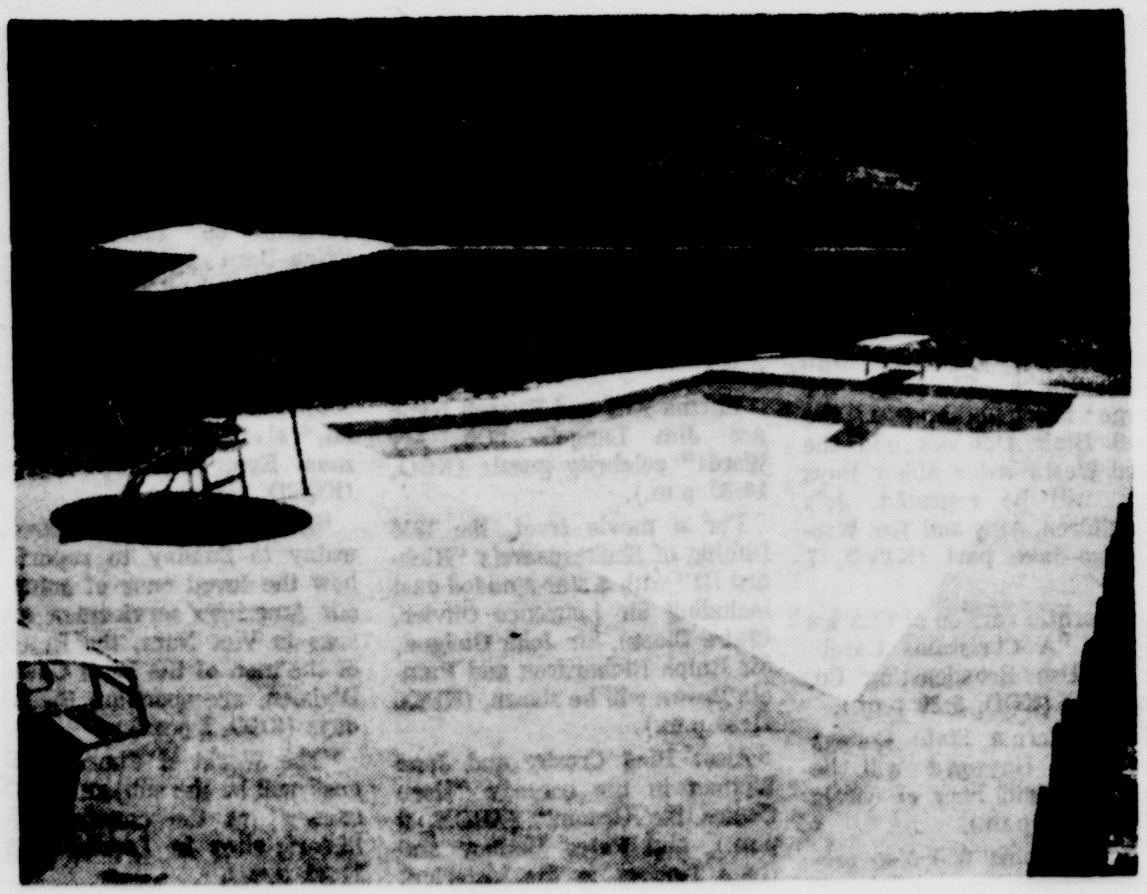
Pruning trees for planting requires experience, so the job is best left to the nurseryman from whom you make your purchase. Don't quail at the sight of the operation—a drastic one—it is all for the good of the future of your trees.

The dwarf fruit tree is a big boon to the owners of "handkerchief size" gardens. The trees grow to a modest size and slow enough to be easily kept under control. You are likely to find the best known of our Coast fruits available in "dwarfs."

Dwarf trees are often formed into "espaliers" against sunny walls and fences. The fruit thrives in the reflected heat from its background and dresses up the garden in summer and fall. The crops of spring flowers are striking additions to your garden.

THERE IS ANOTHER method of planting your home orchard to consider — the three - in - one system. Three standard size fruit trees are planted in one hole. Varieties are chosen for their sequence of ripening and the same kinds of fruits are used, just as on the combination tree.

When you choose this system, ask your nurseryman to prune them so each tree is headed in one direction. The "blank" sides are then faced toward each other when set in the planting hole.



LANDCAPE ARCHITECT Henry Cole designed this pool to go with the angular patio site. The long pointed end in right foreground provides a large, shallow area for steps and a place for non-swimmers to play. Landscape contractor was Cagwin and Dorward. Pool was built by Mardy.
